The Danube Returns Crowded With Miners and Treasure Laden.

The Fast River Steamer Yukoner, of the C. P. N. Co , Changes Hands at St. Michaels.

When Victorians woke up this morning they found that another 186 miners from the Klondike gold fields had invaded the city, bringing with them valises, bags and sacks of gold, cheques and other paper moneys amounting in all-so says Purser Harry Bishop-to $850,000. They came by the steamer Danube, Capt. Meyer, which crept into the harbor about two o'clock this morn-The treasure brought from the gold fields was by no means equally divided. It ail belonged to a fortunefavored few. The names of the lucky ones are as follows: Major Morgan, Wm. Bateman, R. Sinclair, J. Jones, James Winters, J. Erickson, C. W. Simms, C. W. Still, R. Hannah, F. Gierson, J. S. Lusk and J. M. Sloan. All the Danube's passengers came down the Yukon by the steamer Yukoner, which is now no longer the property of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Com-pany, for on her return to St. Michaels from Dawson Capt. John Irving, who came down on the Danube, sold her to Pat Galvin, the well-known Klondike millionaire, whose river steamers, built at San Francisco, never reached the Yuat San Francisco, never reached the Yukon. The price paid was $50,000. Capt. Tackaberry, Purser Price and all the officers and crew of the Yukoner were passengers to Victoria by the Danube. Purser Price reports that on the way down the river the Yukoner passed 76 river steamers, small and large hound. river steamers, small and large, bound to Dawson. Four were ashore and the Yukoner spent some time unsuccessfully endeavoring to draw them from the firm grip of the sand bars which so tightly held them. The four vessels aground were the Clara and Tyrell, both of Vancouver, the J. P. Light, one of the Moran steamers, and one other. Three other of the larger vessels were seeen ashore at the Yukon's mouth, the Robert Kerr. Power and Marguerite. The river was still navigable when the Dansailed, but low in places. Besides Yukoner, which was preparing to start for Dawson in her new service. three vessels were getting ready to go up the river—the Arnold, W. H. Evans and a Moran steamer. The ocean steamers Bertha and Alpha were preparing to follow the Danube south-

The Danube left St. Michaels on September 14th and Dutch Harbor on the 18th. At Dutch Harbor the schooner Ocean Belle was seen and from her it was learned that the vessel ordered home under seizure was the schooner of the true liner of the fact. Otto, the top liner of the fleet. She is said to have been within the proscribed limits. The Otto, Capt. Gooz, is a 98-ton vessel with an all-white crew. The schooner Ida Etta had sailed for Victoria a few days before the Dan-nbe arrived Like the Amphion, the Danube experienced heavy weather, but came out of the heavy seas without damage. She will not go back to St. Michaels. Her next not go back to St. Michaels. He trip will be to Lynn canal ports.

BATTLE OF OMDURMAN.

Rev. Dr. Campbell's Reference to British Bravery-Scottish Heroes.

Before giving his evening address on temperance in First Presbyterian church last Sunday, the Rev. Dr. Campbell said: Thanks have been offered in the churches of the old country for the Anglo-Egyptian victory at Omdurman, but the Canadian pulpit has taken little notice of it. I consider it my duty and privilege as a loval subject of our beloved Queen, and the pastor of a loyal congregation, to thankfully refer to it now that, through the press, we have the facts before us. I refer to it more readily as it is possible that some of you may have had relatives or friends at that great battle, as some of you had at the celebrated charge at Dargai Heights in India. The conduct of our troops on that occasion is to-day the admiration of the world. Where all were so brave, the Warwicks and were so brave, the Warwicks and Guards, the Camerons, Seaforths and Lincolns, the infantry and cavalry, it, seems almost invidious to note any in seems almost invidious to note any in particular. But I know you will pardon me for referring to two distinguished. Highland battalions that were conspicuous on that day, the 1st Seaforths and the 1st Camerons. These two battalions are under the command of a brave and gallant Scottish officer, Brigad'er General Wanchope, formerly of the Black Watch. General Archibald Hunter, in command of the Econolism two seasons are Ayrshire. of the Egyptian troops, is an Ayrshire man, and two of the four brigadiers in command of the Egyptians are also Highland officers, viz: Maxwell, former-ly of the Black Watch, and Hertor Macdonald, formerly of the Gordon High-landers. According to the number of the casualties it would appear that the brunt of the fighting fell upon the Sca-forths and Cameron Highlanders, and the Egyptian brigade commanded by Hector Macdonald, an Aberdonian, Hector Macdonald is a man that the British Empire, and Scotchmen in particular, may well be proud of. He joined the Gordons as a private soldier, and after ten years' service in the ranks was pro-moted to commissioner officer for gallantry in the Afghan war. At the battle of Omdurman it is reported that the der-vishes delivered a furious attack upon

