GREAT WORK BEFORE EPWORTH LEAGUE

Rev. G. N. Hazen Reviews History of Organization and Its Possibilities.

In an address to delegates and members of the London District Epworth League and the London Epworth Leagues, last night, at the annual convention of the associations, with No. 3 section. Review of Work. Mr. Hazen reviewed the work and the Epworth Leagues, which were organized 25 years ago. The convention in the Colborne Street Church, which was attended by about 50 delegates from the London diswas one of many such conventions held throughout America, in celebration of the silver anniversary of Men of power and force, great in he life of the Dominion today." the peaker said, "got their start in the Epworth League." He pointed out Newton W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, as an example of one of the best products of the league. The Epworth League, Mr. Hazen said, has developed power of leadership, worked with the spirit of evangelism, and stands for patriotism and service. War May Heln

"The League may be given a chance develoop the spirit of evangelism, prough the present war," the speaker said, declaring that men were feeling now that they could not depend on mere fortresses or social rositions, but they are feeling the need of God. "There are people praying to God, today," said Mr. Hazen, 'who never prayed before, because their sons are perhaps dead or ying on a European battlefield." urged the convention to keep up the evangelical work in the next 25 years, a greater degree than in the past.

Get After Young People. Rev. S. T. Barttlett, the general secre-ary of the Methodist Church Young 'eople's Societies, advised the delegates o keep the leagues filled with young people, and to have the executive committee of each league, composed of the young blood of the church. The older people, he said, should, however, stand hind the organization with their symthy and helpful experience. Lights Masked. At night all lights were closely blanketted, and every effort was made to keep the fleet's movements under cover. The ships steamed in three lines with a crulser leading and one at the rear of each line. Ahead, on either side, and in the rear, sleuth-like cruisers scouted.

One night the cruisers "gathered in a couple of German colliers," which were endeavoring to slip past the squadron, nobserved. Owing to the fact that the fleet included several slow moving vessels the speed was limited to about ten knots an hour. When the fleet neared the English coast, it was met by a flotilla of torpedo boats and destroyers, and several of the latest type dreadnaughts. The crews were hanging in the rigging and were cheering and waving their hands. Vessels in the harbor tooted whistles and sirens.
