DUBLIN.

A widow lady, named Mrs. Margaret Molloy, living in St. Alphonsus-avenue, Crumcondria, committed suicide, by taking poison, on May 4th. The deceased leaves six children, and as she had been in reduced circumstances it is supposed that anxiety for their future welfare preyed on her mind and caused her to take away her life.

It is understood that the Borough Franchise Bill for Ireland will be the first measure passed by the new Parliament. Amongst the measures which it is believed the Government will introduce in the present or the next session of Parliament are:—A bill to justify the 'growing confidence of the tenant farmers in the Liberal party by a reform of the land laws: a bill to improve the Artizans' and Laborers' Dwelling Act; a County Government Bill, one of the objects of which will be the lightening of the labors of the House of Commons. At the meeting of the Dublin Mansion House Committee, on May 6th, the Lord Mayor was requested to communicate with the new Chief Secretary, to ascertain the earliest day on which he can receive a deputation, to lay before him the actual state of the country, according to the information before the committee. CARLOW.

The death, on May 4th, is announced, in his 84th year, of the Rev. Joseph Murray, P. P., of the united parishes of Benne-kerry and Tinryland. Father Murray made his preparatory studies in Carlow College. Being appointed to a bursur in the Irish College, he proceeded to Rome, and made a most distinguished course of studies in the College of the Propaganda. So much was he esteemed for learning and culture that he was selected to pre-pare and deliver the Latin oration before the Pone and cardinal the Pope and cardinals on Pentecost Sunday, 1825.

A sale took place in Maryborough on May 5th of five cows which had been seized for rent of a farm held at nearly 100 per cent, over the Government valuation by a farmer named Bedington. In anticipation of disturbances fifty extra police were drafted into the town, but their services were not required. Mr. Clarke, the landlord, bid £5 for the first cow, and all the others were bought for ed, while a handsome amount was raised by the sale of tickets for the concert.

A very extraordinary affair, is reported from Ballyfeared. A police constable named Fitzgerald was left in charge of the barracks on May 6th, while the other constable went on patrol. When they returned at eleven o'clock they found the place on fire in three separate rooms. The fire was extinguished, when it was found that some boxes had been by moopen and £16 abstracted. A meeting of the citizens of Limerick was held on May 4th, to devise means of relieving the great distress which it was stated at present existed there, and after ne discussion a committee was formed for the purpose of applying for a grant to the two funds. Some gentlemen con-sidered that before they applied for ex-traneous aid the citizens themselves ought to do their duty towards their own poor, while others were of opinion that a great deal had already been done locally.

Mr. O'Meara proposed a resolution that a subscription list be opened on the spot, the money collected to form the nucleus of a fund for the relief of distress, but as of a fund for the rener of discress, but as it appeared that the meeting had been specially called for the purpose of apply-for a grant to the funds in Dublin, he withdrew it after some warm discussion had taken place on the subject.

The little furniture the unfortunate being was possessed of was ruthlessly thrown on the public road, and it was a melancholy sight to witness the dismal distress depicted on the hunger-bitten face of that poor, deaf old woman. Mr. Strachan has already distinguished himself on that very Road, and has a fine expanse of bare, blackened walls, now in his profitable possession, that were formerly the happy omes of industrious people.

ROSCOMMON.

The Roscommon Messenger of May 8th, says:—"For the past week the weather has been very favorable for getting down the crops and has been largely taken advantage of. Vegetation looked well, but the frost at night and occasionally cold winds have told severely on the early potatoes and young grass. Perhaps at no period during recent years did so much of the prosperity of the country depend on a single harvest as now. Anything like a general failure after the late disastrous seasons would prove ruinous, as betrous seasons would prove ruinous, as be-tween public and private debt the burden on the people, it is to be feared, would prove on much. On the other hand—and it is to be hoped this is the correct view if the harvest proves a good one, the great increase in the area under tillage cannot fail to have a beneficial effect on the country, and will do much towards enabling the people to tide over their present dif-ficulties, though it will take several good years to place many of the farmers in the position they held a few years ago.
