LITERATURE

Day Dreams.
Where o'er the network of the trees
A fleecy cloud slow drifts o'er drowsy skies;
Where love-lorn sighs the languid breeze,
And drooping lids in minor melodies,
Among grass-hidden violets and thyme,
I weary listless lie, low murmuring some old rhyme.

Soft languors through the pulses creep,
While idle dreams fill in film purple shade;
Even o'er sick Pan has stretched asleep
This noon, methinks, in cool Arcadian glade:
Silent are the shepherds' pipes on hill and vale, Silent, the river slowly winds down the dale.

What let's dart down the starting air, Flashing with gold and gems of lustrous light?
Excelsior, sword strong and fair,
'Tis surely whirling swift through moonlit night.
That last weird night of Arthur. 'Nay' a ray Pierces a deep dim nook hid far from the day.

But soft! The mad Ophelia sings,
With straws and flowers all tangled in her hair-
How sad, yet sweet, that strain upspringing
And wings its way upon the list'ning air!
'Will he not come again?' Away, away!
A distant wood-dove 'tis, cooing on leafy boughs.

Yet heard you not the fearful tone?
Of 'Willow, willow,' wailing on drooping tree,
Where Desdemona sits alone,
Her heavy head low bowed o'er her knee?
Ah, no! 'Tis but a few faint notes a bird Pipes freely forth, as if by some sweet memory stirred.

Now o'er the quaint old German street
The birching shadows scarcely seem to steal,
A merry song merrily Margaret,
At work beside her whirling, spinning-wheel.
A halloo of the King of Thule gay-'Thou dreamer! 'tis a stream that bubbles on its way.

Away! thou sweet delusive dream,
With brightening hues before the half-closed eye,
Where, mingled with the flowers there gleam Pearl blossoms, Puck, thy tuneless fairy lowers!
Life's flower is too short-lived to waste with you the hours.

Yet stay! that ye-like silver light Trembling amid the shimmering summer rain-
To quivering lips and ad eyes bright
With brilliant undimmed tones of silent pain, A distant glimpse of sunshine still may bring.

Which, bringing weary way worn hearts,
May bid them sing.

Guilty of Wrong.
Some people have a fashion of confusing common remedies with the large mass of "patent medicines," and in this they are guilty of a wrong. There are some remedies fully worth all that is said for them, and one at least we know of -Hop Bitters-. The writer has had occasion to use the Bitters in just such a climate as we have most of the year in Bay City, and has always found them to be of first class and reliable, doing all that is
