A word to those who wear "Twenty-five cent Glasses." Do you realize that by so doing, you virtually admit that twenty-five cents is the value you place upon God's greatest gift to you? There is no law to prevent you from injuring your eyes by using such glasses excepting, perhaps, the law of common sense. Of course you don't know why cheap glasses play such havoc with your eyes, and health generally, nor does the man who sells them to you know. An eyesight specialist can tell you, and if you would interest yourself to the extent of asking him to explain, you would never look through a pair of them. Anything more perfect or beautiful than the human eye would be impossible for man to conceive. Then, why, when physical aid is needed to enable it to perform its functions with greater ease, do you use cheap glasses or submit yourself to persons of questionable ability to suit you? When your eyes cry out for assistance, go to R. H. Trappnell, the Eyesight Specialist who will faithfully examine them and give you none but the best quality glasses if glasses are needed at all. Thousands are ready to testify to the great benefit received at his hands.—mar 18, eod, 14

AMBITION.

Ambition is a nondescript term. It may be bad or it may be good. If you say a man is ambitious, you will think of a man that is eager to excel in some departure of life. In most cases you will commend him for it, even before you know what his ambition is, and rightly so, for the spur of excellence (not competitive) is at the root of a lot of mankind's progression from the savage. But this man's ambition may be to become a clever swindler; or his ambition may be to have great knowledge and to become of benefit to his fellow-men. No one will hesitate to say that the latter ambition is certainly more commendable. But still the ultimate Ambition can be realized in various ways, and here we are faced with the absolute proof of Ambition's greatness, whether it be good or bad. No end justifies improper means. The man who deviates from the straight road, and zig-zags his course for temporary advantage, may by these means get to the top, but the same characteristics of his pathway are with him on Ambition's height, and act as he will, he will always be an example of that "vaulting ambition which overleaps itself."

There is a "sacred hunger of ambitious minds" that, reaching out always to the Highest, the Noblest, the Best, develops character and consequently Power. No temporary or transitory power, but a power of knowledge of self that knows no inclusion, that follows the Path of Right unquestionably. No question of expediency is ever allowed to influence a man of this ambition. And his actions need no persuasion of words. He is, and men are content to trust him.

But there is another ambition which is "the mind's immodesty." This is the ambition that insists on ruffling the surface waters in order to be seen and known. The ambition that is vulgar in its actions and that endeavors to make notoriety stand for eminence, and for the pure advertisement of self joins every Benefit Club, Lodge and Society that is possible.

Our acting Minister of Justice (for from no standpoint can it be said that he holds his position properly or according to the spirit of the Constitution) is an ambitious man. So far that description has been his greatest asset. He has talked, but distinctive action has waited till this time, and he has now made a decision that is not to his credit. The positions of emolument held by Ministers of the Government have always been and are always intended to be filled by the choice and by the will of the People. The Bonavista Manifesto of the Tory Party displayed prominently the sentiment of "Government by the People, etc.," and here we have these two men R. A. Squires and S. D. Blandford wilfully tearing the motto to pieces and flinging the pieces in the face of the people. Never has the opinion of the people been so outraged, and the two men who have allowed themselves to be the "puppets" in Morris's game have taken a step that can never be forgotten nor repealed. The opportunity was theirs to do the Straight thing, the Honest thing, but with the feebleness of morality characteristic of the Party with which they are associated, they have decided ignobly.

If they have a particle of self-respect, can they read without a blush of the strong and noble stand of Premier Asquith? He takes a position of emolument, practically only a transfer from another, and immediately, at a critical time, goes to the people for its confirmation. Squires and Blandford not only hold their positions unapproved by the people, but in defiance of them, because they were defeated five months ago at the Polls, and further, the Government of the day represents a minority of the electors in the Colony. Wake up, Newfoundland! No justification of Mr. Morris's action in filling these positions has been given by any of his papers, but every word of praise they give Asquith for his brave stand is a condemnation of Morris's weakness. Morris's advance is solely by reason of his cunning.

It is apparent often in his inability to answer a question or an argument in a direct manner. He has "got away" from the question so often now that he deceives no one. Nor does a pull on the lapel of his coat work any more. John Ruskin says that "cunning is the interest rendering of vulgarity, absolute and utter, with which I am acquainted."

The One to Own if You Can Own But One.

