

American Eskimos Emigrated?

Eskimos have been discovered in Northwestern Siberia, who still retain the language and customs of the American tribes. It is concluded that they once emigrated from America to Asia.

GOOD MANNERS ON DECLINE
AMONG AMERICAN PEOPLE

Punctuality Is Essential to Successful Career of the Debutante.

ARE RESULT OF TRAINING

Good Manners Are Not a Sign of Insincerity, as Some People Insist.

By JULIA HOYT.

I have been quoted a number of times as speaking with a good deal of feeling about the gradual disappearance of manners. I do think that each year good manners are given less consideration. Everyone is in a terrific hurry, rushing madly whether they have anything to do or not! Undoubtedly good manners take time and trouble. It seems to me that they are quite worth it.

People in general are realizing the decline in manners, for I often hear it discussed. It is deplored by most people, but I have heard one or two trying to establish a defense for the brusqueness that is becoming more and more popular. Polished and formal manners, these people insist, are a sign of insincerity. They contend that the man of Latin races have delightful manners, but are not nearly as good sons and husbands as the "rough and ready American."

Result of Training.

This is a rather sweeping statement. However it may be, I do not think it proves that manners are dependent upon sincerity or insincerity. Good manners are the result of training. On the other hand, one often finds the most spontaneously charming manners in people who have not had the benefit of training, but who are sincerely kind and instinctively considerate. I am convinced that good manners can only add to the charm and pleasure of life. We cannot make others more comfortable without adding to our own comfort.

When a girl is old enough to be introduced into society, she can no longer be considered a child. It is supposed that she has already been well grounded in the rules of conduct. Goodness knows, our families begin to drum manners into our ears as soon as we are able to understand the English language.

Punctuality Essential.

The debutante, I believe should be very punctual with regard to answering invitations. If possible, they should be answered the next day—at the outside in three days' time. Shortly after being formally introduced at a certain house, she should leave her card on the mother and the daughters of the family who have "come out." Of course this is not necessary if she is a frequent and in-imate guest of the house. In any case, it is only once during the season.

Punctuality is another thing to be impressed on the young girl. There is nothing more irritating or unattractive than the girl who is always late. For that matter, lateness is irritating to anyone. I have noticed that generally it is the people who are "frightfully busy" over nothing to whom in reality time has no value. In a young girl it is inexcusable, and extremely bad taste.

It seems to me that good manners take somewhat the same place that discipline in small formalities takes in the army. You become slipshod in this, and you find yourself become gradually slipshod in other things.

A Military Example.

There was a well known story during the war about an English regiment famous for its splendid appearance and discipline. Officers and men were particularly proud of the high polish of the buttons on their uniforms. Shortly after the commencement of the war it was thought that time was too valuable to spend so much of it polishing buttons, and order was issued to that effect. In a short time it was noticed that the men were no longer keeping their boots as well as before; and soon, bit by bit, other details of discipline began to be overlooked. The regiment was deteriorating. An order was issued, again demanding the highly polished buttons, and the old standards of the regiment returned.

This story was told me by an officer of the regiment and I think it readily applicable to everyday life. Some of the demands etiquette made of us in years gone by have been relaxed, though they are still made in foreign countries. Details of conduct which seem unimportant and almost foolish I believe often have greater significance than is generally supposed. Gracious manners not only add charm to social intercourse, but exert an important influence on the national character and standards of life. The debutante, least of all, should disregard their constant practice. My advice to her is to remember that the niceties of good manners are more important than ever before. ## PERSONALS

Miss Beattie McCannus, Queen's avenue, is spending the week-end in Sarnia.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Baby, William street, are spending a few days in Hamilton.

Mr. William Halpin and Mr. George Waugh, 734 Lorne avenue, have left for California on an extended visit.

Miss Elsie McKim of Toronto, provincial inspector of technical schools, was an interesting visitor in London yesterday.

The Normal School was the scene of a jolly class party last night when the hosts and hostesses were the members of Form I.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Willis, Central avenue, left Thursday night for St. John, N. B., where they will make their home in future.

A. E. McAlpine, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. McAlpine, King street, has gone to Toronto, where he is attending St. Andrew's College.

Miss Jean Dawson of Edmonton, Alta., is expected in town next week and will be the guest of her cousin, Miss Marjorie Dawson, Duchess avenue.

