THEIR WORRIES.

She met him at the door and frowned, Her heart was full of woe; She was a child of trouble, and She freely told him so;

The gown that she had hoped to wear Would not be done that night; She fretted and she fumed and there Were tears that blurred her sight.

She wanted him to sympathize, Alas! the man sat down, As though there were no such thing as An uncompleted gown.

He merely gazed away at space

And twirled his thumbs, nor saw

The bitter tears that streaked her face,

Nor seemed to care a straw. She left the soulless wretch and threw Herself upon her bed,
And mourned that she were treated so,
And wished that she were dead.
"Ah, men are selfish brutes!" she sighed, "Who neither think nor care!"

And, with breaking heart she cried Twas more than she could bear. He sat and twirled his thumbs and

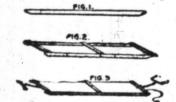

He sat and twirled his thumbs an looked
At something far away;
To-morrow there would be a mote
They'd call on him to pay—
A note for thousands more than he Could hope to steal or borrow!—

A Very Useful Sled Around a Stable.

t Will Save Time and Labor in Cleaning Out-Is Easily Made.

Where stable doors are too narrow for wagon, and something easier and quicker than barrow is needed to move manure from barn to manure yard, use the following device: Select two pieces hard pine 2x4x8 feet in length and cut as in Fig. 1. Next of the same material cut three feet long and bolt to top of runners as in Fig. 2. Now turn frame upside STABLE SLED down and cover tightly with inch boards, nailing them thoroughly to bottoms and clinching nails on top of same. Your boat complete now looks like Fig. 3. Notice it is smooth on top so manure will slide off easily. Also made to hitch at either of boat one on each side of centre end. Now here four holes in centre cross-piece. To ends fasten short chains (Fig. 3) and around centre piece hitch (from bottom) a rope of suitable length, say 12 feet .- Practical Farmer.

Tradition says Franklin Planted the First One in This

is now Manufactured Every housewife is supposed to know how to handle a broom, but it is safe to say that not one in ten has any clear idea of what her sweeping utensil is made of or how it is made or where the material came from. Brooms are made from the heads or brushes of the broom corn, a first cousin to our common field corn. And in this connection is told a very pleasant little fair story concerning Benjamin Franklin. "Poor Richard," by the way, seems to have been about the biggest jack of all trades that ever helped the United States to become the richest and most powerful nation of the world. If this story is true, he is the patron saint of the housewife and the broommaker, as well as a kiteflier, lightning eatcher, printer, publisher, editor, author, philosopher, statesman and other things "too numerous to mention." Broom corn tirst grew in India. From there it was carried to Europe. The story goes that Dr. Franklin was examining a whisk broom that land been brought over from England in the days before we had any broom corn of our own. He found a single seed on the broom, picked it off, planted it and raised a stalk of corp from which is descended, so to speak, all of the broom corn of the United States. However this may be, broom corn grows much like its first cousin, our maize, which originated here. The bead is larger, however, and the seeds grow on the head instead of in ears. The heads are cut off, leaving about six inches of stalk, and the seeds are scraped off by a machine, which does a clean job and does not injure the panicles. The seeds are valuable in a way. They are fed to borses and poultry and ground into meal for cattle. In the making of the brooms, the corn is put around a handle of basswood or soft maple turned in a lathe. Each layer is wound tight with twine or wire until the des'red size is attained. The broom is then pressed out flat and Shed a Tablespoonful at Night. Hair Full of White Scabs. Offer $100 for Cure. Friend Suggests CUTICURA REMEDIES. Tries Them and is Cured.

Last summer I had company,—a man and his wife. The man's hands and face had dry, scaly sores on them, and his head was covered with the same, his hair being full of those white scales the same, his hair being full of those white scales or scabs. His wife said, "Some mornings she would find a tablespoorful or more of them in the bed." I asked him what alled him, and he replied "I asked him what alled him, and he replied "I asked him what alled him, and he replied "I asked him what alled him, and he replied "I asked him what alled him, and he dollars to be cured. I have paid out a lot of money, but don't get cured," he said. Well, I told him "I would cure him for less than that, and told him to get the CUTICURA remedies and he would be cured. As he was living in Bristol, Vt., I did not see him for some time after, and then he fairly shouted to me: "I am cured. CUTICURA has done it. The Lord bless you and CUTICURA." MRS. SARAH E. THE MAKING OF ALE.

OF HOPS-

The flowers of the hop vine are used to impart fragrance and bouquet to malt liquors. Physicians agree that the hop extract in good ale is one of its most important medicinal properties. Experience has shown to brewers that hops vary widely in strength and flavour, according to the climate of the district in which they grow. England, Germany, and North America produce hops which are especially fitted for different brands of ale. The choicest growths of these countries are used in the manufacture of Carling's Ale, Porter,

Some Valuable Bints From the Farmers' Advocate

Young Chickens should be well Protect ed Against the Cold Weather.

As cold weather is coming, it is necessary that we take every pre-caution with our young chickens to keep them from taking colds. Every-body knows that cold or distempen in a flock of young chickens means great loss, for not only is it catching, but it reduces all that take it very much in flesh. If neglected it turns to roup. Nothing can be more discouraging than to find the chick-ens you intended for market grow thin, and the pullets that you wish for winter layers lose their flesh and go back instead of forward. It simply means that a very large portion of the food and care you have bestowed on them is lost. To avoid this see that the chickens are kept in small colonies of 15 to 20 at night. See that each colony is composed of chickens of the same size. Their sleeping place should be proof against rain and tightly closed on three sides so that there is no possibility of drafts. Any style of a coop will do. We prefer a wooden bot-tom during wet fall weather to the ground, because it is easier kept clean and dry. The ground will get damp, especially as it is necessary to move a coop with no floor every day or two to keep it clean. Scrape the floor of the coop clean every couple of days and sprinkle it over with dry earth or plaster to keep it sweet. Spray with coal oil occassionally to keep lice away. When the wind is high and cold we turn the coops so that the chicks will be well sheltered and even hang an old sack partly over the front to keep out the storm, Besides keeping your chickens in small colonies of equal age, keeping them in tight (free from draft) coeps and keeping their roosting placos perfectly clean, you must feed liber-ally during this geason of the year. Before describing our method of feeding we wish to add that birds that take to roosting in the trees will be all right until pretty cold weather comes—for about a month ket. We allow them to roost in trees if they wish to. As the cockerels that we wish to kill get large enough for us we remove them from the colonies and put them in to fatten, and thus grit and clean water always before

Packing Eggs in Oats

Eggs have been packed in oats for years, but the practice has gradually fallen off, as eggs stored in cases from the best storage houses have been improved in quality from year to year. Oats, if dry, will absorb moisture from the eggs quite rapidly and are objectionable score. If the oats are not dry, the germs of mold are developed rapidly, and as the moisture is given off by the eggs the mold will grow, causing the eggs to become musty. In using oats they should be at the correct degree of dryness.

Pullets Best. Pullets are far more profitable to eep than old hens, according to experiments just summarized in Bulle-tin 51 of the Utah Station. The average food cost per dozen of eggs was 4.3c during the first year and 6c, or 40 per cent. in favor of the first year. Brown Leghorns, pullets, laid 175 eggs each, but the same fowls the second year averaged 122.5 eggs each. The cost of food was about the same, being 64.3 per fowl for the first year and 61.7 per fowl the second year.
