People who own Erieau property should be very brave because they have "lots of sand."

Why are John S. Fraser and T. L. Pardo very sweet just now? Because they are candy-dates.

The Bankers got a slight check on Saturday. Pete McAuley's team caused the draft and the result was a dash of a note.

I reckon that the Bankers' baseball team didn't figure right and as a result Pete McAuley's nine had a victory to their credit.

I don't think that could have been a real explosion of natural gas at Fargo. I think it was just another Grit political meeting.

The circus parade, billed for last week took place this afternoon. The political contentions will perform in the Opera House to-night.

Is it a coincidence or do coming events cast their shadows before in this?

WORLD OF SPORT

BASEBALL

Peter McAuley's braves were victorious in their game on Saturday, with the Standard Bank.

Hamilton, who was in the box for the Standards, was a mystery to the wagon makers for the first three innings, not allowing them a hit, but in the last two he weakened, and they then batted out ten runs and won the game.

On the other hand the pen scratchers made seven runs in the second and third innings by some good hitting, coupled by some very sleepy playing on the part of Bury.

But the game was yet anybody's, the score standing 10-7 at the end of the fourth. But the bankers could not score in their half, and the C. M. C. made four more in the fifth, making the score 14-7.

In the fifth the Standard men made a determined effort to win, but of no avail, and when all were out only three runs had been scored, leaving the game 14-10 in favor of the wagon workers.

The score was as follows:

C. M. C.	AB	R	H	P	O	A	E
Myers 1b	2	2	0	6	1	0

STRIKING SCENE

Notorious Brigand Says he is the Soul of Honor and Justice.

Rome, May 17.—The trial of the brigand Musolino still continues. A witness, in giving his evidence before the court, stated that he assisted at the ceremony when Musolino was made a member of the Mafia. He further stated that this society helped the brigand time after time to outwit the ends of justice. Musolino, speaking in a high voice, and striking a theatrical attitude, cried out:

"This witness is a liar. I am not a member of the Mafia; but he is a villain, and came to me on behalf of the society, and asked me to kill two people for him. This I refused to do. I do not kill to order. I am not a person to seek such commission. When I have slain anyone, it has been in the cause of justice. I, Musolino, am the soul of honor and justice."

The confinement for several days to which the President of America condemned Musolino on account of his impudent behaviour did not have the desired effect.

On the trial being resumed he was more eloquent than ever, and the greater part of the sitting was occupied in a dispute between the prisoner and a witness.

Two witnesses testified that Musolino had two accomplices when his brother Martha Giuseppe was murdered. Musolino greatly resented this, and in violent language declared that he had no need of accomplices.

Another witness affirmed that the brigand—in spite of his undoubted piety—used to call for vengeance to wait upon his victim even in the most world. To one of these, Francesco, who asked for a short respite to commend her soul to God, he replied with a blank refusal, saying:—"The blood of Musolino must be paid for."

ONCE IN A WHILE.

It is easy enough to be pleasant. When life flows by like a song. But the man worth while is one who will smile.

When everything goes wrong. For the test of the heart in trouble. And it always comes with the years. And the smile that is worth the praise of earth.

Is the smile that shines through tears.

It is easy enough to be prudent. When nothing tempts you to stray. When without or within no voice of sin.

Is luring your soul away; But it's the only a negative virtue. Until it is tried by fire.

And the life that is worth the honor of earth.

Is the one that resists desire.

By the cynic, the sad, the fallen. Who had no strength for the strife. The world's highway is cumbered to-day.

They make up the item of life. But the virtue that conquers passion. And the sorrow that hides in a smile.

It is those that are worth the homage of earth.

For we find them but once in a
