Liquor and Labor.

Liquor and Labor.

Some object to curtailing or prohibiting the drink traffic, because, they say, liquor gives employment to labor and creates 2 demand for material. Prof. Barker says:—Liquor par chases less material, employs fewer men, and pays a lower rate of wages, than any industry with which it may be equitably compared. It ranks lowest in the aggregate number of wage carners in a list of $5 industries. It pays only $5 per cest, for labor while the general manufacturer pays 20 per cest, for labor.

Pneumonia

from a Cold

PNEUMONIA is second only to consumption in the number of deaths which it causes, and like consumption always has its beginning with a cold.

Cold, in the head, fever and chills, a cough which gradually becomes dry and more painful in the chest, rapid, difficult breathing, feelings of exhaustion and depression—these are symtoms of pneumonia.

You can prevent and cure pneumonia by the use of Dr. Chase's. Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the greatest of all treatments for the throat and lungs.

The only safe way is to regard every cold as serious. By frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can quickly break up the cold and guard against dangerous developments. 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

She made a slight grimace. "No—Renry, if does not," she said—with—alaugh.

He bowed gravely.

"Thanks," he replied, "some time I will explain."

"Dear me," she_sexclaimed, "these robberies — they still go on. I read all this stuff through this moraing, all this stuff through this moraing, but ian't it awful? And they say that there is a lot that never got into the papers at all—the police are arraid of popular opinion and are trying to suppress the news."

The man looked at her. He seemed sither deaf to her remarks or bored by them.

He had unconsciously returned to the line of thought that she had incerrupted. She glanced at his face and started,

"What—what's the matter?" she nquired, gently laying her hand upon its arm.

He started in his turn.

"Helen," he replied, looking her full.

He started in his turn.

"Helen," he replied, locking her full in the face, "there—there is something that I've got to tell you. I—I must tell you."

She looked up into his eyes. What she read there to her was well worth reading.

"You—you love me!" she murmured, lowering her glance.

He stretched forth his arms and then withfrew them. "Yes," he replied in a tense, strained volce, "I love you. You knew it, then?"

She nodded, still with downcast eyes. "I have known it all along," it he said, "and I—"

"Helen!" oxclaimed the man, in a coice full of agonized entreaty, "wait null you have heard—the rest."

She slanced at him in a startled iort of way. "The—the rest." she aquired. "Can there—can there be sore to say!"

"Bresything!" he responded, in a low volce.

She searched his face again.
