THE GLOBE INTERVIEW.

DR. CHAMBERLAIN SAYS MR. GAMEY SUGGESTED IT.

Stratton Took Notes—Gamey's Recommendations Were to Receive the Same Consideration as Those of Any Other Government Supporter—Messenger Costello's Story About Gamey's Visit to the Offices in September.

Toronto May 2.—Further details of the interview between Mr. Gamey and Mr. Stratton were brought out yesterday before the commission. One of these put a different light upon the connection of The Globe interview with the whole story. It was shown that this interview was prepared, not at Mr. Stratton's request, but at Mr. Gamey's, and that it was the member for Manitoulin himself who supplied to Mr. Stratton the subject matter for this statement. Other witnesses corroborated previous testimony as to Mr. Gamey's intention to support the Ross Government, commencing as far back as July. Judge Finkle occupied a seat on the Bench during a portion of the morning.

The cross-examination of Mr. Myers was in the morning continued by Mr. Ritchie with regard to The Globe interview. He said that Mr. Gamey called about 2 o'clock on January 29, and he supposed it was about the interview which he had typewritten the day before. Mr. Gamey was in Mr. Stratton's room about twenty minutes, and then left. About 6 o'clock he met Mr. Gamey again in the elevator. He got off on the first floor, and Gamey went up to a higher floor. About half-past 6 Gamey came in and asked for Mr. Hammond. Mr. Hammond was gone, and Gamey went into the Minister's room. After about twenty minutes Gamey came out, and Hammond was there then, and the two sat down at a table with the interview. Someone opened the door and looked in, but he did not see who it was. He heard in the court room that it was Frank Sullivan, but had no idea himself. After sitting at the table about ten minutes, Mr. Hammond went out into the hall. Mr. Gamey returned to the Minister's room for a minute, but he did not hear what took place. Mr. Hammond came back in a few minutes and went in to the Minister. He did not know at the time what had become of the interview. Mr. Hammond was with the Minister about five minutes. He never saw Gamey again until this investigation began.

With regard to Frank Sullivan's statement that in February he asked him (Myers) to see Mr. Bastedo about getting the patronage of that district for Mr. Gamey, he said he did not understand that this "patronage" was anything more than a fishing license, about which Sullivan spoke. He did not think it was "patronage" in general. He told Mr. Bastedo that Mr. Gamey did not want the Nobles to get a certain license, and Mr. Bastedo replied that the Nobles had gone away. He said nothing about "patronage" to Mr. Bastedo, made no report to Frank Sullivan, and thought no more about the subject.

Re-examined by Mr. Johnston, he said that, though he had spoken to Frank Sullivan since the statement in the House, Sullivan never told him the side of the story.

Mr. Johnston—He reserved that for The Telegram reporter? Continuing, he said he opened Mr. Stratton's confidential as well as official letters, and never read anything suspicious in them. With regard to The Globe interview, there was nothing private. The notes of it were in the handwriting of Mr. Stratton's clerk, Mr. Yokome, of Peterboro', so that Mr. Stratton, Mr. Yokome, Mr. Hammond, Mr. Gamey and himself all knew about it before publication.

Mr. Francis Costello, messenger for the Provincial Secretary's office, said he read on September 11th a report of a Conservative caucus on September 10th, and noticed that Mr. Gamey called on the Minister on September 9th. Gamey had called with Frank Sullivan, and neither of them came back. He swore positively that neither of them saw Mr. Stratton in his office on September 10th or September 11th. Gamey was not in the office again in September.

To Mr. Johnston witness said he never delivered any parcel or letter to Gamey or Sullivan in the smoking-room, and knew nothing about any letter containing money in connection with them. It was a month after the interview of September 9th that Gamey had the next interview with Mr. Stratton, and he never had interviews on two days in succession.

Dr. Chamberlain, Inspector of Prisons, said he was summoned to Mr. Stratton's office on January 13 in connection with a lock-up at Little Current. Mr. Gamey was there and wanted the keeper of the lock-up changed, because he also kept a hotel. Mr. Gamey spoke about License Commissioners and the Government. Mr. Stratton replied very sharply that he did not look much like it that he was speaking for the Conservatives in North Perth. Mr. Gamey said he had to do it. Mr. Stratton said it was time he declared himself publicly. Mr. Gamey said he was prepared to do it, and asked Mr. Stratton to prepare a statement for the press. Mr. Stratton asked Mr. Gamey what he wanted to say and took down some notes. The Globe interview afterwards published was along the lines of their conversation as far as he heard. He thought he remained after Gamey left, because he wanted to speak to Mr. Stratton about coal.

In cross-examination he said that the only reference to patronage was Mr. Stratton's statement that if Mr. Gamey supported the Government his recommendations would receive the same consideration as those of any other supporter of the Government. The patronage was not in consideration of giving this interview. Gamey said that he would support the Government on motions of confidence. He did not understand the interview was for one paper only, but to be distributed broadcast. The court then adjourned for luncheon.