Dr. F. L. Burdon, Waterloo street, is leaving tonight for San Francisco, where he will sail for Honolulu. He is returning to London the end of April.

Mrs. D. A. Fletcher and her children, Doris and Billy, of Standard, Alta., are guests with Mrs. Fletcher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips, St. George street.

Mrs. V. P. Cronyn was the hostess of a smart luncheon at the Kennels yesterday in honor of Mrs. Blair Russell of Montreal, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Marshall Graydon.

Miss Topley Thomas has issued invitations for a reading of Donna Bryn's Messer, Merco Polo, which she is giving at her studio, "Players' craft," Wolfe street, Wednesday evening.

Mr. J. H. Back and Mr. R. Darragh are leaving for Toronto where they will attend the convention arranged by the Eastman School of Professional Photography, at the Prince George Hotel, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

A number of military dances are being arranged in Military District No. 1. The 1st Battalion Oxford Rifles of Woodstock are giving a dance Thursday evening, and on Jan. 25 the Elgin Rifles of St. Thomas are giving a ball in the armories. Many are looking forward to these social events.

Bruce Riddell of Hyman street, who is leaving the city, was entertained at a delightful informal luncheon-party at the De Luxe Cafe on Friday, tendered to him by his friends of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Riddell is leaving to take up his residence in Hamilton, where he will enter the competition for the scholarship of the Canadian Academy of Artists. Among those present were E. J. Jenkins, R. E. Crouch, G. R. Sinclair, C. H. Jackson and R. P. Liddle.

An informal reception was held in the London Conservative Club rooms yesterday afternoon, in honor of the out-of-town members who attended the Meighen banquet. Spring flowers were arranged throughout the rooms, and fires burned in the open grates, making a cozy setting for the affair. Mrs. Arthur Meighen received the guests, assisted by her hostess Mrs. Frank White. Others assisting in the rooms were: Mrs. H. A. Winnett, Mrs. T. E. Robson, Mrs. J. G. Guymer, Mrs. Bugler and Mrs. Jack Dennis.

Mrs. Meighen Busy Woman
Husband Is Absent-Minded

Wife of Conservative Leader Proves Charming Woman and Good Mother.

"Here Arthur, are your gloves and scarf?"

And a charming little woman in a long seal-skin coat and pretty flowing hair, stepped from the Montreal train at 1 o'clock yesterday. It was Mrs. Meighen, wife of the Conservative leader, and "Arthur" was no other than the Right Honorable himself.

This snatch of conversation is characteristic of their lives together for Mrs. Meighen is the true wife and mother. She has taken no outstanding place among the club women of the country, devoting her whole time to her husband and family. She is always looking after "Arthur."

"And it is no small task she has, caring for three children and an absent-minded husband," was the comment of one who knows them both.

Spent Honeymoon Here.

Mrs. Meighen was glad to be in London, because it was here that she spent part of her honeymoon, when she and the Hon. Mr. Meighen were guests at the home of Fred McCutcheon.

"It was my honeymoon though, and I don't remember very much about it," she said humorously, when questioned yesterday.

Mr. Meighen seldom moves about the country unless he is accompanied by his very charming wife. Her gracious manner and her sweet smile have undoubtedly won him scores of supporters.

But Mrs. Meighen is not Mrs. Meighen's only care. She has three active children who take up a big share of her time.

"Won't you tell us something about your children?" asked the inquisitive interviewer. And the reply was entirely characteristic of Mrs. Meighen. "Why, if I once get started talking about my children I'll never stop."

And as she went on, her eyes were sparkling with interest.

Wife of the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, who with her husband, visited the city yesterday. She was guest of honor at an informal luncheon given by the women of the London Conservative Party.

It was in his second year at R.M.C., and comes home only for the holidays. But home is such a wonderful place. There he can go out in the kitchen at night and fry eggs and make toast.

"But don't put that in the paper," said his mother, as her thoughts flew to her formidable young son. "Max comes next and he is fifteen, and then there's small Lillian, only thirteen years old, who is enveloped on a huge apron periodically and sent into the kitchen to find out just how cook prepares the food and to help make some things herself. Every girl believes that every girl should be brought up to be a good housewife. She delights in looking after her home and family and has found in that a big enough interest in life. She is simply the Hon. Mr. Meighen's wife, and that alone.
