BY RUTH CAMERON.

There is a certain condition of modern business against which I wish the women of this country would in some way protest, and that is the influx of articles, which, though good enough to all outward appearance, are so cheaply made that they are almost entirely useless for practical purposes.

For instance, I tried five matches the other day before I found one which would accomplish the purpose for which matches are presumably made. The first two broke, the third had no phosphorus, and from the fourth and fifth the phosphorus snapped off, in the last instance alighting on my hand and burning itself out there, a happening which did not improve my opinion of cheap matches.

Again, I am constantly finding blotters that do not make any pretense of blotting, at least not in the desirable sense of the word—they certainly blot things in the other sense. Sometimes the reverse side is elaborately decorated, but the blotter side is absolutely useless. And when I am ready to blot a letter, it is not a picture card that I want, but a blotter.

How often we find envelopes which have no intention whatever of being stuck together. The glue upon them is so scarce or of such inferior quality that it is impossible to make the envelope actually envelope anything, without an auxiliary in the shape of some more glue or a dab of sealing wax.

And surely you have noticed how much more easily the pencils of the present day break than those which we used to buy ten or twenty years ago. Why, I have often seen a pencil break so many times during a single attempt to sharpen it that half the pencil was consumed that way. Very good business for the manufacturer, but not so good for the unfortunate under dog, the consumer. These are a few examples of the cheap, well appearing, but practically futile articles, with which the markets are so flooded nowadays. Doubtless you can add many other examples from your own experience.

When the manufacturer of a century ago produced the wooden nutmeg, the joke went round the world, and Connecticut received a nickname that will probably last her for life. To-day we have many articles that are just as much "jokes," as far as utility is concerned, as the nutmeg, but we don't nickname any states for them—they are too common.

Now to me this is one of the most pernicious manifestations of the high cost of living. To pay thirty per cent. more than you did ten years ago for a substantial and desirable article is a bad enough. But to pay more for the shoddy made that is worth next to nothing is really far worse.

What can women do about all this, you ask? Well, they simply use the only weapon left to the consumer; they can refuse to consume. They can denounce the shoddy article to the retail shopkeeper, so that he, in his turn, will denounce it to the wholesaler, and who knows but that in the course of time the manufacturers might get the idea that shoddy goods are not wanted. They can buy the substantial article even if it does cost a little more. Believe me, it will not be more expensive in the end.

Shoddiness and cheapness—not in-expensiveness, mind you, but the cheapness which is most costly in the end—are the curses of the age. Let us protest against them in every way we can think of.

HOT FLASHES.

Women in middle age often complain of hot flashes. They are at that stage of life when their delicate organism needs a tonic and helping-hand which only Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can give them. Many women suffer needlessly from girlhood to womanhood and from motherhood to old age—with backache, dizziness or headache. A woman often becomes sleepless, nervous, "broken-down," irritable and feels tired from morning to night. When pains and aches rack the womanly system at frequent intervals, ask your neighbor about Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Mrs. J. IMROF, of 221 S. Benton Street, Baltimore, Md., says: "I wrote you about nine months ago, telling you of my condition. I have a baby girl—the sweetest little thing you ever saw. She is very healthy and the strongest of them all. My suffering was only for two hours. I took several bottles of Favorite Prescription and was cured. Dr. Pierce's Sarsaparilla. I never had a well day before I took your medicine. I was surprised how well I felt—could eat—was always hungry, and never had a sick stomach. The nurse who was with me said the medicine was wonderful because I got along so nicely after having had so much trouble before. She intends to recommend it to all her suffering patients. Everybody is astonished at me because I only weighed 102 pounds before and now I weigh 135. I have gained 33 pounds and am able to do all my own work. I am willing to recommend it to all who suffer and want help. If any want information I will be glad to give it."

Fads and Fashions.

White and tan-colored shoes are in the lead.

Serges are prime favorites for the tailored suits.

Handbags of lace are a pretty summer novelty.

Linen dresses are prettier this season than ever before.

Belts, if worn, must be worn in harmony with the costume.

Negligees in both empire and straight effects are shown.

Ratine and macramé allover laces are used for peplum blouses.

Frocks of changeable taffeta are trimmed with narrow velvet ribbon.

