WEEKLY IRISH LETTER.

The Land Purchase Scheme-Its Merits and Demerits-Progress of the Migration

> OFFICES OF THE IRISH NEWS AGENCY,) LONDON, S. W., June 7, 1884.

Nothing could be more characteristic of the change in the position of Ireland than the manner in which the purchase scheme of the Government has been received. Such a proposal as that made by Mr. Trevelyan would have been hailed with an outburst of rejoicing a few years ago as a boom of proportions so large and so hopeful as no words could possibly exaggerate; now its reception is not only cool, but the few opinions that have been expressed upon it up to the present are rather antagonistic than otherwise. In fact, Mr. Trevelyan made statements in his own spoech which will best explain the sceptical attitude that has been taken up by the tenants. The fact is that the landlords have been reduced to a state so forlorn by the joint action of the Land League, the Land Act, and the wicked extravagance of their ancestors that the tenants think it well to allow them to have a little more of this trying experience before relieving them from their difficulties by buying their land. It can certainly be prophesied that in its present form the Bill will not be allowed to pass. The landlords, of course, profess not to be satisfied with the measure; but everybody knows that in their present desperate position, they are ready to grasp at anything that gives them a chance of ready money. The chief omission from the Bill is, of course, all mention of the leaseholders or of the amendment of the Healy clause; and the tenants, therefore, if they bought under this Bill, would be buying in many cases as the property of the landlord what they regard as their own. Unless some concessions be made on this point, the bill will be strongly opscheme is the character of the local body for a plot, carried out with characteristic cuming whose approval schemes of purchase are to wait. At first sight, the election of half the board by the elected guardians would seem to imply a fair representation of tenants; but that is only on the surface. The landlords help to elect the elected Guardians, as well as to form the entire or officio guardianship of the Boards, and in these elections the landlords have a grossly unjust preponderance. For instance, it is quite common for one landlord to have six votes, and he is allowed to give these votes by proxy. He may be at the waters in Germany, at the gambling table in Monaco, or he may have a ranch in Texas, or a sheep-walk in Australia: and all the same he can exercise through another the right to vote. In this way a Conservative agent has sometimes had as many as a thousand votes in his single hands, and has, in fact, commanded the entire election of several wards even in the City of Dublin. At the present moment, for instance, there is a Conservative majority South Dublin Union, which constitutes itself one of the most offensive as well as one of the most active agencies in fraudulently defeating the wishes of the people in the Irish metrepolis. Thus, lately, the South Dublin Union passed a resolution which, by fixing the collection of taxes at an earlier period than usual, was intended to disfranchise a large number of the poorer citizens and so delay the capture of the city by the National Party. Another small fact will illustrate the abuses in the present system. The bitterest Orangeman in Dublin is Mr. Join Byrne, formerly a Catholic, and ferocious with all the zeal of the neophyte. This gentleman, having served his party dili-gently and unscrupulously for years, was ap-lation. The action of the government in this This gentleman, having served his party dilipointed to the position of Collector-General, a highly paid office in Dublin. He entered into some fraudulent transactions under the Arrears Act, was detected by the keen eye of Mr. Healy, and the Government were principles have sen cought in the general forced to dismiss him. One of Mr. plane, and deponder the conduct of voting for the Guardiaus is still by ballot, and tachment from Conservative principles of Byrne's first steps after he was expelled from office was to get re-elected for Nationalist with the disappearthe South Dublin Union where he used to be ance of the bankrupt and impo-a power before his elevation to office, and tent landlor t from his social supremacy, is where he is a power once more. Again, the in many parts of the county where the tenants are not yet fully alive to their rights, the ants are not yet fully alive to their rights, the up to the present, thought their fortunes and open voting is made a means of intimidatheir lives bound up with the maintenance of tion by the landlords or the police. It will be seen from these considerations in how small a degree the elected Guardians can be taken as representative of the farmers. If this be pointed out to the Government their reply of course will be that they must take such machinery as is at their disposal; and the counter-reply probably the Irish Party will make is that they had better then wait with their Parchase Scheme until they have reformed the mode of electing Poor Law Guardians. Another point which raises some suspicion in the minds of the leaders of the farmers is the limit which is fixed to the amount to be expended by the Treasury. As your readers will know, that limit is twenty millions in ell, and five millions yearly. It is quite evident that such a sum will convert into owners but a very small percentage of the farmers of Ireland. The percentage to be so converted will form a special class, and the obvious ground for their selection over their fellows will be the necessity of the landlord to sell. What does this mean? It means that the only land-lords who will be bought out are the landlords who are in the greatest embarrassment; or, in other words, the State gives just so much money as will get rid of the hard cases among the landlords; and, by so doing, will remove the deadlock in the land purchase market, and once more restore to all the landlords in Ireland the fictitious value to their proporty which over-competition in Irelandal ways produces. Now, it is plainly the interest of the farmers that the deadlock should not be reof the landlord has—to use a historic phrase of Mr. Parnell—"touched bottom." That period has not yet arrived. There is one consideration to be always borne in mind with regard to the value of the landlords' property-viz.: that time must steadily diminish it in the present circumstances of Ireland. Everybody now knows that the party of Mr. Parnell will be largely reinforced at the next general election within the last few years, that they have scarcely a friend left in any political party. Some of the older generation of Conservatives still stand by them from the force of tradition, and the idea that the interests of the Irish and the English landlord are bound Conservative ranks—that the interests of British Conservatism have been too long allied to the corpse of privilege in Ireland. The desertion by a hundred Conservatives on the amendment excluding Ireland from the franchise, is a most significant proof of the hold this sentiment has now upon the party generally. It is, therefore, quite plain that the two English parties will be ready to come to terms on the land question, with an

