Nobody's Boy Will Do!

(Contributed)

The saloon is always advertising (in effect, if not in so many words) for new customers, for if it does not have these new patrons, it must shut up. So it reaches out to allure boys that they may become grist for its cruel mills. These recruits are wanted to replace the worn-out, the decreed toppers, and the throngs sent to prison or to chain-gang. Any boy will do for the saloon, so long as he can be taught to drink and has the money to pay for what he or she—for the saloon is wholly selfish and never gives away its waiting wares. But will your boy do for the saloon? If not, can you let somebody else's boy do? The church says nobody's boy shall do for the saloon, for we will defend the boys and girls from its clutches; we will preserve them for those who gave them birth and who love them, and we will save them for themselves—for their higher, redeemed selves. "Nobody's boy will do for the saloon!"

TWO ST. JOHN AUTHORS

Rev. Dr. Morison Writes a Novel and Mrs. Morison a Book of Poems—Just Off the Press

That a minister should write a novel and his wife a small book of poems, and that both should be published at the same time is a literary event quite unusual in Canada. The honor belongs to St. John the author and authoress are Rev. Dr. Morison of the Carleton Presbyterian church and Mrs. Morison. The books are printed by the Gorman Press of Boston, and distributed in Canada by the Copp, Clark Co., Ltd., of Toronto. If not already on sale in St. John the books will be in supply within a few days.

Dr. Morison's book is a religious novel with the distinctive title of "The World, the Church and the Devil." It will be of special interest to Presbyterians, for much of it centres in a Scotch community in Canada, and the atmosphere of the Kirk pervades the book. The leading character is a young Presbyterian minister, with elders, and numerous characters with whom these are connected in church life are familiar. But there is also a spice of adventure, and the scene shifts from an Ontario town to New Mexico, Glasgow, Chicago and Germany. There is romance as well, which ends happily. Naturally there is some theological discussion, which reveals the broad sympathy of the author and presents changing phases of religious thought in an interesting way. A vein of humor is not wanting and there are quaint sketches of character which are entertaining as well as true to life. The struggle of a soul toward belief and religious rest is portrayed in the career of one of the characters in the book. One discovers certain well-known personages sitting through the pages, and "music, the universal language," plays its part in the drama of these human lives. Dr. Morison has introduced some characters which have little to do with the narrative proper, but we are glad to meet them, as for example:

"Yon's no bad whiskey," said Malcolm Beaton to his old-time cronie, Donald MacPherson, as in accordance with their weekly custom, they sat together of a Sunday night, indulging in some confidential and dramatic conversation. "There's no bad whiskey," Malcolm replied, as with a sigh of satisfaction he laid his empty glass down upon the table, "no, there's no bad whiskey, but there's some better." Dr. Morison's friends will all congratulate him upon having produced a book that is not only a work of art, but which is notably pure and elevating.

Not less heartily will Mrs. Morison be congratulated on her dainty book of poems. There are less than fifty of them, and all of them are short. The title is "The World, the Church and the Devil." The poems include "Ypres, A Soldier's Wife, Somewhere in France, Ave Maria, and God Save Our Empire, and they breathe a lofty spirit of devotion. These poems received honorable mention and a high commendation in the prize competition in The Bookman, London. Many of the poems deal with nature subjects, as the seasons, morning and evening, goldenrod, and country scenes, while some are devotional in tone. Mrs. Morison has the poet's gift, and this dainty little volume will be prized by all readers. There is a sad significance and poignancy in her poem, "My Soldier Boy," since only this week came the tragic news that her nephew, a gifted and gallant young man, had fallen on the field of battle. We quote:

Soldier boy, O soldier boy
 Strong and brave and true,
 Yearning of light for England
 And for the Empire, too
 O soldier boy, I'm proud,
 I'm proud, I don't deny,
 Tho' in my throat a tightness
 And tears will fill my eyes.
 I give him up to England,
 O England, don't you lose?
 I love, I love thee, England,
 My heart I send to thee.

My brave and true and strongest,
 Pure gold without alloy,
 O Engad, Engad, Engad,
 I gave my soldier boy.
 In announcing the appearance of "My Soldier Boy" or "Other Poems," by Mrs. John Archibald Morison in Poet Lore, the publisher, Richard G. Badger, who is also the publisher of Poet Lore, has said: "This collection of poems is mainly expressive of the subtle and bewitching voices of nature which the author has surely heard and interpreted with an

A SCENE IN BELGIUM

A ruined Belgian village, a little lonely street,
 A famished dog, an aged priest, an altar desolate.
 The beast was fiercely growling over some uncanny feast;
 In search of sacred relics, I watched the aged priest.

