"LEST WE FORGET"

Last Friday, August the 4th, brought to mind once more, the memorable same date of eight years ago when the British Empire and the rest of the world received the shock of the declaration of the most disastrous war the nations of Earth have ever witnessed, or taken part in.

The rumblings of intention and preparation had been heard for some time previous. The German Power became intoxicated with a dream of European, and for that matter, world conquest. Long before the first shot was fired, and the baptism of blood began to flood Flanders field, while talking peace, the Hun had his mind made up to try the fortune of War, and the people of their land hoped for, longed for, and drank to their toast of "the day" with confident enthusiasm; the day on which they believed they would become the arbiters of Europe and its greatest power. They lost, after a weary heart-rending struggle, the right triumphed, and the dastardly butchers of Europe, had to cease their hellish orgies, and own themselves defeated.

Lost to all sense of honor, and the sacredness of treaties, Germany refused to let Belgium alone. The treaty became to her military power only "a scrap of paper," and as such only fit to be disregarded, as something which interfered with German will, and dictation. On August the 4th 1914 England true to the stern obligations of her pledged word, and her part in the treaty, demanded from Germany that she respect the neutrality of Belgium, as she too had agreed to the treaty. England's ultimatum was not replied to, or regarded, and England said, then war it must be, and before the day closed Germany knew, and the world knew, that the British Empire had entered the struggle, to uphold national principles of honor, and defend the rights of the little nation, she had pledged her support to. Germany wanted to crush France, and Belgium must be used as the gateway. The end has been that after more than four years of bloodshed, and anguish, unmatched in any previous history, Germany stands in all her naked horribleness, dishonored, unwept, all but an outcast among the nations, and an object of contempt, save in the disordered minds of the craven tools still to be found within her own borders. The Armistice ended the war, but there are those who will ever think, that the Allies made a terrible mistake when they did not carry right on through German soil, and give a home thrust there,—which would have given them a sample of the devastation they had worked in France. Germany has no sorrow for what she did to neighboring powers, no note of repentance comes from her, she even whines and growls, at making reparation, and had she now the power she would try her efforts again to crush any and every other nation, which forbids her supremacy—and Germany will try again, when she thinks her strength permits, true to her ideas, that might, not right, gives the warrant to rule. Another, and even a more horrible war may come.

And in the great struggle, our Canadian boys like true sons of the Empire, as they are, feared not to enter the conflict, and rush to battle for the right. England herself had gone into the fight, but poorly prepared, but her millions of people, soon furnished one of the grandest armies of all time. In trumpet tones, from all the corners of the Earth, came the accents of love for the Motherland, and from India's coral strands, her people, though not of English blood and breed, sent forth their tens of thousands to fight under the banner. Kitchener rallied England, and millions answered to his cries. In our own loved Dominion, Hughes—"the Kitchener of Canada" answered to the call, and only a few weeks after the war commenced, over thirty thousand were on their way to do their best for home and right,—got ready under the splendid enthusiasm, energy and patriotism of Canada's noble son, Sam Hughes. They with him will ever hold a glorious place in Canadian history, never to be forgotten. Other thousands followed, and Canadian love of the right and true loyalty, has won an imperishable name. Her sons loyal in peace, and in war, proved to be heroes on the field, and France holds in her soil, the bodies of our gallant slain; who gave themselves a sacrifice that we might live. Who dare say, that their names will not live for ever, their memory ever a grand incentive to valor, heroism, and sacrifice.

Here in Newcastle, there are some who cannot still the anguish for the loss of dear ones, whose remains rest somewhere in France and Flanders fields. Year after year, during the war, the sad story of the dying and dead, came to many a home, yet amid the sorrow and weeping, there was still the thought; they had fought a heroic fight, and filled the graves of heroes. Their memory is sweet, and the home love will ever linger around them. They are not parted from us for ever. They will rise, more glorious, than all the panoply of War, conquerors over their graves and death. A memorial to their memory is erected in our midst. The handsome and Massive Cross in front of St. Andrews Church, tells its own story, and those whose names are cut upon its base, will ever be held in remembrance.