Irish party which can command divisions. and neither of them will make the slightest scruple of throwing over the landlords as the Story of a Pretty Woman Who Has Been inevitable Jonah in a period of triumphant inevitable Jonah in a period of triumphant democracy.

It will, of course, belunderstood that all these views are set forth in no spirit of dogmatism. There has been no meeting of the Irish Party since the vacation began; and therefore, the mind of the Party is not yet made up. It is noticeable, too, that in all the references to the question in the meetings held in Ireland during the recess, the tone has been one of extreme reserve. It is also necessary to add that the attitude of the party toward the Government measure will not be that taken up by what are called the Nationalisers. Their real though not always avowed objection to the purchase schemes of the Government is, that it would lay the foundations of peasant propriety which apparently they consider a more pestiferous evil than foreign rule; for if they can but succeed in getting as many adherents to their craze as will suffice to make dissension, the perpetuation of foreign rule unaccompanied by Nationalisation of the Land would be the inevitable result. On this subject, it should be said that no recent event has given so much encouragement to the Irish leaders as the perfect appreciation of the motives of the factionists at home which is to be found in the speeches and writings of the friends of Ireland in America. The public opinion of the Irish in America is regarded as the most highly trained and intelligent of any Irish opinion in the world; and hence the satisfaction at its steadiness before recent attacks on the union and solidity of the Irish ranks at home. With reference to recent corrections of statements by Mr. Sullivan, President of the American League, in reference to the proceedings before the National Conference preceded the establishment of which the National League, the time has not yet come for giving the history of the two eventful days before that gathering. When it does come, a good many people both at home and abroad will be rather surprised Another objection raised to the at the narrow escape of the organization from and bad faith, by which the Factionists were to have been given a charter for their efforts to produce disunion. Mr. Parnell had not at that period fully recognized in all probability the evil that was being done; and with a perfect loathing for anything like dissension or personal quarrels — in which he is distinguished from many of his political predecessors in the lead of Irish movements -he was probably willing to make sacrifices of a large kind to keep men from com-plaining of unjust treatment. If Mr. Parnell illowed himself at that period to take the optimist view of his hidden and dangerous enemies, there is no reason to suppose that he does so now. His speech at Drogheda certainly is plain enough as an expression of his views as to Nationalisers.

