ST. MARY'S FESTIVAL.

TWENTY-SIXTH FESTIVAL.

One of the annual musical events of the season in this city has for the past twenty-five years been the festival given in aid of that most deserving institution, the St. Mary's Orphan Asylum, and none, as a rule, is more looked forward to. Success has invariably attended the efforts of the managing Committee, and the hall has been always filled. Unlike the rolling stone which gathers no moss, the festival as it rolls on year by year gathers in larger audiences, and last night the climax was reached. Despite the weather and the hard times, the hall was filled at an early hour, and those who came late had to content themselves with chairs wherever they could get them, or else to stand. The Committee of Management and the ushers did all in their power to make every one comfortable, and requisitions were made on the library, the adjacent hotels and everywhere for chairs. The Secretary, Father O'Leary, who has worked like a Trojan, must have felt himself fully repaid when he saw the immense crowd and the thorough success of the concert, which passed off without a single drawback.

Cathedral, and Brohman, St. Joseph's Church.

His Worship Mayor O'Reilly occupied a seat next to his Lordship.

The concert opened with the well-known overture to "William Tell" by the 13th Band, under the leadership of Mr. Robinson. This has always been one of the Band's best efforts and last night it was played in a manner which fully justifies the opinion of our citizens that the 13th Band is the best in the Dominion. The "Gloria in Excelsis" and the "Cum Sancto," from the 12th Mass, by the choir of St. Mary's, conducted by Professor Cherrier, was admirably rendered, the choir fully upholding its reputation. The Philharmonic Orchestra turned out in great force and played in a brilliant manner the overture "Sargino." The lights and shades were well studied and the time throughout good. Mr. Robinson wielded the baton and kept good order. Mr. F. A. Filgiano sang the cavatina "Infelice," from Ernani. Mr. Filgiano has a nice voice, but a terribly nervous manner, and he appeared to be making frantic efforts to tear his music in pieces. He was in good voice, and undoubtedly deserved the encore he received. His selection of "Nancy Lee" for that purpose, however, was not a wise one. the encore he received. His selection of "Nancy Lee" for that purpose, however, was not a wise one. The appearance of Miss Martin, who, in her last appearance before a Hamilton audience, gave great promise, was looked forward to with eagerness. She was warmly welcomed, and sang the aria "Deh se Pieta Pei Messeri," from "Pietro II Grande." Miss Martin has improved immensely, and with hard work and careful training, will make a brilliant vocalist. Her voice is a rich and pure soprano with a good compass, all her notes being equally pleasing. Miss Martin has a charming stage appearance. Though the fair vocalist was not nervous last night, there is no doubt but that a little more practice will

Though the fair vocalist was not nervous last night, there is no doubt but that a little more practice will give her greater confidence. She was heartily and most deservedly applauded and encored, but she contented hsrself with bowing. Mr. Eagan gave "The Raft" (Pinsuti) in good style. Mr. Egan is always a fayorite at these concerts, and no one has worked harder to ensure their success than he has. He also received a well-merited share of applause. Mr. Egan, who was Master of Ceremonies—by the Mr. Egan, who was Master of Ceremonies—by the way, where was our evergreen friend, the "Doctor?"
—announced that the Committee of Management regretted to say that Mrs. Caldwell was very unwell and would be unable to appear, they would do their best, however, to fill up the numbers allotted to her. The promise was so well kept that the fair cantatrice's absence, though regretted, both for the cause and for the disappointment at not hearing her sing, was hardly missed. Mr. N. J. Power, whom we regret that we seldom hear now, sang "Violets Blossomed where She Trod" (by Ryan). The song is a very pretty one, and received full justice at Mr. Mr. Egan, who was Master of Ceremoniesvery pretty one, and received full justice at Mr. Power's hands. Miss Moran, a young lady educated Power's hands. Miss Moran, a young lady educated at the Loretto Convent, in this city, and recently a pupil of the Conservatory of Music, Chicago, made her first appearance before a Hamilton audience in the last piece of the first part. Her selection was the aria, "Naqui All' Affano, al Pianto," and the rondo "Non Piu Mesta Accanto al Fuoca," from Cenerentola. Miss Moran has a very sweet contralto voice, with good compass and a charming manner. Undoubtedly she bore off the honors of the evening, her brilliant rendering of both the aria and rondo beinging down the house and necessitating a reapher orimant rendering of both the businging down the house and necessitating a reappearance. Still more charming was her singing of Claribel's pretty ballad "The Laird of High Degree," which suited her voice admirably and was sung with which suited her voice admirably and was sung with so much naivete as to demand a repetition of the last verse. Without wishing to say that Miss Moran is perfection, it is not too much to class her as one of the most pleasing lady vocalists that has appeared in Hamilton. Hamilton.

