FRENCH ARE SUCCESSFUL IN CHAMPAGNE REGION

Swift and Sharp Offensive Against Germans Effective—Another Armed American Steamer Sunk—War Summary.

An American armed steamer—the oil tanker Vacuum—has been sent to the bottom by a German submarine, and it is feared that an American naval lieutenant and some of his crew of nine men perished in the disaster. The captain and several of the crew of the Vacuum are known to have been drowned.

Returning from the United States from a trip to Europe, the Vacuum encountered, off the coast of Ireland, the submarine which gave her a death wound. Scant details of the sinking are available, and it is not known whether the Americans were able to bring their guns into play, or if the vessel was torpedoed and sunk unharmed.

This is the second armed American vessel that has been sunk at sea since the outbreak of the war, the steamer Aztec having gone to the bottom April 1 as the result of an explosion. Whether she was the victim of a torpedo or a mine has not been definitely established. One member of the American naval crew on board the Aztec was lost.

Champagne Battle Broken.

The expected battle in the Champagne region of France, following days of acute gun preparation by the French forces which was answered almost shot for shot by the Germans, at last has broken. Scarcely 830 chronicles it with the somewhat lessened activity on the part of the British against the Germans on the Arras front, the French Monday, eastward from Rheims, launched an attack over a front of about four miles from the south of Beth to the east of Mont Carnillet, and captured several fortified German trenches.

Delivered at midday, the offensive was swift and sharp, and at its conclusion the French line had been driven forward into territory previously occupied by the enemy to depths ranging relatively from 500 to 1,000 yards. Simultaneously to the eastward a thrust by the French northeast of Mont Haut netted them a gain of about two-thirds of a mile, and placed them virtually astride the Moncivillers-Nauroy road.

That the fighting in this region has not yet been brought to a conclusion is indicated by the official statement of the Paris war office, which announces that artillery duels of violence are still going on. There also has been a continuation of the great artillery activity from St. Quentin to the Oise, and along the Chemin-Des-Dames, northeast of Soissons.

The St. Quentin Front.

Little news concerning the situation along the front from Lens to St. Quentin, where the British for several weeks have made notable gains, has been vouchsafed in the last official communications. The London war office Monday night merely mentioned the repulse of a German attack east of Arras, between Monchy-Le-Preux and the Scarpe river. The Berlin communication dismisses the Arras sector with the assertion that Monday was only artillery engagements of varying intensity, but it goes to considerable extent into a description of the sanguinary operations on Saturday at Oppy, which it is still asserted still remains in German hands, and north of the Douai-Arras road. The British losses in this fighting are declared to have been over 6,000, while more than 1,000 prisoners and 40 machine guns were captured, and ten tanks were destroyed.

Special to The Standard.

Amherst, April 30.—A well known and highly esteemed citizen of the town passed away last evening in the person of Edward Baker, son of the late John Baker, who was one of the pioneer citizens of the town and the county. The Baker family is one of the old families and has behind it a record of romance and adventure that is not equalled by many of the families in this province.

The present family comprises Barry W., who is collector of customs; John W., on the old homestead in Amherst; James, of Barronfield, and four sisters, Mrs. Hodson, of Amherst; Mrs. Cummings, of Great Village; Mrs. Johnson, of London, Ont., and Mrs. Atkins, of Vancouver, whose son Capt. Elmer, was recently reported killed in the fighting at Monopolis.

The death of Edward causes the first break in the family, and will be keenly felt by the host of friends who knew him the best. He was a rugged though quiet type of a man and had never known illness until his heart began to show signs of weakness several months ago.

FAREWELLS TO TWO PASTORS LAST NIGHT

A farewell reception was tendered Rev. A. L. Fleming, locum tenens of Stone church, and Mrs. Fleming in the schoolroom of the church last evening on the eve of their departure for Toronto. Judge Armstrong gave an address of appreciation of the work of Mr. Fleming while in St. John and then moved the following resolution: To the Reverend Archibald L. Fleming:

The church wardens, vestry and attendants of St. John's (Stone) church, in the parish of St. Mark in the city of St. John, N. B., cannot permit you to sever your connection with this church without placing on record our appreciation of your work and without tendering to you our grateful thanks for your very efficient labors as locum tenens of this parish which you have so admirably filled during the past six months.

Though coming to us as a stranger you were known to us by the excellent reputation which you so well earned in your heroic and self-denying work as a missionary among the Eskimos in Baffin's Land. Since your coming to us you have shown your adaptability to new and changed surroundings, quickly winning to marked respect the esteem, affection and admiration of the entire congregation, not only in the pulpit and reading desk and in the other ministrations of your calling, but also in the social intercourse with you which it has been our privilege to enjoy.

Mrs. Fleming also has endeared herself to all of us. Her talks on missionary and other topics have been instructive and inspiring and she has in all other ways proved herself your able helpmate.

We can perhaps wish you nothing better than that wherever you may be called to minister, the same success may meet you and Mrs. Fleming at that which you have both achieved during your too short stay with us. Dated the 30th day of April, A. D. 1917.