The Migration Company is making steady progress. As your readers will have already learned, Mr. Parnell is spending his Whit suntide holidays in surveying an estate which has been offered for sale. He can, it is pretty well known, have this, or any other estates he likes for 17 years purchase; but it is very doubtful if he will consent to give so high a price. The remarkable thing in connection with this business is the extraordinary eagerness with which it is being taken up by the bishops and priests, prelates who have rarely, if ever, appeared before in political or semipolitical movements, now organise and address public meetings on the question; and they, as well as their priests, give practical proof of their confidence in and sympathy with the movement by taking up large numbers of shares. The secret of this is that the proportions which emigration is taking is matter is wielding an classes of the nation into a national whole. Many of the Protestant shopkeepers for etample, who have never before been able to see their way to national darm. and producing an already visible effect in the demany sections of the community which have, British despotism. THEY KNEW NO NORTH, NOR SOUTH, NOR EAST, NOR WEST.

On Tuesday (always Taesday), May 13th, 1881, as is usual the veteran Gen'ls G. T. Beauregard, of La., and Jubal A. Early, of Va., met at the 168th Grand Monthly Drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery. At noon they began the labor of distributing wealth promisenously, and ladled it out right and left, North, South, East and West. Ticket 10,842 drew the Fir t Capital Prize of $75,-000; it was sold in tifths at $1 each - one went to B. J. Dorsey, 33 Jackson street, Memphis, Tenn.; another to Isaac Heines, an engineer on the M. & C. R. R., collected through Messrs, W. R. Rison & Co., Huntsville, Ala. The Second Capital of $25,000 drawn by 25,755, sold in fifths—one to H. C. Drinkle, Lancaster, Ohio: another to Alex ander King, Waverly, Ky. The Third Capital, $10,000, drawn by 64,612, sold in fittles one to T. S. Ashby. Sherman, Grant Co. The other Capital Prizes scattered everywhere. And these famous warriors will do it all over again on Taesday. July 15th. and any one can learn all about it by inquiring of M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La.

ANJESTHETICS FOR WHOOPING COUGH.

The American Practitioner gives the statement of Dr. W. C. Webb, a Kentucky physilieved, but should continue until the property | cian, viz., that from the treatment of nearly 200 cases of whooping cough, he concludes That | croton chloral to be by far the most valuable single remedy for its relief, being well borne by children. He states that, to affect the disease, it must be given in decided doses; a child twelve months old will bear one grain of the medicine every four hours, throughout the twenty-four, -not less than this to be given during the first week, after which the cough is usually so much relieved that few —and a party of seventy-five men can extort pretty well what they like—especially on the land question. The Irish landlords have become so palpably and irretrievably impotent night; doses for children ten years old being two grains every four hours.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, hav ng had placed in his hands by an East India the Irish and the English landlord are bound up with each other. But it is one of the principles held most strongly, and over and over again avowed by the Fourth Party—who are, of course, the men of the future in the Conservative ranks—that the interests of Nervous Consulting after having tested it. TATTOOING A BEAUTY.

