

vince, which, unlike exhaustible and impoverishing placer diggings, will bring population, wealth and permanency of occupation into the country.

The public are invited to examine the cabinet of ores as classified in this catalogue, whilst mine owners and all who are interested in exhibiting the mineral resources of British Columbia, are again solicited (see first page) to send specimens of interest from their respective localities, which will be properly displayed and catalogued in the next (3rd) edition.

I kindly thank those who have contributed specimens and otherwise assisted me in making this collection of minerals the most complete and attractive in the Province.

J. KURTZ.