Reid, who appeared for Wood, asked for an adjournment until the court of appeal gives its decision in the case of Judge Morson, against whom judgment was given by Judge Macgillivray of Ontario County. It is understood that the city has agreed to indemnify Judge

Morson for any costs he may be subject to in appealing in order that the question of the right of collecting inome tax from Dominion Government officials may be definitely settled. McCaffrey and Woods are employed in the customs house, and their cases were listed for trial some time ago in the first division court, but Judge

Morson refused to try them.
