SIR T. SPENCER WELLS, President of the Sanitary Institute, at their late congress, said that any great sanitary improvement must be the result of elaborate co-operation. Combined action of investigators, legislators, and administrators, was necessary; the work of investigation had hitherto, for the most part, been personal, and the waste of labour has been enormous. The Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons had done much. "Why," he asked, "should we not have a College of Health, which should show our appreciation of the gift of life, and our reverence for the Giver?"