[From the Cincinnati Enquirer.] It takes all kinds of people to make up the world, and among the vast number on this continent there are about half a dozen tattoocd ladies. Within the past year three of them have visited Cincinnati. Mlle. Dora—who is now in California—Miss Irene Woodward and Mlle. Grace, the young lady who recently made her here with Uncle Joe Robinson's show. Grace was a "work of art" from the "studio" dio" of Professor Thomas. The professor has been "in the business" for over thirty years, and he is a veteran in his peculiar line In about two weeks the assembly of tattooed beauties will be increased by one who is really the handsomest woman who has yet undergone the painful operation of be tattooed. The old adage of "practice makes perfect" is one which is adapted even to the enterprise of filling a woman's skin with different colored inks." "Mlle. Aimee," the stage name of the lady in question, is profiting by the knowledge revealed through former experiments, and if the indelible pictures which she has gained by a siege of suffering most intense can be termed artistic, they are certainly entitled to be so called. "Aimee" is not a Cincinnati girl, neither is yet in the category of those whose hearts are free from encumbrance. She is married. This is given in kindness for the benefit of the youths who will, no doubt, be attracted by a face which six weeks of a terrible experience has not robbed of its beauty. She is petite, and speaks with all the evidences of refinement. Last evening an Enquirer reporter met her at her room in the Washington Park Hotel, on Twelfth street. Her husband was there. "Miss Aimée" had no hesitation in saying that had she known of the agony which attended such an undertaking she would not now have been so near a completed animated panorama. The professor is a cute one. When he began he did his first work on her wrists, and thus gave her an insight of the pain she would be obliged to endure. With her wrists encircled by bracelets which only death can efface, there was no withdrawing from the contract, and she had borne the suffering ever since. From two to three hours a day was the time which the Pro-fessor occupied in his work, and often when his task ended she has been so exhausted that her husband had to take her and carry her to bed. Her skin is quite thin; in fact, the professor remarked that she lost nearly as much blood every day as Grace did during her trial. Upon Aimée's body are many new figures-designs of her own conception. The pictures are not crowded together, but are generally clear and distinct. A necklace and locket decorate her roses with the stems in the hands of winged shield, a badge of the G. A. R., star and crossed cannon, and a series of three hearts, in which the initials "I.M.A."-her own-are inscribed, and the Goddess of Liberty, are her left arm Faith, Hope and Charity, a bechive, a figure of Young America, a small cross wreathed with flowers, and a ballet dancer are portrayed. The bracelets about her wrists are not alike. One represents a cameo and the other a floral chain. The large figures of an American and an Indian girl are upon her back, and below them is a ship and a constellation of stars, which must needs be hidden from the world. The work upon her legs is most elaborate. On her left is an American coat of arms, liberty clasping the stars and stripes, a lighthouse and a ship in the distance. On the calf is a tree, about which two serpents are a pretty picture of a sailor and his sweet-heart. He is kissing his love good-by. The village he is leaving is shown on one side, and the ship on which he leaves is shown on the other hand. the other. An English coat of arms, the emblem of the Order of Elks, the crucifixion, a vessel and globes are among the figures on her right leg. Above that knee is a tomb, either side of which is a woman. This is just outlined, and is not yet completed. Aimee will make her professional debut here very

THE LATEST DYNAMITE HOAX. It was known that a certain smart U. young man had studied chemistry for six months; had ordered a sectioned hand-bag and sailed for England. It was subsequently ascertained that he had made several visits to a clock and watch maker before leaving. cable was used to cause his arrest on arrival, and a trio of metaphysicians were summoned to open the bag, which, in view of probabilities, were regarded as patriotic heroism of the highest order. The official verdict reported 23 samples of Johnston's Fluid Beef, 10,600 circulars. 4 shirt collars, and a box of tooth-picks .-Hull Bad het,

WHAT WILL BURST A GUN.

In bravado a young man placed the muzzle of a gan under the water and fired the charge. The result was the bursting of the barrel near the breech and the mutilation of his hand. Another placed and held the muzzle of his piece square against a piece of plate windowglass, and fired the charge-powder and a bullet. The glass was shattered, so was the gun barrel. Another instance was that of an experimenter who had heard that a candle could be fired from the barrel of a gun through an inch board. He drove a candle into the muzzle of the gun, fired, and the explosion split the barrel almost its entire length, and did not even drive the candle from the muzzle. Still another burst of a gun barrel was caused by the use of wet grass for a wad, well rammed over a charge of shot. - Scientific American.

OUT IN ARIZONA.

