GOOD REASONS TO PASS BILL

Daylight Saving Bill Means Go to Bed
Earlier and Get up Earlier Thus Wasting No Daylight.

BETTER FOR ALL CLASSES.

OTTAWA, Mar. 20.—It is said that the members of the Dominion Parliament do not seem to regard very seriously Mr. Lewis' bill to save daylight. Perhaps they have not realized what it means. It will appear a measure of folly if attention is concentrated on the mere moving forward of the hands of the clock, but when one realizes that not merely the hands of the clock, but the whole business of the country is to be moved forward, so that men who get out of bed at 7 o'clock in the morning will rise at 6, and quit work at 5 in the evening, instead of 6, the merits of the daylight saving bill become clearer. In England, it is almost a certainty that the bill will pass, and there would seem to be equally good reasons for trying the experiment here.

Early to Rise
A bill to make people get up earlier in the morning and go to bed earlier at night, and depriving them of that virtuous feeling at present inseparable from these performances. This would be a cumbersome but explanatory name for Mr. Lewis' bill, and such a description should ensure its triumph. The bill, however, is not so simple. The originator of the daylight saving idea must be recognized in Mr. Wm. Willett, of Slough, London. Although no doubt there will be other claimants for the honor over the scheme proves a success. It was Mr. T. F. Fierce, M. P., who brought the bill before the British House, but let us salute Mr. Willett as the true father of the plan, and hear what he has to say about it. In a very interesting pamphlet, entitled "A Waste of Daylight," he says: "For nearly half the year, the sun is upon the land each day while we are asleep, and is rapidly nearing the horizon, having already passed its western limit, when we are wakened by the work of the day is over."

Wasted Light
Now, he says, if some of the hours of wasted daylight in Spring, Summer and Autumn could be withdrawn from the beginning and added to the end of the day, how many advantages would be gained by all and in particular by those who spend in the open air, when light permits them to do so.

MR. HAZEN HAVING UNPLEASANT TIME IN LEGISLATURE

Hon. Mr. Robinson and Hon. Mr. McKeowan Rub it into the Premier Who Already Shows Signs of Losing His Temper.

FORESHADOWED COMING LEGISLATION.

FREDERICTON, Mar. 19.—The debate on the address took up the whole day of the legislature this afternoon, and session and threatens to drag along another whole day. Premier Hazen took up most of the time with a lengthy and somewhat labored defense of the government from Mr. Robinson's criticisms. His remarks being punctuated at times by sharp display of temper. In conclusion he gave brief outline of some of the more important government legislation for the session, promising further reduction in school books, a medical commission to study the best methods of combating tuberculosis and announcing the government's intention of guaranteeing the bonds of the Drummonds to assist in the construction of a road to the Gloucester Iron mines. He intimated that the proposed amendment to the Liquor License Act would consist of a clause allowing a community to reject license by a majority of the voters cast. Instead of a majority of the whole number of voters as at present. Speaking of the agricultural policy he referred vaguely to projected improvements but gave no hint of their nature.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE IN CONNECTION WITH UNIVERSITY
FREDERICTON, Mar. 22.—A meeting of the University Senate was held this morning and was followed by a conference with the provincial government for an hour, starting at 2 o'clock. Those present at the meeting included Dr. Ingh, who presided; Senator Blair; Dr. H. S. Briggs; Judge McLeod; W. M. McLean, St. John; Haydock Coy. Judge Barry; J. D. Phinney and B. C. Foster of this city. George P. Hill arrived at noon from St. Stephen and will attend the adjourned meeting this afternoon. The senate discussed the question of the establishment of an agricultural college and came to the conclusion that it should be established in connection with the University. Two propositions were considered one being to use the old government house and the land adjoining for use as an agricultural college and an experimental farm and thus relieve the Normal School of part of its work and make it easier to accommodate the increasing number of students at that institution and at the same time have a short winter course for farmers. The other proposition was to use the University of New Brunswick farm for an experimental farm and illustration station. A new building with lecture rooms, etc., was to be used by the University.

ITALIAN DREW KNIFE IN FIGHT

Peter De Grace i g to Part Contestar. fabled by dved Stab on the Arm.

SENT UP FOR TRIAL.

What might have terminated in a serious row, and probably murder, was happily averted when Chief Crawford arrested two Italians at the St. Onge Hotel early Saturday afternoon. As it was, one man, Peter DeGrace, was stabbed on the arm and received a nasty cut. The trouble arose in the bar. One of the Italians and a young man named Wm. Lordon got into an altercation in reference to the merits of an Italian or a Frenchman, and soon both were in fighting trim. There were a number of men in the bar, friends of both the scrappers. The stabbing took place after the men had been ordered out of the house. It appears from the evidence that Vincenzo Ulisse was the name of the son of Italy which did the stabbing, and that Peter DeGrace, in endeavoring to separate the contestants was the man to get cut. Another Italian is charged with having drawn his knife, but was prevented from using it. Quite a crowd gathered when attracted Chief Crawford, who went and arrested both Italians and took them to the lockup. They appeared before acting Police Magistrate A. E. G. McKenzie, and the one who was accused of doing the stabbing was sent up for trial. The other man was allowed to go as nothing was proved against him. Witnesses stated that the Italian made a savage thrust at DeGrace and but for a quick action on his part by guarding his breast with his arm, he would undoubtedly have received a bad wound. The Italians quarreled here have thus far proved to be a quiet lot, and this is the first trouble they have been mixed up in. Citizens should refrain from aggravating them, as they are not bloodied and quick tempered and under violent impulses they might do injury in such scraps.

CHATHAM, Mar. 20.—Indignation is expressed here at the reports sent out to the effect that telegrams have been sent from Restigouche parties to Jas. Reid, M. P., complaining that Chatham lacked hotel accommodation and therefore was an unsuitable location for the Dominion exhibition.

The feeling on the North Shore is all for Chatham, and last night there were sent forward to Mr. Reid and others a telegram signed by prominent business men and hotel keepers emphatically denying that the accommodation was overtaxed at the time of the Chatham exhibition last fall.

MR. CROCKETT'S EVIDENCE DOES NOT AGREE WITH OTHERS

Q.—What, if any, instructions were given by your committee to Mr. Williams in regard to it.
A.—I told Mr. Williams to tell Mr. Crockett he would get the water under the same conditions as the Events got it.

Q.—What were these conditions?
A.—I always understood that an motor could be cut off at any time; and instructed Mr. Williams to tell that to his mind.

In his evidence on this matter, Mr. Williams said—
Q.—You might please state to me what, if any, instructions you received from Mr. Taylor, as chairman of the Committee in respect to this matter.

A.—The instructions were to notify Mr. Crockett that the motor would be granted provided that he would agree for the same condition that Events had at that time, namely, that they were liable to be shut off at any time.

Q.—Did you receive instructions to make any connection on these terms?
A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—Having received these instructions, what, if anything, did you do?
A.—I proceeded to make the connection.
