OPINION OF REV. DR. WITHROW.

The life of George Moore, Merchant and Philanthropist, should be in every Sunday-school in the Dominion. Young men especially will find it an inspiration to duty and to consecration of their powers to the glory of God and welfare of man that will make their lives sublime.

OPINION OF MR. JOHN MACDONALD.

The story as told by Smiles reminds one of the tales of the Arabian Nights. A lad of uncouth gait, rustic in dress and manner, and with a scanty education, goes from his native Cumberland to London, overcomes every difficulty under which he laboured, advances step by step until he takes his place (and that a foremost one) among the merchant princes of the great city; acquires influence as the result of his sterling worth, counting among his friends the great and noble of the land, including bishops, archbishops and members of the Royal Family, and yet never forgets the lowliness of his origin, and takes delight in aiding those whose beginnings were like his own. Acquires wealth by his unwearied industry, and scatters it freely in doing good, being as eminent as a philanthropist as he was as a merchant.

I know of few books which ought to have so salutary an influence in giving a healthful bias to the life of a young man, whatever may be the profession or business he purposes adopting.

To every merchant its study should prove invaluable; indeed it is difficult to imagine any merchant failing, who will follow the many lessons which the life of this extraordinary man is calculated to teach.

The book ought to meet with an enormous sale.

 Agents will find this a capital selling book, being both good and cheap. It should find a place in every home.
