Who Is Responsible for Smashing the Treaty?

Jubilation reigned in some quarters when the United States Senate's emphatic rejection of the treaty of Versailles came as a sensational climax of one of the most bitterly fought political battles in our history. It may have been a victory, and the destroyers of the treaty and the League of Nations "may exult in their triumph." but, retorts the Springfield Republican (Ind.), "they will go into history having constructed nothing and selfishly leaving the world to its darkness and woe." Opposing this view, the New York Sun declares that "there never was anything more wrong, more ridiculous, more preposterous, than to maintain that the war-was going on, and must go on until the United States Senate and the American people consented to swallow Mr. Wilson's pernicious league of nations." In fixing the responsibility, the pro-league Rochester Times-Union (Ind.) says that the "United States Senate, under the bankrupt leadership of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, has killed the peace treaty," but Republican papers like the Philadelphia North American and New York Tribune lay the responsibility for the failure of the treaty at the president's own door, in effect charging him with "infanticide."

Under the heading "The Rejection of the Treaty," THE LITERARY DIGEST in its issue for November 29, prints as its leading article a summary of public opinion in the United States as expressed in newspapers of all shades of opinion. The article covers every phase of the controversy over the treaty and makes very clear how the country regards the Senate's action.