One lingerie dress has a sash edged with narrow valenciennes lace.

Street suits of white serge and fine Bedford cord continue to be popular. In very deep mourning, tiny bands, folds and piping of crepe are used.

The smartest low shoes of black patent leather have tops and heels of white.

Macramé, filet and Venetian laces appear as parasol borders and insets. Coats of white serge or cloth with scalloped edges are fashionable for little girls.

The combination of blue and white seems decidedly strong in light-weight suits.

Mousseline roses in palest tints are used to trim large hats of finest straw or lace.

Almost without exception, the simulated tulle is a feature of the summer dress.

The refter coats of black satin are destined to be a distinct feature of the summer season.

That gay and careless garment of English origin, known familiarly as the blazer, is really black.

With light evening gowns of satin or lace, the elaborately carved ivory fans harmonize beautifully.

Veils of plain biscuit-colored tulle or fine net are lightly embroidered in fine gold and silver threads.

Fans of gauze decorated with water colors and sequins look well with gowns of chiffon and net.

Deep capelle collars of lace or embroidered linen are to be worn with plain dresses of colored linen.

The newest addition to embroideries are the embroidered cotton ratine and the embroidered agaric.

Deep yellow tones on the khaki order are popular. Blues in saxe, periwinkle and peacock are all used.

A lovely lot of pleated cream tulle and lace has small roses embroidered on the tulle in tones of pink.

Black and white Chantilly is a favorite trimming for the frock of soft satin, chiffon and pompadour taffetas.

Embroidered net and oriental lace founcings and bandings are lavishly used on inexpensive frocks with very effective results.

Nerves Are Exhausted

And nervous prostration or paralysis is creeping steadily upon you.

You hear of people suddenly falling victims of nervous prostration or some form of paralysis. But when you find that they have had months or years of warning.

They haven't slept well. There has been frequent attacks of nervous headache. Digestion has failed. They have been irritable, easily worried and excited and have found memory and concentration failing.

Had they but known that these symptoms tell of exhausted nerves or had they realized their danger they would have restored the feeble, wasted nerves by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great restorative treatment cures by forming new, rich blood and by rebuilding the wasted nerve cells. No medicine is more certain to prove of lasting benefit to the system. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

color, worked in fine black silk thread are said to improve the appearance of the complexion.

Blouses on the peplum and cascade style have, judging from the unusual variety, in evidence, found ready acceptance.

White is still the proper shade in gloves, but tans are also good form, and the various shades of taupe are growing in popularity.

Scarfs, small capes and short wraps are made of bright-colored taffeta. These will be popular to wear with the lingerie dresses.

The Pinch Hitter.
BY H. L. RANN.

The pinch hitter is one of the most melancholy figures in American history. He is the utility man of the modern baseball team, and is expected to attend a 111 rehearsals, double in brass and play any part from Uncle Tom to Simon Legree after he had received his last sad puncture. The pinch hitter is usually paid by the day, and there are days when he can't lay up a cent. If there were 500 entries in a beauty show the pinch hitter's number would probably be 499, but when there are any forcible hopes or tense situations to cope with he is usually there with several kinds of coping. When the game commences he is wrapped in tinfoil and tucked away on the player's bench until the last half of the ninth inning, when he is led out with an ash bat and an icy demeanor and requested to jolt the languorous spit ball into the far confines of space. If, after looking the goods over carefully, he picks out a two-base hit, he becomes a popular hero and is crowned with mild, five cent cigars. If he doesn't hit anything but the purpling circumference, he will be kept busy for several days picking pop bottles and other debris out of his physique. The pinch hitter has his eyes tested once a week, to see if his lamps are out of carbide, and if he can't read fine print at a distance of 800 yards without putting on his glasses he stands about as much show of breaking into the next game as a one-legged fireman in a hose-coupling contest. It is a pathetic sight to see a determined pinch hitter lean against an ill-shoot with a break in it like a T-joint in the kitchen sink, and after whiffing three loud and explosive whiffs retire noiselessly to the bench and receive the coarse encomiums of a manager who has just as like as not would not know a finger bowl from a jardiniere, but baseball is full of such mournful scenes.
