She Mackenzie Bowell replied that after the statement of the leader of the House he could not ask his friends to withhold assent to the supply bill. It was a very grave step to take, which could only be justified by circumstances of the most extraordinary nature. Those who acted with him were fully prepared to take the responsibility if the Senate were not assured that nothing of a permanent nature was contemplated. The supply bill might pass, but with the solemn protest of the Senate against any act being taken under its authority to commit the country to a permanent arrangement. He was convinced that the matter must be investigated next session at an early date in the session. The House of Commons concluded its business at 12 o'clock today. The Supply Hill and Crow's Nest Bill were put through their final stages. Mr. Mulock's bill in regard to recognizing of the mail service, and which was fought so stubbornly by the Opposition on Saturday last, passed through the committee and was read a third time.

The Speech from the Throne was given in the evening and Parliament was proqued.

Mr. Chamberlain Confering Dally With the Colonial Premiers.

London, June 29.—(Globe's cable.)—In view of the attitude taken by the Dominion Senate in regard to the Intercolonial extension bill, reports of which have appeared in the English newspapers, it is probable that Premier Laurier will ask the Imperial authorities to consider the advisability of reforming the constitution of the Senate.

The conference is proceeding daily between Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and the Premiers of the various colonies.

He would not hesitate to declare that this sentiment was one of affection and reverence. The enmity which once existed between Great Britain, Canada and the United States had been largely removed by the Queen herself, in such wise and kindly acts as her letter to the widow of Mr. Lincoln and her intervention to prevent friction in the Trent affair. After an eloquent reference to the jubiles service at St. Paul's, Sir Wilfrid Leurier said: "Let us hope that the good of war will never spread his wings between England and the United States," and concluded: "If on my death-bed every trace of racial feud has been removed, I shall die happy in the belief that I have not lived in vain." The picnic held in Beaver Meadow by the children and friends of Knox Church on Friday afternoon last was a most enjoyable affair, the day being all that could be desired and the spot a most delightful one. Football, races, etc., were heartily joined in by both young and old.

The funeral of Mrs. Geo. Clode took place on Thursday last from the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Thos. Biggar, sr., to the Elora cemetery. Much sympathy was expressed for the young wife who came a few months ago from Kentucky to visit her husband's friends here, who were all strangers to her, and was taken ill very shortly afterwards and never recovered, dying on Tuesday last at the early age of 32 years. She leaves a husband and one little boy to mourn her loss.

The Rev. Mr. McLaren, of Belwood, exchanged pulpits with the Rev. Mr. Horne, of Chalmers Church, on Sabbath both morning and night. Miss May Howard, the newly elected organist of this church, entered upon her duties as such on Sabbath morning.

We regret to state that Mr. John Jacob, lawyer, is very seriously ill with some affection of the brain. We trust to see him about again very shortly. On Sunday morning Dr. Faget met with an unfortunate accident on his own lawn. He was going to sit down on a camp chair, which, not being properly adjusted, collapsed, and his finger was caught and so baddy mutilated that Dr. Robinson had to amputate it at the first joint. We trust that the Dr. will soon have free use of his hand again.

Mr. McPherson understands his business and does it well. The Council were fortunate in tendering their work to his charge.

The Jubilee social on the 17th was a great success. The programme was excellent. Many thanks to the Wilkins' orchestra, who so willingly took part, and the Presbyterian choir of Hespeler, which was highly appreciated. Rev. Mr. Nugent officiated as chairman, interspersing the different orations with witticisms all his own. The instrumental duett by Mr. A. Robertson and Miss McKay brought down the house, while the speeches of Mr. Knowles of Hespeler and Mr. Short of Kingston were greatly enjoyed. Miss Hamilton favored us with a recitation, "The religious fiddle," and by request "The fashionable choir" in her usual good style. The song 'Fiddle and I, "by Miss Kribs, was strongly encored, but, as the chairman had prohibited encores on account of short time, this was not granted.
