

That those engaged in preparing, printing, and circulating papers, tracts, and other Christian literature may be divinely guided and see much fruit.

That teachers in colleges and schools may be able to lead their students to a love of the truth as it is in Jesus.

That the hearts of kings and others in high places of authority may be touched, and their great influence turned on the side of the Lord.

That the women who go to the Zenanas may be able to arouse an interest in the true salvation among those so long debased with frivolous superstitions.

That the hospitals may more than ever be made mighty auxiliaries in breaking down opposition and preparing the way for the Gospel.

That all orphanages and boarding schools may be very tenderly watched over by God, and may turn out many useful laborers.

That Christian villages may be examples of everything good to the surrounding towns among which they are set as a city on a hill.

That the Sunday school agency may be still more wonderfully owned of God in turning the minds and hearts of hundreds of thousands of the children and youth of non-Christian lands to Christ.

That God would send forth laborers into His harvest.

That the vast wealth of the present day, locked up in nominally Christian coffers, might be set free to bless the earth.

That young men and women debating the question of a missionary vocation might be led to a right decision.

That missionary secretaries and editors may have all the strength and wisdom their important and difficult positions require.

That missionaries on sick leave may speedily recover their alth so as to be able to return to their fields.