The resolution was seconded by L. P. D. Tiley, who spoke in an eloquent way of the splendid work of Mr. Fleming in connection with the church. The resolution was also spoken to by Capt. Kuhring, who referred to Mr. Fleming's loyalty in every sphere of life.

Rev. Canon Daniel of Rothesay expressed his good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Fleming in their future work. Mr. J. E. Secord, chairman, presented Mr. and Mrs. Fleming with a handsome silver salver, suitably engraved, and Church Warden G. Warwick made a presentation to Mr. Fleming of a purse of gold, which had been donated by a member of the congregation. Mr. Fleming replied, thanking the people for their love and sympathy and the open-hearted hospitality shown himself and wife during their stay in St. John.

Mrs. John McAvity in a graceful speech presented Mrs. Fleming with a large bouquet of carnations to which Mr. Fleming replied, thanking the assembly.

A short musical programme was rendered as follows: Mrs. G. Campbell, solo; Steve Matthews, recitation; Laurence Canston, violin solo. Mr. D. Arnold Fox acted as accompanist.

Refreshments were served later with Mrs. G. P. Smith and Mrs. J. F. Robertson presiding. The reception committee consisted of the wives of the church wardens, Messames J. E. Secord and G. J. Warwick.

Rev. L. R. Sherman, pastor of Trinity church, was tendered a farewell reception last night in the schoolroom of Trinity church, as he leaves today for Toronto, where he will take up his duties in connection with Holy Trinity church. The evening commenced with a short musical programme, consisting of Miss Muriel Ford and J. S. Ford in a piano duet and Miss Audrey Mullin and Miss Louise Knight in solos.

Mr. Sherman was then presented with a fine silver tea service, consisting of tray, coffee urn, coffee pot and spoon-holder, given by Trinity Women's Auxiliary; tea pot, given by the Badminton Club, and a cream pitcher and sugar bowl, given by the Young Women's Guild. Mrs. L. R. Harrison, in presenting the set, spoke a few words of appreciation of Mr. Sherman's labors amongst the church members.

F. J. G. Knowlton, on behalf of the vestry and church wardens, presented Mr. Sherman with a handsome Waltham watch, suitably engraved, expressing at the same time the congregation's appreciation of his work as pastor for the last two and a half years. Mr. Sherman replied briefly, thanking those who had helped in connection with his church work and organizations.

Refreshments were served later by the Young Women's Guild. The wives of the church wardens, Messames Jarvis and Knowlton, and Mrs. Harrison, president of Trinity Women's Auxiliary, composed the reception committee.

King Constantine has had nearest his heart always has been to avoid if possible that irreparable disaster, to conserve that independence you celebrate this day. He never has been pro-German, he has been pro-Greek—and without his patience, his tact, his foresight, there might well have been no Greece today, whose independence you could celebrate.

"I do not know who these people are who say that King Constantine is pro-German. But I know that they do not even know him—they do not know him even as well as you do, who served under him, you reservists. Even I have the honor to know him better than they; I have talked with him many times and I know that his heart is with those who fight for the independence of the small nations—with the Allies. I know that on six separate occasions he sought to join with the Allies in their war for the defence of small nations. Why his offer has not been accepted is a question which only the Allied diplomatists can answer. But I know that true to his trust of keeping the Greece your arms have conquered intact, he has made it a condition of every offer to join the Allies that the integrity of Greece be guaranteed—every foot of soil under the Greek flag to remain under the Greek flag. He has not been willing to sell out any part of Greece. Perhaps it is for that reason they say he is pro-German. As late as last September King Constantine offered to join the Allies again. King Constantine has spoken first in Athens so. On September 13 he telegraphed his brothers, T. R. H. Princes George, Nicholas and Alexander, in London respectively, to give his royal word that Greece would join the Allies in a war on Bulgaria—if the Entente would guarantee the integrity of Greece. On September 13 Prime Minister Coulogueropoulos made a formal offer to the Entente government to the same effect.

King Constantine has spoken first three days after Roumania's entry into the war. His wife was that of the splendid soldier he is—that Roumania marching southward and Greece northward could cut Bulgaria in two, clear the way to Constantinople so that the Greeks could then march on Constantinople and thus probably end the whole European war.

The Allied Powers made no reply. The conquest of Roumania by the Germans and Bulgarians began and moved rapidly. In the face of this King Constantine renewed his offer twice, as I have said. Still there was no reply. Finally on September 30 he received an unofficial reply advising him to declare war on Bulgaria without any understanding as to co-operation with Roumania or any guarantee as to the integrity of Greece. He refused to do it, but still kept his offer open to join the Allies on his terms he had laid down, principally a guarantee of the integrity of Greece.

It was not until November 19 that an answer was finally received—that the Entente would not accept Greece as an ally except on condition that Venizelos be returned to power. Now I ask you, who is the pro-German in fact; the King who offered a practical military plan by which Bulgaria could be crushed, Constantinople taken, Germany cut off from Turkey and the war probably ended long ago? Or whoever it was who prevented the acceptance of this offer, except on condition that Venizelos or any other one man be named Prime Minister of Greece?
