Eyesight

The most valuable of all the senses, is the most neglected and the least understood. Many suffer from ills that upon examination can be traced directly to defective eyesight.

While all cases of impaired vision cannot be cured by glasses, by far the greater number can, if the lenses are correctly prescribed and properly fitted. Come in and let us talk this matter over. Examination will be made and advice given.

The firms who advertise are the firms who invite your patronage, and are most deserving of it. A product that is persistently advertised to the critical customer is a product that can be relied upon to give satisfaction, for the maker behind that product must be confident that it will earn your approval; otherwise, he would not dream of holding it up for your criticism.

SEVEN RECRUITS ADDED SUNDAY

MEETING THE LARGEST AND MOST ENTHUSIASTIC SINCE THE OPENING OF THE CAMPAIGN ON BEHALF OF THE INGERSOLL COMPANY—WAR PICTURES ADDED TO INTEREST.

The recruiting meeting Sunday afternoon in the Mason Theatre was the largest and most enthusiastic since the opening of the campaign on behalf of the Ingersoll Company of the 168th Battalion. Every available seat was taken soon after the meeting opened and eventually standing room was at a premium. In addition to the splendid addresses there was a delightful musical program furnished almost entirely by men of the Ingersoll Company as well as a reel of war pictures. From the standpoint of results the meeting was very gratifying. Several young men responded to the call for recruits. In the evening the clock at the recruiting office registered 145, which indicates that satisfactory progress is being made in the raising of the Ingersoll Company. The remarks of speakers on Sunday were clear and emphatic as to the necessity of the call and the duty of Canadians and they spoke optimistically of the final result in Ingersoll. It is confidently expected that within a short time the desired 250 men will have been recruited.

The Addresses.

Mayor W. J. Elliott presided and in his early remarks referred to the Soldiers' Home Club, the opening of which took place on Saturday. He said that not only would it be a credit to a city, but a credit to any municipality in the world. In the course of his remarks the speaker repeated the emphatic denial given Saturday night to the rumor that Major Gibson and other officers received a bonus of from one to ten dollars per head for each recruit. Not only was this rumor without foundation, but if the truth were known the officers were undoubtedly out considerable money each month which they expended voluntarily to help recruiting. He asked the co-operation of all in the theatre in knocking the rumor.

Major Deacon.

Following a pleasing rendition of "O Canada," by Harry Dickson and chorus, Major F. H. Deacon, of Toronto was introduced.

In his opening remarks Major Deacon complimented the Ingersoll Company on possessing such fine musical talent. He also spoke of the confidence which he knew must be felt by the citizens of the town in Major Gibson and other officers of the Ingersoll Company. He said the war was a "game"—a "fight for existence" and he wanted to know if the men of Ingersoll did not feel like doing their part. He said one of the best ways to bring peace was to let Germany know that the soldiers in Ingersoll and throughout Canada were being raised in a hurry. All, he said, could not go to the front, and he added that many of those who remained at home were doing important work.

Moving Pictures.

A reel of war pictures was shown and created intense interest. Following the pictures a song and chorus by Pte. M. Whitton and men of the Ingersoll Company was greatly appreciated. They sang "Rule Britannia" in a manner that swayed the audience.

Capt. Ronald Macleod.

Capt. Ronald Macleod, Chaplain of the 168th Battalion, followed with a most impressive and vigorous address. He took up the spirit of the song and showed to the audience what protection under the British flag meant and of how much there was to call free men to arms. He showed how Canada was the coveted spot with Germany and how if possible the iron heel would soon be felt in this country. He went on to say that it might be well if there was some pressure to press the shirkers into line. He alluded to the objection that has been raised as to certain remarks uttered at some of the meetings and went on to say that it was no time to quibble over the interpretation of a

THE SOLDIERS' HOME CLUB FORMALLY OPENED SATURDAY

THE KEENEST PUBLIC INTEREST AND APPRECIATION WAS EVIDENCED — SPLENDID QUARTERS FILLED TO OVERFLOWING BOTH AFTERNOON AND EVENING—THE JOHN MORROW SCREW & NUT CO. HAVE BEEN GENEROUS TO A FAULT—A FINE MUSICAL PROGRAMME AND INTERESTING ADDRESSES.