Macdonald's brigade, which was nearly enveloped, and had Macdonald not been a cool and consummate soldier the day might have ended in partial disaster. As it was he wheeled his brigade through a complete circle, watching every move of the enemy, changing front and maintaining line with masterly readiness to meet and defeat each move of the enemy Another Scottish officer who greatly dis tinguished himself at this battle is Lieutenant the Marquis of Tullibordine, eldest son and heir of the Duke of Atboll. When, the day after the battle, the troops crossed to Khartoum, the military chaplains of the Presbyterians, Anglicans and Roman Catholics took Anglicans and Roman Catholics took part in the ceremonies which solemnized the obsequies of the heroic General Charles George Gordon, so cruelly murdered years ago in that benighted and blood-stained city, the Babylon of Africa. A great battle has been fought and won, a battle that ranks with Marathon and Thermopylae, with Poiters and Agnicourt, a battle that may change the destiny of Africa, as Waterloo did that of Europe. It must not be imagined that the figure of the victorious Siráar passing through the ruins of Khartoum typifies revenge for the death of Gordon, Nothing was further from his purpose Nothing was further from his purpose than revenge, and nothing is further to-day from the British mind. Yet the vic-tory accomplishes the work Gordon set out to do; it opens a great portion of Central Africa to the civilizing power of European contact; it dealt a heavy blow at the hidious slave trade; and grants permission to Egypt to prosper under new circumstances, without fear of a menacing neighbor to the south. With the progress of European civilization unthe British flag in Africa, the gospel Christ shall advance, and ere long Dark Continent shall worship the only living and true God from the terranean sea to the Cape of Good Hope. I believe the day is not far off when the gospel trumpet shall be heard from Moscow to Lisbon, Japan to Morocco, from Borneo to Archangle, from Hindo stan to Honduras, from Calcutta to Victoria.

The city is building up again rapidly, and two or three hotels and numerous fine restaurants, down town and within the grounds, will be running full blast and able to feed thousands during the fair. In various ways a good deal of lodging accommodation will be available in Westminster, and Vancouver, a little over half an hour's run by tram and less than an hour by railway, will attend to all the rest.-New Westminster Columbian.

The Testimony of Dr. Bennet. of Halifax, Regarding the Edmonton Trail.

The Travellers in Desperate Straits and No Relief Expedition Possible.

Little by little the facts in connection with the ill-starred Edmonton route are coming out, and when the history of that trail is written it will probably rival in its gruesome details any story of modern adventure or explortaion. In last evening's issue of the Times an extract was published from the letter of Toronto gentleman in which the hard ships of the route were broadly hinted

To-day through the courtesy of J. C. Frawley, a gentleman who has just returned from Cassiar, and is spending a few days at the Dominion hotel, readers of the Times are provided with a short description of the Edmonton route from one who has travelled over it, and knows. from bitter experience, of the obstacles

Mr. Frawley, with several companions, penetrated to McDavies creek, an affluent of Dease river, to a point at 60 de grees latitude and 130 degrees longitude The party found little to justify their search in that country, and turned their steps homeward. Upon reaching Syvester's Landing, on the Dease river, they found three men with thirteen horses busily engaged in cutting hay and storing it for the winter, they having dec ded to winter at that point. Upon entering into conversation with the leader, Mr. Frawley found to his surprise that the emaciated traveller was none other than his old friend Dr. John P. Bennet, of Halifax, N. S., who last March started in to Dawson via the route indicated in in to Dawson via the route indicated in the foregoing. Dr. Bennet is a graduate of Rush College, and had ample funds at his disposal to properly equip the expedi-tion. He took a large stock of supplets. employing thirteen pack horses for the purpose of carrying them on to the Klendike. At his friend's request the doctor hurriedly wrote out the following synop-sis of the trip, which is herewith sub-mitted for the information of the public:

Sylvester Landing, Sept. 5, 1898.

