

EUCLID'S
ELEMENTS OF GEOMETRY,

BOOK I.,

BASED ON SIMSON'S TEXT;

WITH

EXPLANATORY REMARKS, ETC.

BY

FRANCIS YOUNG.

The steps are guided by no lamp more clearly, through the dark mazes of Nature; by no thread more surely, through the infinite turnings of the labyrinth of Philosophy; nor, lastly, is the bottom of Truth sounded more happily by any other line.—BARROW (on the Study of Mathematics).

TORONTO:
JAMES CAMPBELL & SON.