A roofless church, a shattered spire, a broken altar rail,
 Aloft a stained glass window bore the words "The Holy Grail."
 And at my feet a figure lay, from pedestal overthrown,
 A life-sized figure of the Christ, in carved wood or stone.

'Twas shrapnel, scarred on breast and limb, by felon shot and shell,
 A sight to make the angels weep, the furies to laugh in hell.
 The distant white-lipped cannon roared in tones of double bass,
 That echoed through the stricken church, a solemn requiem mass.

And then in low and quivering tones I heard the priest begin,
 A crooning softly to himself, some ancient Latin hymn.
 The voice, though weak, was jubilant, to me it seemed to say,
 "I hope to see this crime avenged, altho' my head is grey."
 "The mills of God Grind slowly, but by His Eternal Son,
 The sins ye do by two and two, you must pay for one by one."
 In fancy still I sometimes see that little lonely street,
 The famished dog, the aged priest, the figure at my feet.

Cure Your Bad Cough

By Breathing "Catarrhozone"

You may dislike taking medicine—but coughs are best cured without medicine. The modern treatment is "Catarrhozone"—it isn't a drug—it's a healing vapor full of pine essences and healing balsams. It spreads over the surfaces that are weak and sore from coughing. Every spot that is congested is healed—irritation is soothed away, phlegm and secretions are cleared out, and all symptoms of colds and catarrhs are cured. "Nothing so quick, so sure, so pleasant as Catarrhozone. Beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone. All dealers sell Catarrhozone, large size which lasts two months price $1.00; small size 50c; sample size 25c.

The new postage stamps of Barbados, West Indies, have a notable design, which represents King George seated in a chariot drawn by sea-horses. It is an adaptation of the colony's badge, where Britannia is shown in a like position.

Germany Gets None of Belgian Relief

Conditions of Agreement with Neutral Relief Commission respected by Germany

When the Belgian Relief Commission was organized, Britain insisted that Germany guarantee not to touch a particle of the food imported by the Commission for the Belgians. This guarantee, given to the American business men who are the executive heads of the Commission, has been respected—probably because its violation would be reported at once and would rouse the whole neutral world.

No Dollars in the world are needed more—will be handled better—or will do more vital good—than the dollars which it is your privilege to give to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Whatever you feel you can give, send your subscription weekly, monthly, or in one lump sum, to Local or Provincial Committees, or

THE WOMEN OF LILLE

WILL RETURN HOME

Madrid, Oct. 7.—On the initiative of the King of Spain, 2,000 women deported from Lille, Roubaix and Tourcoing, are returning to their homes. The inhabitants of the occupied regions of northern France will return to their homes as soon as the present crop is gathered.

SHACKLETON WILL HEAD A NEW RELIEF PARTY

Will Return to the Antarctic to Rescue Ten Explorers of His Expedition.

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 7.—Sir Ernest Shackleton has abandoned the idea of sailing for England this week from Buenos Aires, and instead will proceed to Australia to command an expedition to rescue ten members of the Shackleton party who were left with scanty provisions on the west side of the South Polar continent.

These men were on land when their ship, the Aurora, was caught in the ice and carried away. They were awaiting the arrival of Lieutenant Shackleton, who disembarked on the east side of the continent, but was compelled to return to his starting point.

Sir Ernest and his companions have left for Buenos Aires, whence they will proceed to Montevideo, to thank the Uruguayan government for its unflinching effort to rescue the members of the Shackleton party who were stranded on Elephant Island. Sir Ernest's comrades will sail for England from Buenos Aires. He will return to Valparaiso tomorrow. Thence he will go to Panama, San Francisco and Australia. He expects to reach Australia on Nov. 25.

The Presbyterian churches will unite in a Thanksgiving service in King's church on Monday, 11 a.m. Rev. F. S. Dowling preaching. Offering for Patriotic Fund.

That cheery, grateful optimism which makes Thanksgiving real, springs with most of us from a feeling of physical well-being. EVERY DAY begins in this spirit for the man who spends five minutes with a

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR

There's something peculiarly refreshing and satisfying about this regular morning shave with a Gillette! It is so quick and easy—so clean and velvet-smooth—that you really enjoy the shave itself—and you get down to breakfast looking and feeling your best. And such a start goes a long way toward a day you are glad to have lived!

If you haven't yet tried this way of keeping face and temper smooth, give a special point to Thanksgiving, 1916, by getting a Gillette and using it Monday morning. If you are already a Gillette enthusiast, isn't there someone you know, at home or Overseas, who would celebrate the day more heartily if you gave him a Gillette Razor or Blades?