At the close of the first part the orphans of the Asylum appeared, looking bright and neat, and those who patronized the festival must have been well pleased to think they were doing something for the good of the little ones before them. A little lad, the good of the little ones before the declarity, of about eleven years, named Patrick McCarthy, then stepped forward and delivered the following calling on his Lordship the Mayor and Mr. Barton for a few remarks.

ORPHAN'S ADDRESS. My Lord, Rev. Fathers, Ladies and Gentle-MEN,—Just look across the waters of the Atlantic to a little island far beyond the sea, there beneath to a little island far beyond the sea, there beneath a grass-covered mound close by the ruined Abbey, lies perhaps the mother that loved you, the mother whose sweet smile, even now, seems to rest upon you, cheering you on through the dark storms of life and reminding you of those lessons of wisdom which so often fell upon her lips. The mother who was to you the dearest, kindest mother that ever was seen. Do you remember how the life seemed crushed within you when the news came that she was dead? they had evinced by their presence in the welfare of St. Mary's Orphanage. The institution had now been established for upwards of half a century, and had always been well supported by the people of Hamilton. His Lordship also briefly thanked the performers for their services, and concluded by calling on his Lordship the Mayor and Mr. Barton for a few remarks.

His Worship expressed his delight in seeing this annual festival such a great success, as, indeed, all its predecessors had been. It showed that the people of Hamilton took a great interest in so worthy an institution as St. Mary's Orphanage. Whilst he congratulated the Committee of Management on providing so great a treat as they were listening to that evening, he could not refrain from complimenting the ladies and gentlemen who presided over that institution. The Orphanage required no praise at his hands. The happy little orphans they saw that evening gave evidence of the good work that was being done. He concluded by expressing a hope that those who now preside over the institution may be long spared to do so, and that the success of the festival to-night was but an index of those to come.

that the success of the festival to-night was but an index of those to come.

Mr. G. M. Barton, of Dundas, spoke at some length. He said he was pleased to be present for the twenty-fifth time at the festival, though in endeavoring to do so he and his party had been upset out of their sleigh. He alluded in suitable terms to the late Bishop Farrell, whose memory would ever be green. He complimented the young ladies on their singing, and said that no doubt the good ladies of Loretto Convent must feel proud at having been the instructresses of two such promising vocabeen the instructresses of two such promising voca-

The second part opened with Bosquit's Grand Fantasia "Erin," by the 13th Band. This was again brilliantly playel, a pleasant feature being the singing of "Come Back to Erin." For the "Excelsior Duet" with Mrs. Caldwell, Mr. Egan substituted "I Fear no Foe," which he gave in good style and was applauded. Miss Martin was extremely brilliant in Arditi's vocal waltz, "L'Incortio," and it seemed to suit her better than the aria. Her trilling was very good. At the conclusion aria. Her trilling was very good. At the conclusion she was loudly encored and presented with a handsome basket of flowers. She responded to the encore with a ballad "Do you really think he meant it," accompanying herself. This was very prettily given. Mr. M. J. BISHOP DWENGER ON SECRET SO-CIETIES.