I have just arrived here en route to the Kloudike over the Edmonton route, must say that it is the most inand I fernal swindle that ever was placed in front of the public. I left March 1st, and have been travelling ever since over a country abounding in muskegs and falling timber. Rafting rivers and creeks is one of the many things one has to do, and one's life is always in danger doing so. The press advertised the Edmonton route as the poor man's route, but I fail to see it. In the first place it is fourteen hundred miles from Edmonton to Sylvester's Landing by the trait, and, remember, you cannot go north from Peace river without coming this way (Slyvester's Landing) as only one man ever made it, Cayuse Graham, and he told me himself it was simply awful. But leaving that as de and returning to the point, a man taking in two years' provisions, which he must do, needs at least ten horses, as no horse can make the trip over this trail and carry over horses carrying that weight are knocked out long before they get this distance. The mounted police left Edmenton in September, 1897, and arrived here in August, after buying a new outfit of horses and goods at Fort Graham, the others having deal at the being a term being a term being a term. others having d.ed, a few being shot to feed the dogs. The trip will cost the government a nice little sum, and it is to be hoped that the piess will do all in its power to let the public know that the Edmonton route is impracticable. I will now give you the relative distances from ton to Slave lake, 300 miles; Slave lake Homors—Companion of the Most Honorable of the Bath, Commanion of the Distinguished Service Order; Medjidieh, 3rd class; Osmanieh, 3rd class.

who had just got back from a prospecting trip on the Findlay and branches, but could find nothing that would last a month, and pay two dollars a day to the man. Some creeks, it is believed, would pay about $5 a day, but as flour is $19 a sack, one would be a long time getting rich. Mr. Walker, the man who discovered Walker creek, and whom I had the pleasure of meeting, he being with 5th to the 13th prox., inclusive, and it is the Cassiar railway company in the cap-now assured that the dual event will be a city of prospector in this section, tells me that the country was prospected for me that the country was prospected for placer mines away back in '74, he being one of the mine's here at that time. of affairs in this country, and I would like to hear from anyone who thinks dif-ferent. JOHN P. BENNET. M.D., 197 Hollis street. Halifax, N. S. Or 743 Fulton street.

Chicago, Ill. P.S.—The trail is lined with disgusted miners and hundreds will never get half way this year, and having no hay up for their horses, what are they going to do?

Dr. Bennet, who is a big m n, informed Frawley that he had lost 100 pounds in weight on the trail. He says that there are at least 3,000 men from Edmonton are at least 5,000 men from humonout to the Landing; that scurvy is rampant; and that the horses of many of the parties have perished miserably in the sloughs. The Cayuse Graham to whom reference is made in the letter was found on the trail half dead with scurvy, and as he owed his recovery to Dr. Renand as he owed his recovery to Dr. Ben-

ret. he joined his party.

The prospect for the unfortunate fellows who have been deluded into following the advice of those who boomed "the poor man's route" is extremely forbidding. No relief party can possibly reach them before the winter shuts off all com-munication, and many of them have no supplies to carry them through the rigorous season in that parthern clime. Many of them realize their desperate condition and are turning back and travelling desnegately in all directions.

Dr. Bennet will winter at Slyvester's Landing and rush on next spring to Dawson if possible.

HE WANTS TRAILS BUILT. Returned Miner's Suggestion for Im proving Klondike Conditions.

H. W. Perris, of England, was passenger on the Dannbe from the North this morning. He went in last spring, and besides buying several claims in the vicinity of Dawson has secured six claims which promise exceedingly well on a tributary of Forty Mile. One of the latter is the discovery claim. Although now returning to England he is very hopeful of the country as a gold producer and will return in the spring.

The fever was raging at Dawson when he came out, and he anticipated no cessation of it until the city is thoroughly refo. med on sanitary lines. The back yards of the cabins he describes as being in a revolting condition and the falling of the water in the river has left the banks in an equally bad state. The withdrawal of permission to the American doctors to practice in the place has thrown a great deal of work on the remaining medical men, and he consid-ers the staff hardly adequate to the requirements during the warm weather when fever prevails. Speaking of the royalty tax he makes suggestion which he says would do much to allay the resentment which prevails among miners over that feature of the regulations. It is to the effect that the government devote one half of the to constructing roads to the gold-bearing creeks. Although Easterners are apt to regard all these creeks as being in the vicinity of Dawson, the chief claims are over 50 miles away, and the means of access from the city is over a very in-different trail. The same applies to other creeks and the expenditure of such an amount on these trails he believes would do much to reconcile the miners to present conditions.