Hon. A. W. Sheldon, Associate Justice, Supreme Bench of Arizona Territory, writes as follows: "It affords me great pleasure to say, from my personal observation, and you know the scope of such has been very extended, that St. Jacobs Oil is the great and wonderful conqueror of pain, the sovereign cure for all bodily aches and pains, and I cheerfully bear this testimony."

DARWINISM.

In an address to the students of Edinburgh University, on Darwinism, Professor Virchow recently expressed his belief that no relic of any predecessor of man had yet been discovered. He said: "In my judgment, no skull hitherto discovered can be regarded as that of a predecessor of man. In the course of the last lifteen years we have had opportunities of examining skulls of all the various races of mankind—even of the most savage tribes— and among them all no group has been ob-served differing in its essential characters from the human type." He cautioned the students against loose speculation on this subject, saying that "every man who goes be-yond the sphere of observation becomes a transcendentalist, and transcendentalism has thinks the Acid Phosphate is of much benefit always been dangerous science."

BLOODY DUEL FOR A MINISTER'S DAUGHTER.

Hor Springs, Ark., June 19 .- Two young men named Lem Dishowan and Peter Lewis attended the Baptist Church of a settlement six miles from here on Sunday with the avowed purpose of taking home the minister's young daughter, and when Lewis moved from his own into the minister's family pew, while the sermon was in pro gress, Dishowan drew his revolver opened fire on him. Lewis returned the fire. and congregation made rapid exit by way of doors and widows. Neither was hurt, and both being disarmed, they agreed to go into the woods and fight it out with fists. Yesterthe woods and fight it out with fists. day they and their friends met for this pur pose, and after both Lewis and Dishowan had been thoroughly searched for arms and were about to proceed to the woods, the girl who was the cause of the fight, desired to speak privately with Lewis for a moment, which was granted. While the party were awaiting the result of the fist fight a pistol shot was heard from the direction of the scene of conflict. The crowd hurried to the spot, and found Dishow-an lying on the ground, dying from a shot through the lungs. He said that he was get-ting the better of Lewis, when the latter drew a Derringer quickly from his boot-leg, and shot him. The girl had placed the wea-pon there during her brief conference with Lewis just before the fight. Lewis may be lynched.

A QUEBEC MAN DROWNED.

MATTAWA, June 18 .- A man was found drowned in Ottawa River here to-day. He is supposed to be one Louis Oullett, who was employed on the C. P. R. as laborer at Brown's Creek, and who came here to the hospital in November. He jumped from the window of the hospital on the night of November 22 and has not been heard of since, although diligent search was made. The man found to-day corresponds with the description given by the Sisters in the hospital. Oullett is 18 years old and is supposed to belong to St. Jean Port Joli.

SOCIALISM IN RUSSIA.

BERLIN, June 19 .- It is stated here that Russia has decided to appoint a special military council, to be presided over by the Grand Duke Nicholas, the heir apparent to the throne, who recently became of age, to take measures to prevent the spread of socialism in the Russian army, but that the Grand Duke proposed such rigorous measures that even the chief of police deprecated the adoption thereof. The socialist newspaper Profe-tariat, published at Warsaw, says the police have searched the factories at Warsaw, Bodz and other centres, and arrested a great many workmen charged with being anarchists. It adds that the Government is convinced that socialist doctrines have become much more widely disseminated of late.

CLICKING.

Many horses have the unpleasant habit of striking the toes of the hind shoes against the fore shoes. It is a fault belonging to some of the best horses as well as the worst, and most frequently occurs with young horses, they often clicking on the turf or soft ground, and not on the road. It arises from the too great length of stride by the hind leg, the fore foot being unable to get out of the way in time; therefore, anything which detains them, such as a soft or heavy soil, aggravates the fault. To prevent make the hind shoes square at the toe, leaving the toe of the crust somewhat projecting to receive the blow instead of the shoe. It sometimes happens that, from the repetition of these blows, the crust is worn so thin at the toe as to produce or threaten lameness, in which case this plan of shoeing is to be abandoned, and we must put up with the noise to avoid the greater evil. Some times when a square-tood shoe fails to pre-vent clicking, one pointed at the toe will succeed, probably because there is so small a point of contact, and going within or by the side of the fore shoe.