In his Lenten Pastoral Bishop Dwenger of Fort Wayne referring to Secret Societies savs :-

We deem it our duty to repeat the warning w gave some time ago against secret and oath-bound societies. We are well aware that especially of those who never belonged to the Catholic Church, there are many, otherwise honest and well-meaning men, who indivudally are not enemies of the Catholic Church; but we do wonder that these otherwise good and intelligent men do not see that these secret societies are based upon mere natural religion, or rather infidelity, or, at least, easily lead to it; that their whole spirit is opposed to supernatural and divine religion; that many of the highest and most influential lodges openly profess atheism. There is no more any doubt that there is a lodge within the lodge; that the higher and more secret grades are in the same ratio opposed to supernatural religion in general, and to the Catholic Church in particular. We do wonder that they do not reflect upon the undeniable fact that contains so terrible a revelation of the spirit and purpose of these societies, that all the lodges of Paris placed their banners on the ramparts of that city in favor of the Communists. Do the secret and higher grades favor communism? We doubt it no longer. It is wrong for a Catholic to take those horrible and impious oaths; it is wrong for a Catholic to bind otherwise good and intelligent men do not see that crushed within you when the news came that she was dead? That she to whom your heart still clung with childhood's first affection, was now sleeping the sleep that knows no awakening? Earthly joys may have surrounded you and kind hearts may have been still left to love you. But, oh, your dear mother, your own mother, the mother of your heart was gone, and you felt that in the world there was a void which no other form could fill? The big tears coursing down your manly face, while doing honor to your heart, told how deeply you loved your darling mother. But in the midst of your sorrows you had the consolation of feeling that she had fulfilled her course, and had been called home to receive the reward which her well-spent life had pittled her course, and had been called home to receive the reward which her well-spent life had pittled her course, and had been called home to receive the reward which her well-spent life had pittled her course, and had been called home to receive the reward which her well-spent life had so justly merited to her. And while recalling her many virtues, how did you thank God that this trial came not to you in helpless childhood, as it has come to me and so many of my little companions. Oh yes, in the first dawn of life, death came and robbed us of our dear ones and we are now little orphans. No mother's love is left to cheer us on through its dangers.

Nine long years have passed away since I lost my mamma. Oh, how long, how very long these years

As will be seen in another column, the efforts put forth in Hamilton for the last twenty-five years to raise funds for the orphanage in that city by with the grandest success. Fifiteen-hundred dollars kind were gotten up annually in this city, in which both orphanages could participate.

... Successfully Treated.—The following letter from Rev. Father Flannery St. Thomas explains itbeen successfully treated for granulated eye-lids, from which she has been suffering for the last twelve years. Several eminent physicians, among others, Dr. Rosenberg of Toronto, tried in vain to afford her some relief. About a month ago she was placed under the care of Dr. Howe, Chippawa street, Buffalo, and has returned home almost perfectly cured. Before leaving here she could not count the fingers on her hand, now she can read from her music book with perfect case. Dr. Howe's specialty is treatment of ear and eye difficulties, and I must say Miss Hughson's cure speaks volumes for his proficiency in that difficult branch of medical science.

A Promising Artiste.—We are pleased to notice the cordial reception tendered to Miss Walsh, of the Dundas Separate School, upon making her first ap pearance as a reader at a recent entertainment in the Valley City. The piece selected was one requiring considerable dramatic ability, and the rendition of it was really very good. We hope Miss Walsh will persevere in her elecutionary studies, and that at no distant day we will have the pleasure of hearing her in this city.—Hamilton Times March 1st.