That is what a critical user of a "Globe-Vernicle" cabinet says of his equipment. Another says "It leaves nothing to be desired." Another says "So complete yet so concise." Another "Perfection as a filing arrangement." Another "It is really indispensable." Another "A surprising advance in handling records." Another "A welcome improvement in office conditions"—and so on. The extensive sale of "Globe-Vernicle" cabinets in St. John's is by no means as remarkable as the abundant evidence that it is on merit alone that these devices have earned such generous appreciation. For certain when you become a user you will be well contented with your adaptable and reliable outfit. Mr. Percie Johnson has your catalogue ready for the asking as well as other necessary details.

He hires Five to Help Spend Wealth. Hammond, Ind., March 17.—Mathias Constance, who received a letter from Greece saying he is only heir to an estate of $7,000,000, left to-day for Chicago with his five close friends, hired at a salary of $5,000 each a year to help him spend the money.

That is all they will have to do. Word of the estate came to Constance Saturday. He obtained credit for everything he wanted and exclaimed as he read the letter: "What will I ever do with so much money!"

When he went to work at $175 per diem to-day he told his five warm friends of his luck. They accepted his offer to go all over the world with him and help him spend his money.

Resents Downey's Attacks.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir,—Allow me as an Englishman to protest against the article on Lord Charles De La Poer Beresford in the Daily News, of March 20th, 1914; and also against the expressions used by Mr. Downey, M.H.A., as recorded in The Free Press of March 17.

I can assure the editor of the Daily News that "Poor Lord Charles," as he is pleased to call him, is not "climbing down" the ladder. One need only glance at the record of this brave seaman to realize what an important part he has taken in naval affairs. He was in command of the Condor at Alexandria in 1882; commanded the naval brigade at the battles of Abu Klea, Abu Kru, and Vettamah. The steamer Salta was taken by him to the rescue of Sir Charles Wilson and his party. He was naval A. D. C. to King Edward VII. when the latter as Prince of Wales went to India.

No, Lord Charles is no "misguided fallen," but a man loved by thousands, and admired by all who are fair-minded. Whether yawning is a sign of the lack of civility or not is not the point. Nor can we say why the First Lord was absent, but the editor of any paper has no right to imply that a gentleman has been indulging too freely because he makes reference to his long career in the British Navy. Your readers may not have read the words I complain of, and I give them here so that they may judge my protest fairly.

"If we may accept the report cabled, the feeding bottle referred to by Lord Charles was not the only bottle discussed during the afternoon."

Sir, what is the inference? We may not all agree with Lord Charles Beresford, but we may fairly resent an attack on his moral character, implied if not openly stated.

The second matter I wish to speak about is the reference made by Mr. Downey, M.H.A., to Dr. Lloyd. It reads as follows:—

"I am not prepared to state, sir, that the hon. member for Trinity left his country for his country's good, neither am I prepared to say that we have derived any material benefit from his residence here."

This, sir, is not what we expect from gentlemen in the House of Assembly. Dr. Lloyd has done a great deal of good for, and in this country, and had he stayed in his native land he would occupy a prominent position to-day. In England, we do not speak thus of Newfoundlanders, whether "great or rude, or otherwise; while in this country to-day there are many Englishmen who have sacrificed home, friends, and position, and who live isolated lives without hope of earthly reward.

I believe Dr. Lloyd is "a stranger, a man from England," and I believe he is "perhaps the most highly educated man" in the House of Assembly.

Yours truly,
ENGLISHMAN WHO LOVES THE TRUE NEWFOUNDLANDER.

To Dr. F. Stafford & Son,
Dear Sirs,—
I strongly recommend your Prescription "A" to all sufferers with Indigestion and Dyspepsia. I used all kinds of medicine and consulted various specialists without cure. I saw your Prescription "A" advertised in the papers and tried a few bottles and it made a perfect cure of me.

Dear Sirs,—
I am sending you 60 cents in stamps. Please send me one 50 cent bottle of Prescription "A", the 10 cents balance will pay for postage. You sent me a trial bottle a short while ago and it almost cured my wife and I think another 50 cent bottle will make a cure. I have tried doctors and all kinds of medicines but I don't believe that there is any medicine that can cure a bad stomach like Stafford's Prescription "A". I am more than thankful that you advertised this medicine. Please forward as quick as possible.