THE INCOME TAX

The Retail Merchants Association of Quebec is making a demand for the abolition of the income tax as well as of the stamp taxes on checks, receipts, etc. The income tax, it is claimed, unjustly affects the salaried classes and the deficiency in the revenue caused by its abolition might be made good by a further increase in the sales tax. There is a good deal to be said in favor of the abolition of the stamp taxes, which are more or less a nuisance and which are not large revenue producers. There will not, however, be much sympathy with the agitation for the abolition of the income tax, especially while more and not less revenue is necessary if increase in the national debt is to be stopped. There may be inequalities in the levying of the income tax, and there are inequalities in most forms of taxation. But it is questionable with all its inequalities, if it is not preferable to a further increase in the sales tax, which the Retail Merchants Association of Quebec proposes for the purpose of making good the revenue deficiency.

There are no exact details available to the newspapers to show what proportion of the total of income taxes is paid by the wealthy. The statistics have been made public warrant the statement that by far the larger part of this tax is paid by those in receipt of incomes of

TOO LITTLE BLOOD

The Cause of Nearly All Every-Day Ailments of Life

Too little blood is what makes people look pale and sallow and feel languid. That is what makes them hungry, unable to digest their food, breathless after slight exertion, so that it is wearisome even to go up stairs. Doctors tell them they are anemic—the plain English being too little blood. If you do not relish your meals, if you are easily tired and frequently despondent, and small matters irritate you, it is a sign that your blood is thin and watery, and that you are on the verge of a break down.

More weak, anaemic people have been made strong, energetic and cheerful by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than by any other means. These pills enrich and renew the blood, which reaches every part of the body, strengthens the nerves, and brings new health and vitality. Miss Dorothy M. Ellis, Davidson, Sask., says: "I have found great benefit through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was weak and run down and seemed to have no ambition, but after taking the pills felt restored. I shall be glad to recommend them to any sufferer."

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood or weak nerves, begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how your health and strength will improve.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

$50,000 or more per annum. A return made by the finance department shows that, last year, 1590 corporations and 171,230 individuals paid taxes on incomes in the first class, $1,000 up to $6,000. This class embraces about all the smaller incomes and as single men are entitled to exemption up to $1000 and married men up to $2,000 the total tax paid by this class by far the largest numerically, would amount to not more than six to eight million dollars. On incomes above $6,000 the tax is doubled and the surtax applies, beginning with one per cent. On incomes of $7,000, increasing to 23 per cent on incomes of $100,000, up to 65 per cent on incomes of a million or more. In the classes with incomes ranging from $6,000 to $50,000 there were last year 2297 corporations and 30,418 individuals. This class would pay a much greater part of the total income tax than the first class, more than five times as large numerically, with incomes of from $1,000 to $6,000. Then there are 472 corporations and 450 individuals with incomes ranging from $50,000 up to a million or more. In this class there are 38 corporations and two individuals with incomes ranging from $600,000 to over a million and the tables for computation of the income taxes such as those supplied by financial corporations indicate that the greater part of the burden of the income tax is borne by this class.

There is little to show that the income tax is borne by this class. There is little to show that the income tax bears with undue severity on the ordinary salaried classes and, certainly, little proof that a further increase in the sales tax is preferable to this form of levy.

WILL BE APPEALED

In the case of W. Malcolm MacKay, Ltd., vs British American Insurance Company, judgement was given at St. John Saturday afternoon for the defendant with costs by Mr. Chandler who said that he did not intend to enter into a discussion of the points of law involved in the case on circuit and would leave this to be dealt with by the Appeal Court. Dr. F. R. Taylor, K. C., for the plaintiff said the case would be appealed and that one of the matters to be decided would be that in the event of an insurance agent bona fide making an error in his work who is bound by it, the company or the insured? The question of estoppel will also enter into the argument. This case concerned insurance on a number of the B. C. Atlantic Lumber Co., which was burned at Burton.