Serious Runaway.—Thursday afterneon, the 27th ult., a serious accident occured near the waterworks reservoir. A party consisting of His Worship the Mayor, Mrs. Lewis, Miss Noble, of Brant ford, and M. D. Dawson were driving down the hill leading to the pumping basin, when by a sudden turn the sleigh suddenly upset. The occupants were thrown to the ground with considerable violence with the exception of His Worship, who manfully held on to the reins until the sleigh was all smashed when he was compeiled to allow the horses to pursue their mad career. Mrs. Lewis was found to be the only one of the party seriously injured, all of the others escaping with slight contusions and a severe shaking up. The telephone at the reservoir was brought into requisition and a cab was soon on hand, and the injured lady removed to her residence, Queen's avenue. Dr. Fraser made an examination and discovered that Mrs. Lewis had her shoulder dislocated in a very painful manner, but we are Serious Runaway.—Thursday afterneon, the and discovered that Mrs. Lewis and dislocated in a very painful manner, but we are pleased to learn that she is now doing well. Miss Noble and Mr. Dawson escaped in a most remarkable manner. The Mayor got pretty rough usage, but beyond being covered with snow and a number of slight bruises, is none the worse for his mishap.

RACING ON QUEEN'S AVENUE.—Great complaint is Racing on Queen's Avenue.—Great complaint is heard of the furious driving daily witnessed on Queen's Avenue. The owners of fast horses seem to think this favorite street a race-course, and drive up and down in a mad fashion, to the great danger, and not in the least to the pleasure or edification, of more staid citizens. This practice has of late grown to be a serious nuisance, and if it is not stopped the drivers will find themselves in trouble. It is of course the duty of the police to check furious driving on the public streets, and when it is indulged in on the more prominent thoroughfares, such as Dundas street, it is attended with a good risk of being summoned. But the avenue referred to is rather secluded; a policeman is seldom found on it, except at night. Advantage is taken of the scarcity of the men on day duty, to exercise the nags in a headlong and perilous fashion. On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Radford and another lady were driving quietly along the avenue, when their vehicle was struck by one of the flyers, which came dashing along at a mad pace, and upset, the occupants being stitled out into the road. Fortunately no serious struck by one of the flyers, which came dashing along at a mad pace, and upset, the occupants being pitched out into the road. Fortunateiy no serious injury was sustained, but the ladies were put in uncalled for discomfort, fright and peril, owing to the recklessness complained of Had they both been knocked insensible, and sustained broken limbs, it would have been only the legitimate fruit of such harum-scarum procedure. It is hoped for the sake of all concerned the horsmen will keep their fast trotters off the streets that are as much frequented as Queen's avenue. as Queen's avenue.

Upon being asked their intensixth concert. It would be well if something of the tion, the robbers replied they knew there was $400 in the house that they wanted it, and in case of refusal, would burn the house down. Mr. Donnelly fusal, would burn the house down. Mr. Donneny tried to impress upon them there was no money in the house, upon which they fired two shots from a revolver over his head, the balls of which lodged in the wall in rather close proximity to Donnelly's self:—It affords me great pleasure to be able to testify that Miss Teresa Hughson, of this Town, has been successfully treated for granulated eye-lids, otherwise disposed. They then upset the contents of two trunks in the bedroom, but found nothing therein to satisfy them. From thence they proceeded to another bedroom, occupied by Mrs. Donnelly and a servant girl, who by this time were screaming loudly, having been alarmed by the shots. They threatened to shoot the women unless they covered their heads. In this room was another trunk, which they approached, and after a diligent they covered their neads. In this room was another trunk, which they approached, and after a diligent search found in a leather pocket-book, which one of them immediately took possession of, remarking that this was what they were after. The pocket-book contained $132, the proceeds of some sale notes which Donnelly had recently collected, and which which Donnelly had recently conected, and which gave rise to the report that there was money in the house. Mrs. Donnelly was in a delicate state of health, having been recently confined, and the shock received has resulted in very serious prostration. The robbery took place about one mile from where talented artist, who resides on Maple street and has been in London for several months, has on exhibition in the window of Messrs. E. A. It is not lacking in either power or conception, and should command a good figure. Mr. Læmans has executed several paintings of local scenes since his stay in London, all of which are highly spoken of.
