It is further to be understood that in determining the proper from the Colony, regard will probably be had to the comparatively advanced state of wealth and population in each Colony, and to the number of properly qualified candidates among whom the local authorities may have the opportunity, as vacancies occur of making a selection for Her Majesty's approval and confirmation through the Sceretary of State.

Accept Gentlemen my grateful thanks for your loyal, kind and affectionate Address.

And affectionate Address.

It is most gratifying to me to receive this testimony of your approval and confidence; and such a manifestation of your devoted allegiance to our Gracious Sovereign, and of your desire that the happy connexion which unites your destines with those of Great Britain may be perpetuated.

It is also highly satisfactory to me to observe that you concur in the opinion which I have expressed, that office ought in every instance to be given to the man heat qualified to render every instance to be given to the man best qualified to render efficient service to the State, and not to be prostituted for party purposes or the purchase of influence.

Like British subjects who have never been slow to defend their rights and liberties, and who would never bow to despotism, you are equally ready to sustain the prerogative of the Crown and Constitutional Government of her Majesty in this portion of her dominions, and reject tyranny and oppression from whatever quarter and in whatever guise it may appear.

Of your favourabless the towards me and your kind

Of your favourable sentiments towards me and your kind aspirations on my behalf, I shall ever retain a lively thankfulness; and if I should be instrumental in promoting the welfare of Canada, I shall go down to the grave deeply grateful to the Almighty for the property of the state of the st Almighty for this addition to the numerous mercies which He has deigned to shed on an unworthy servant.

STATUE OF SIR CHARLES METCALFE. - The London Times says that Mr. Bailey, the Royal Academican, has just completed a model for a statue of Sir Charles Metcalfe, late Governor of Jamaica, to be erected opposite the Senate house, in Spanish Town, in that Island. The height is nine feet, and the costume a military one. The subscription raised is upwards of 3,000 guineas, but as this sum will be sufficient to over the expenses of the statue and pedestal, a fresh subscrip tion is in course of collection, in order to raise a classic temple ever the figure. A bust in marble of Sir Charles has likewise been commissioned for Calcutta.

THE HONOURABLE MR. VIGER. - We are indebted to the Montreal Gazette for the following extract from the introduc-tory remarks to a pamphlet by Mr. Viger, just published, entitled, "La Crise Ministérielle et M. Denis Benjamin Viger," The sentiments are just what might be expected to drop from

The sentiments are just what might be expected to drop from the pen of a French gentleman, such as, with all our points of difference, we consider Mr. Viger to be:—

In a body, a people, a government, even more than in an individual, the end does not justify the means. While the question is the defence of their rights, the union of the people, in order to be of some advantage to them, ought to have for its basis a principle just and moral, something legal and constitutional. The same should be said of the means which they employ to sustain them. I was convinced that the proceedings to which I made opposition, not having this character, the results of them could not be other than pernicious.

All the proceedings of the Ministers were founded on the permission which they supposed, with respect to the subjects of deliberation, which they are bound by oath to keep secret, to give their avalence of the subjects of the subject of the s o give their explanations on one side, on the other, cuments, too well known to make it necessary to notice them

But there was no such permission, the Ministers haden the means to obtain it.

In supposing it real, even in writing, (which no man has pretended), given without reserve, they could not make use of it, without losing sight of their duty; they had even, instead of permission, the real of the country of the cou Permission, the reply of the Governor, which ended in a formal Protest against the contemplated mode of explanation.

With respect to the documents laid before the House, in opposition to all or the House, in the House in the opposition to all rule and parliamentary usage, the House had no right to acknowledge them. In other respects, they could not, under whatever plea they assumed. Turnish a pretext, even barely plausible, to the address demanded by the partizans of the Ministers in their favour.

Above all There is sixted that attempts should not be made.

Above all, I have insisted that attempts should not be made to constitute evident errors, principles; that the forgetfulness of solemn obligations, even of the most holy duties, could not

From the above statements it will be perceived, that during These were some of the motives for raising my voice against the three years previous to the Union of the Provinces, there at demand. It will be seen if I have failed to furnish proof of the truth of what I have advocated. I believe I may say that I have furnished it to a demonstration.

Were sold in Opper Canada, sixty-six thousand acceptance on the actual receipts was a little more than eight per cent.