- A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY. A FATHER KILLS HIS DAUGHTER

PARIS. June 18 .- A shocking and unique tragedy is reported. The principal actor was M. Anglicus, a native of Belgium, who had been established for some years as a mer-chant at Calais and had become rich. He was past the middle age and was a widower until recently, when he married a dashing young lady belonging to one of the bourgeoise families of Calais. M. Anglicus had one daughter, who was nearly as old as her new stepmother, and the two young women failed to agree. Mme. Anglicus appears to have been tyrannical and overbearing to the last degree, and was sustained in all her harsh-ness by her husband, who was foolishly infatuated with his wife and deaf to all the com plaints of his daughter. Finally Mllc. Anglieus could no longer endure this misery of her home and she fied. Her father pursued and found her at a small botel, where she had taken refuge with the intention of remaining there until she could procure a situation as governess or companion. M. Anglicus implored his daughter to return, but the young lady steadily refused, and in the heat of the discussion she applied a horrible epithet to her stepmother. This terribly enraged M. Anglicus, who drew the blade of a sword-caue which he carried and plunged it into her back. The aimwas deadly, and the blow so forcible that the weapon passed entirely through the young lady's body, its point projecting from herleft breast. She died almost instantly in the arms of her murderer, who had no sooner committed the horrible deed than he was overwhelmed with horror and remorse. He threw himself upon the body of his dead child, embracing her with passionate caresses, and tearing open her dress, he kissed the wound from which the blood was pouring, and vainly tried to staunch the flow with his lips. In the meantime his cries alarmed the people of the house, who summoned the police and had the murderer arrested. The story of his crime soon became known on the street, and the police. in removing him to the prefecture, had great difficulty in preventing his being lynched by the indignant citizens.

high authority, in a recent article, says:
We are especially anxious to avoid the charge of being medical alarmists. A respected contemporary has been in the habit of crying "Wolf!" so often that the lips of the laity are apt to curl when they read medical warnings. Even a scientific grandmother may grow too garrulous. But we have formed such a strong opinion as to the deleteriousness of the growing and insiduous habit of inhaling cigarette-smoke, that we must risk the sneers of the youthful reader. Any one can convince himself of the reality of the effect of inhaling cigarette-smoke on the organism. Let him smoke an ordinary Turkish eigarette while walking, and at some distance from a meal, inhaling the smoke well into the bronchial tubes. if, before he has finished his eigarette, he does not find his head grow dizzy, or his heart begins to thump, or his fingers tingle, we shall be quite ready to congratulate him one the possession of an exceptional organism Whether the effect is due to an impression on the termination of the vagus, or whether the active principal of the tobacco is absorbed, and carried straight to the heart in the bloodcurrent, we shall not undertake to decide; we only describe the fact. The effect may be transient; but we do not think that an effect so often repeated as it is in the case of the confirmed inhaler can fail to exert a permanent injury.

SAD RESULTS OF PRACTICAL JOKING. New York, June 18 .- Among the passengers on the West Shore train which arrived last night, was a party of musicians connected with Buffalo Bill's combination. Most wore in a jolly mood, and amused themselves during the trip by poking fun at each other. As the train was nearing Fair View, N. J., Henry Dunker, one of the party, was asleep. He was roughly aronsed by one of his companions, who, in a joking way, accused him of robbing him Dunker denied the accusa tion, but his friend persistently demanded the return of the money. Finally his accuser drew a revolver. Believing his friend to be in earnest, Dunker became frightened and leaped through the window of the car. The train, running forty miles an hour was stopped,, and Dunker, bleeding from wounds in his head, was picked up and taken to the hospital. His wounds are believed to be