Dr. R. H. Arthur of Sudbury said that he was an examiner for the insurance company which Mr. Gamey represents, and also a partner in some mining transactions in McGregor Township. He frequently saw Mr. Gamey, and they were quite intimate. About the beginning of July Gamey came into the office, and said he had been at the Conservative caucus in Toronto the end of June. They then discussed the political situation, and Gamey said, "I think Ross is going to rule for the next four years." Gamey then told him what took place at the caucus, and that many of the members were much discouraged at the outlook. Gamey said that he would not have been a candidate if he had not thought Whitney was going to win; that he did not want to sit four years in Opposition like A. F. Campbell; that he would give Whitney the first vote, but after that he would support the Ross Government, and that there were others who would do the same.

Another reason Gamey advanced for supporting the Ross Government was that scores of Liberals voted for him. He told Gamey that if he intended to support the Government the more honorable course would be to resign and run over again as an independent. Gamey replied that this would cost money. He replied that it would be cheaper to run over again than to fight the protest against his election. Speaking of a speech by Mr. Whitney on mining, said: "Did you ever hear anything more childish?"

In January of this year, after the bye-election, Gamey was in his office and Dr. Struthers was present. He expressed surprise at reading that Gamey was speaking for the Conservative in North Perth. Gamey said he had been announced to speak in Listowel, but that Whitney had up set the whole thing, because Whitney was jealous of anyone who attracted any attention. Gamey said he spoke about new Ontario, and that interested the people, but Whitney's speech was the same old scold.

On Jan. 13 or 14 Gamey told him in Toronto that Mr. Stratton had sent for him, and was annoyed that he spoke in North Perth. Gamey also told him there was trouble in the island, and he wanted to get back home, and showed a paper which he was going to get the Conservative farmers to sign in support of his position, and then he would defy the professional politicians in town.

Gamey on several occasions also spoke of the prospect of the Conservatives winning out, and about dividing the Crown Lands Department, and that he would be Minister of Mines and Mr. Mischampbell that of Crown Lands in that event.

In cross-examination he said he would be surprised to learn that Gamey was not at the Conservative caucus in Toronto on June 25, and he would be surprised to learn that Gamey had not been in Toronto for some time before that, but that was not what he was swearing to. He was swearing only to what Gamey himself said to him on July 3.

Mr. Gamey interrupted:—"I was not in Toronto for two weeks."

Dr. Arthur repeated that he knew nothing about that, but was telling only what Gamey had told him. Continuing, he said that Gamey had told him he had supported R. A. Lyon, when the latter was the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Gamey leaned over and whispered to Mr. McPherson, who said he was instructed that Gamey never voted for Lyon.

Dr. Arthur repeated that Gamey told him that both he and his father voted for R. A. Lyon.

The court adjourned at 4.10 until Monday morning.

MUNICIPAL COAL QUESTION.

Mr. Preston's Bill Discussed in the Legislature.

Toronto, May 2.—The Legislature sat for an hour and a half yesterday, and, in addition to hearing answers to a number of questions by members, sent six bills on to committees, after second readings. The only discussion of any interest arose over Mr. Preston's bill to enable municipalities to go into the fuel business in cases of emergency. Mr. Preston explained that the bill was only in a crude form, and a fit subject for amendment in committee, in order to provide safeguards against municipalities assuming great power than was intended. He believed that the financial unremunerativeness of such ventures, however, would provide a considerable deterrent. Mr. Gibson announced himself in favor of a certain amount of municipal ownership and control of public utilities, but was not inclined to extend it to trading generally, although, with certain provisions and restrictions, the power to enter the fuel business was one which they should have.

The Premier, in reply to a question regarding the amounts of the bonds held by the Province, given by Alfred McLaughlin, said that the Province had the bond of the London Guarantee and Accident Co. for $5,000, the company was notified of the default, claim was made and disputed, and was now in the hands of the solicitor for collection. The Province also had a policy in the Mutual Reserve Life Co. for $10,000; also one in the Mutual Life of New York for $5,000, and one in the Dominion Life Co. for $5,000.

Van Halgren, the veteran outfielder with New York, who was out of the game all last season with a broken leg, wrenched and will be unable to play for some time.

Letter of Condolence

Mr. and Mrs. John Bowes, City:

My Dear Friends,—I never felt so much at a loss to express my feelings as I do now. It seems to me that in your present grief silence is the only suitable offering. How deeply I sympathize with you I cannot express, and to utter common words of condolence would serve no end in your case. One only hope can comfort you in these sad hours, the hope that somewhere in the "many mansions" of our Father's house your son who loved you so well, loves you still. The shadows of the valley cannot eclipse the light of love. Time, the great healer, will bring balm to your wounded spirit and on behalf of Court Hope, No. 6244, of the Ancient Order of Foresters, of which your beloved son was so long an honored member, I extend my most sincere condolences. On behalf of officers and members of Court Hope, No. 6244, A. O. F., E. WANLESS, P. C. R.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. John Bowes desire to express their heartfelt thanks to the members of Court Hope, A. O. F., No. 6244, for the kind letter of condolence in their sad bereavement on account of the death of their only son William. They also desire to acknowledge the receipt of $100 funeral expenses from the same fraternal society.