The expense of collecting in Lower Canada for the last six months is truly ridiculous. We are told by "Canadia" himself that the cost of receiving £75 was £431!!!

In what way such extravagant expenditure could have been incurred for the mere receiving of monies due, and to collect which no efforts have been made, with the exception of a few circulars being issued by some of the District Agents, is to me incomprehensible. But the lamentable fact nevertheless stares us in the face, that these Lands, set apart for the maintenance of Religion, are greatly mismanaged; and it therefore becomes the duty of the Governor General to institute an immediate enquiry into the cause of such gross mismanagement and shameful extravagance.—Correspondent of British Whig.

[The above statement cannot fail in rousing every Churchman and friend of religion to an active co-operation in the efforts now making by our venerable Bishop to save, from sacrilegions destruction, the remnant that is left of the Church's

This contrast clearly shows the very decided preference given to the system of leasing by the majority of emigrants, and although it may not immediately tell so beneficially for the exchequer of the company, there is no ground to believe that it will not make a better ultimate return. It is scarcely necessary to add, that the capital of the majority of the emigrants is very limited, and that, by the leasing system they are able to reserve what they would have to advance by purchase to buy stock, by which means they are curing hams. The ingredients for curing is the quantity to be used on four hams:

Mix together one pound of fine salt, two pounds of good brown sugar, and two ounces of saltpetre pounded fine; then mix together a quarter of an ounce of cloves, a quarter of an ounce of mace, and half an ounce of nutmegs, all powdered. Add the spice to the salt, &c., mixing them thoroughly put them into a pot over a slow fire, and stir them till they become very dry and hot, which should be in about two minutes. Be careful not to have the fire too quick, or to keep them too long over it, lest the sugar should melt. Afterwards divide this mixture into four equal parts, and rub one of the portions, a little warm, on each side of the four hams, which should previously be wiped quite dry with a clean cloth. Next lay the hams, with the rind down, in a clean salting tub, and eep them thus six or seven days. At the end of that time, take the hams out of the tub; and, to the pickle that remains in it, add two gallons of water, stirring it well. Then pour the liquid into a large pot. Next, stir in two quarts of molasses, and two ounces more of saltpetre; put the pot over the fire, and boil and skim the liquid till it is perfectly clear. Afterwards, let it stand to get quite cold. Return your hams to the salting tub, (first making it very clean,) pour the pickle over them, and let them lie in it three or four weeks. Then smoke them eight days-with the shank or bone hanging downwards. Corn cobs make a good fire for smoking hams. - Ib.

Of scarlet fever, on Monday the 22nd ult., at his residence, Georgina, William Bourchier, Esq., Commissioner in the Royal At her residence on Lake Eric, near Dunnville, Niagara At her residence on Lake Eric, near Dunnville, Niagara District, C. W., on Monday the 22nd ult., Mrs. Christina McGregor, relict of Lieut. Colonel McGregor, C. B., late of Her Majesty's 59th Regiment of Foot.

On the night of the 1st instant, by burning, five children of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Lockwood, of the Township of Camden.

This fire, so melancholy in its results, was communicated from an ash-box which stood near the door. Some of the children were in bed, and while the others were making preparations to save them, the fire raged so fiercely at the door that they found it impossible to get out. There were six children in the house. The second went into the buttery, and before the fire reached this part of the house, the parents, who previously were absent, returned in time to save her. She alone was left to tell the sad tale of her sisters.

The parents are very respectable members of the Church of England, sober and religious, and highly esteemed by society in general, and particularly so by their deeply sympathizing paster. In their bereavement they have the condolence of all their mergh-bours and friends; and sad as it is, they have this consolution, that while they walked in the ways of righteousness themselves, and thus pointed out the Christian's course to others, they also "trained up their children in the way in which they should go." They were an exemplary family, as one who had many opportunities of witnessing their conduct can testify; but as the "righteous are often taken away from the evil to come," we do not mourn for the departed as those "without hope."

The ages of the children are as follows: —The eldest, nearly 13; the second, escaped without much injury; the third, about 8½; the fourth, 6; the fifth, about 4; and the sixth, 2 years. old; all very superior children in appearance, and in general promise. — Communicated.
