CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.

Stocking up for fall and winter trade is now in full swing. Assortments in the hands of retailers are broken and must be replenished if the requirements of customers are to be supplied. At the mills there is no surplus in any class of lumber. Hemlock and hardwoods, which were relatively quiet early in the year, gradually strengthened in sympathy with white pine, and are now equally as firm in price. The advances that have been put into effect in the distributing centres of the Eastern States have encouraged the mill men of this province to hold what little stock they have for still higher prices. The strong position held by white pine is shown by the fact that one hundred million feet of lumber has this season been shipped from Western Ontario to Saginaw and Bay City.

Many of the mills in Ontario will cease operations for the season this month, while others will discontinue night crews. Thus the quantity of stock manufactured from now on will be comparatively small. A dearth of white pine shingles is looked for this winter and prices are likely to advance.

QUEBEC AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

The strong position of spruce lumber is now recognized by both buyer and seller. There may not be sufficient stock to supply orders, and if prices should change it will be in the direction of an advance. Spruce clapboards are selling at $42 on Boston freight rate, and best quality cedar shingles at $3.65. The buying for fall trade has emphasized the scarcity which has existed nearly all season in certain classes of stock.

The timber market is unusually firm, notwithstanding that up to September 23rd of this year the quantity of waney pine culled at Quebec was 240,000 feet greater than for same period last year. The quantity of oak is about 40,000 cubic feet greater, but white pine, red pine, elm, ash, birch and maple show a decrease. It is expected that Quebec stocks will at the close of navigation this fall be lighter than ever before.

UNITED STATES.

The high prices of lumber are not regarded with favor by the agricultural community. The demand in the farming districts has shown a falling off during the past week, as farmers have been engaged