The extent to which the people of Ingersoll and surrounding districts are interested in recruiting and the welfare of the soldiers was amply demonstrated on Saturday afternoon and evening when thousands attended the opening of the Soldiers' Home Club, formerly the McCarty Hotel, generously placed at the disposal of the Ingersoll Company by the John Morrow Screw & Nut Co., through their public-spirited President and Manager Mr. J. Anderson Coulter. The formal opening could not have taken place under more gratifying circumstances. On every side there was abundant evidence of genuine appreciation of the ideal quarters that the soldiers will occupy during their sojourn in Ingersoll. It was also evident that the keen, progressive business policy that has marked the development of the Morrow industry—a policy that never slighted details, and recognizes the fact that the best is none too good—had exercised a similar influence in the remodeling and equipping of the Soldiers' Home Club. The Club suggests home comforts and refinement to the point of luxury. The building has been thoroughly renovated at an expenditure of several thousand dollars made bright and attractive from bottom to top. There has been a full recognition of artistic touches; pictures on the walls here and there, that touch a patriotic chord, and probably suggest some new interest in all nature; furniture that is inviting and in all cases as comfortable as it appears; the large fire place extends a welcome, with which is mingled the soft rays of the large electric lights. The massive writing tables conform to the dimensions of the rooms, while all other articles and features generally indicate that artistic taste and clever supervision marked the planning, purchasing and subsequent arrangement.

Soldiers Proud.

It was only natural that the soldiers of the Ingersoll company should be elated at the kindly interest manifested in their behalf by the John Morrow Screw & Nut Co., and their pride is shared by every citizen who inspected the fine quarters.

The Club is one of the finest gifts that has ever been bestowed in the town and that all the enjoyment and comfort which it is intended to provide will be realized by the officers and men goes without saying. One of the striking features of the Club is that in every respect it is complete. No matter what room is visited the outstanding thought is that all that was required has been done. It speaks volumes for the liberality of the Morrow Screw & Nut Co., and the interest that Mr. Coulter personally feels in the welfare of the men of the Ingersoll Company who are prepared to help fight the Empire's battles on the soil of Europe.

On the ground floor there is a large recreation room equipped with a fire place, comfortable chairs, and piano, writing room, kitchen with gas stoves and canteen where soft drinks and refreshments may be had. There also on the ground floor are the recruiting office and offices for the clerical work of the Company.

On the second floor are the bedrooms which provide accommodation for fifty men. These rooms will be allotted to the men whose homes are not in the town. There are also on this floor several new shower baths, both hot and cold, and fine lavatories. The wash basins are all supplied with hot and cold running water and the equipment is modern and adapted to the purpose in the strictest sense of the term.

The last word in the equipment of the splendid Club, however, is the hospital. This has been provided with a due regard for the health and best attention of the men in case of sickness and is very complete. This is a feature which will be greatly appreciated by the men and the public as it goes to indicate an interest in them greater than comfort and pleasure under ordinary circumstances. The program Saturday afternoon was in keeping with the keen attention that had been given to the details of the Club. It was first-class in every respect and greatly enjoyed by the thousands from town and country who on both occasions filled the building to overflowing. In the afternoon Lt.-Col. Mayberry presided, and in addition to selections by the Cortez Orchestra, of London, songs were rendered by Mr. Marlati, London, and R. W. G. Horne.

The Evening.

The evening attendance was much larger than that of the afternoon. It was so great that it was with difficulty many forced their way into the Club. The chair was occupied by Major F. H. Deacon, an Ingersoll old boy. Major Deacon gives real dignity to the khaki and his beaming countenance told plainly how pleased he was to meet an Ingersoll audience under the circumstances. He spoke of the recruiting campaign here and incidentally told of the great work that had been done in Toronto in connection with the patriotic campaign by W. C. Noxon and John Watt, both Ingersoll boys. He paid a tribute to the worth of Major Gibson and the late Major Norworthy.

Capt. Ronald Macleod.

Capt. Ronald Macleod expressed the pleasure he felt at being associated with the men of the 168th Battalion. He was glad to be among those who were prepared to fight for the glorious British Empire. He spoke in most appreciative terms of the liberality of the Morrow Company in providing the Soldiers' Club. He said that every one should feel proud to have Mr. J. A. Coulter as a citizen of Ingersoll. He also pointed out that the duty of the hour was for those who could do so to fight, while those who could not fight should pay.

Jos. Gibson.

Mr. Jos. Gibson viewed with admiration the many things in the Club
