A resolution favoring the sale of wine and light beers in the city beer shops and another endorsing the action of the Kings county milk-producers and farmers in their refusal to send milk to the city while the Sussex train operates on daylight time, were passed at a special meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, held in the Odd Fellows' Hall, last night, with Fred A. Campbell, the president, in the chair.

PICKED WINNERS IN HIS DREAMS

Sportsman Who Won Fortunes by Backing Tips
Which Came from Slum-berland.

The case of a naval man who, as the result of a dream, recently fore-casted in a daily paper the winner of a big race, was by no means the first of its kind; indeed, in the annals of racing the dreaming of winners is not uncommon, says Pearson's Weekly.

A jockey named Swift, who was riding in the following day's Derby, had a thrilling dream in which a horse named Kingcraft won by a length and a half. So impressed was he by the clearness of the dream that he backed Kingcraft with all he possessed, with the result that he had the satisfaction of adding to his bank account several hundred pounds.

Prior to the Oaks of 1887 a Mr. John Shine dreamed that he saw Rev. d'Or win the "Ladies' Race." He mentioned the incident to the horse's owner, the Duke of Beaufort, who, however, was not impressed. But Mr. Shine refused to be discouraged. He backed the fancy of his dream—and won handsomely.

Backed an "Outsider."

A story is told of a certain keen racing man named Casson who, the night before the Derby, dreamed that he saw the finish of the race. When he awoke, however, he found to his annoyance that, try as he would, he could not recall the name of the winner.

On looking carefully down the race card he came upon the name, Caracatus. The name seemed strangely familiar to him and, deciding that this was the horse of which he had dreamed, he backed it. His friends laughed at him, declaring that the beast was a rank outsider. But, at any rate, Caracatus was first past the post and Mr. Casson was the richer by £200.

The late Lord Vivian had a somewhat similar experience in connection with the City and Suburban race of some years ago. He dreamed that a friend came to him after the race with the comment that the contest had been a fine one. "The Teacher" won by a neck."

Name Was Changed.

When Lord Vivian got his morning paper he sought in vain for a horse of that name, and he was about to back another when he met his friend of the dream. The latter, on hearing of the incident, explained that the name had been changed to Aldrich, and Lord Vivian decided there and then to back it for £100.

However, before doing so he came across the horse's owner, Lord Kosebery, who candidly pronounced Aldrich no good.

"The result was that I was content to take £1,000 to £20," said Lord Vivian "and very sorry I was when Aldrich came home easily first and I missed the extra £24,000."

Another remarkable dream, which netted a considerable sum to its lucky dreamer, is related by a Major Harding Cox. The night before the 1892 Jubilee he dreamt that he was at Kempton, and saw a horse named Euclid win. More over, he noticed in his dream that the horse's number and card was 9.

On the day following he bought the race card and sure enough Euclid was No. 9 on the card! The gallant major of Damascus and Arabian Syria.

told the owner, Mr. Duneau, of his dream, and they both backed the horse heavily, winning small fortunes as a result.

ONE EMPEROR TO ANOTHER.

(Lowell Thomas in Asia.)
Fortunately for the Arabs, Gen. Allenby had not given any preliminary orders regarding the establishment of a government at Damascus after its capture by the British in October, 1918. Col. Thomas Lawrence was wise enough to see to it that the Arabian Army entered that ancient city ahead of the British, which gave Emir Faisal first possession of the place, and, in spite of the protest of the French, he was never ousted, and has at last been recognised as the ruler of Damascus and Arabian Syria.

Col. Lawrence remained in Damascus for four days as the virtual ruler of the city. His first act as governor was to make a special expedition to the tomb of Saladin, where the ex-Kaiser, on the occasion of his visit to Damascus in 1898, had laid a bronze laurel wreath, with the inscription in Turkish and Arabic, "From One Great Emperor to Another." The wreath and the inscription and the decoration of the Prussian Red Eagle above the grave had always been an eyesore to Lawrence on his visit to Damascus in previous years. He took as much delight in tearing the Kaiser's flamboyant decorations off the tomb of Saladin as in driving the whole Turkish army out of Arabia.

CHANDLER SIX Famous For Its Marvelous Motor

The Chandler Adds Much to Out-Door Life

JUNE is here and all out-doors calls to us. The long roads to the country and hillside and stream and woods open their arms to us.

If you would have a full enjoyment of your trips and tours, make them in the Chandler, a car distinguished for its powerful, flexible and dependable motor, and equally distinguished for its roominess and comfort.

Nearly eighty thousand Chandler owners know what a good car it is. They know what it has meant to them, that the Chandler organization for seven years has devoted all its engineering skill and manufacturing experience to the development of the one standard Chandler chassis. They know that Chandler policies have resulted in a chassis which today approximates perfection.

On this one Chandler chassis are mounted six beautiful types of body.
