

PASSENGER JOURNEYS BY AIR BETWEEN PARIS AND LONDON TO BE INAUGURATED SUNDAY

Farman Machine, With Cabin Capacity for Fourteen Persons, to Leave Buc and Descend at Croydon, Service Being Weekly at First, Then Made Daily.

Paris, Jan. 22.—The first Paris to London air service probably will be inaugurated from the Buc airfield next Sunday. A Farman airplane will be used. It will carry several passengers. All that is needed for the trip is the proper permit. The airplane is ready. It is now in its new airframe and is called the Goliath.

The flying machine originally was built for bombing and has a carrying capacity of three tons and cabin room for fourteen persons.

A trial trip was made yesterday, the persons who made the flight were delighted with the comfort and the stability the airplane afforded. The cabin is sheltered on all sides.

The Goliath is equipped with two 270 horse power motors and can maintain a speed of 160 kilometers (one hundred miles) an hour.

If the permit is obtained, the start will be made from Buc at ten o'clock on Sunday morning. It is believed the journey will be made in about three hours.

This is the itinerary: Buc Le Bourget, Compiègne, Creil, Breteuil, Amiens, Arras, Fosseux, Tonneau, and Croydon.

The return flight is scheduled for the following Tuesday.

At first the air service between Paris and London and return will be weekly. It is anticipated that eventually a daily service will be possible.

BELIEVED CANADA WILL DEVELOP ITS AIR SERVICE FORCE IN FUTURE

At a Banquet of the Imperial Air Force in London Much Praise Was Given Canadians for Their Part in the Air Work—Opinion and Hope Expressed That Special Attention Would be Given Air Service in Dominion in the Future.

London, Jan. 22. (Canadian Press dispatch from Reuters, Ltd.)—A banquet of the officers of the Imperial Air Force to celebrate the victory of the British Empire in the war was held last night. Among those present were Generals Birtwood and Turner, High Commissioners Perley and MacKenzie and General Seely, under-secretary of the air ministry, and formerly commander-in-chief of a Canadian cavalry brigade.

General Seely dwelt on the part British airmanship had contributed towards winning the war. He said that Britain must be supreme in the air in order to secure the peace of the world. It must have one great air fleet. To help forward the air traffic of the future plans had been made in the most elaborate detail for the establishment of a great imperial air routes. He did not see the reason why within the life time of the present generation, nearly all of them should not see the establishment of great air routes to all parts of the empire.

General Seely remarked that there was no evidence that the risk of fire was greater in an airplane than in an airplane, as for 2,500,000 miles down in war time only one British airplane had been lost this way, and that was an experimental type. In regard to the weather, it was a fact that there were only nine days in 1918 when no airship flight occurred in the British Isles, which effectively contradicted the prevalent opinion that airships were only fair weather craft. Indeed an airship could often fly when an airplane could not—for example in fog and thick low lying clouds.

The latest German raid airship had a lifting capacity of over thirty-eight tons, which gave it the available lifting capacity could be used for carrying petrol. At a cruising speed of forty-five miles an hour, eight thousand miles would be covered in a week.

General Seely of the Canadian cavalry said: "Speaking as an individual and not as a minister I must confess my heart goes out to the Canadians. I never shall forget what I owe them for their steadfast determination in critical times during the three and a half years that it was my privilege to command some of them."

General Turner said that he could not state definitely what plans the Canadian government would formulate for the future of the air service, but he was sure special provision would be made for developing the air force of the Dominion.

ALLIED TRAVELLER CRITICIZES EBERT'S FATAL HESITATION

Determined Gov't Could Have Re-established Order in 24 Hours.

The Hague, Jan. 20.—A member of one of the Allied governments who has just arrived here from Berlin, where he had been on official business, gave the following impressions of conditions there at the time of his departure.

"It is very strange to see officers in the uniforms of all nationalities circulating freely in Germany. Most of those on official business are quartered at the Adlon Hotel, Berlin, where it is possible to live on seventy marks daily and get anything one wants.

"The streets are fairly calm in spite of the guerrilla warfare now taking place. Groups of people stand on the street corners, others proceed calmly to work and soldiers with red armbands pass or stand in groups guarding public places or buildings.

"Suddenly a military lorry arrives with soldiers wearing other armbands and the groups of soldiers die at each other. Sometimes a few are killed, but there are no big battles or skirmishes which take place between small groups of about thirty each. The object is to kill people but to take possession of public buildings, newspaper offices, Government stores, or any place considered to be a strategic point.

"If the strategic point is more important machine-guns are used, which sometimes cause serious material destruction.

"The chief characteristics of the German troops, seen in Berlin, are their untidiness, disorder, and lack of co-ordination. This last, doubtless, is a result of the fact that the German troops often pass over to the Spartacists. Troops have stated that they received no orders, and that, therefore, they joined the Spartacists.

"The only enterprising troops are the marines, who have great audacity. These numbers about 6,000, but are very firm and daring. It is always the marines who begin skirmishes. They are well commanded, well paid, well equipped, and receive orders from Liebknecht. Their aim is to create disorder and impress public opinion.

"Feels Need of Order.

"As a matter of fact, everyone feels the need of order, but none knows whence it will come, and all feel that up to the present time the Government leaders have not dared to make or could not make decisions. The Allied officers stated when I left Berlin that a determined Government could have re-established order and become master of the situation in twenty-four hours with a few regular troops, which Hindenburg certainly has at his command. The question is, why does not the general command intervene and take control.

"Many persons think that the Socialists are being allowed to weaken themselves politically by being discredited through the situation. It is ridiculous that in a country like Germany a few bands of Socialists should be allowed to take possession of Government buildings. It is generally supposed that reliable troops are waiting a politically favorable opportunity to resume control.

"An armored car which passed with a black, white and red flag (the flag of the Spartacists) was enthusiastically cheered. It was manned by strong young men, all of whom wore the iron cross of the first class and all were obviously officers in the uniforms of privates.

"German officers exchanging views with foreign officers stated that they no longer receive pay. 'What can we do if there is no military chance?' they ask. 'No one obeys us, I should like to go into the diplomatic service, but don't even know whom to address.'"

NATIONAL COUNCIL ANNUAL MEETING

Representatives of Y. M. C. A. in Maritime Provinces Attend Session in Halifax—Many Important Matters Discussed.

The annual meeting of the Maritime Division of the Canadian National Council of the Y. M. C. A. was held in Halifax Tuesday last.

Mr. Sidons, and it is expected in Paris to present to President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George and Clemenceau, an offer of aid.

One of the most important matters discussed under the classification of new business was the inauguration of development of community centres in every village, hamlet and countryside throughout the Dominion, where the young men, civilians and war veterans, can secure the social intercourse, entertainment, recreation and other facilities that have been so splendidly exemplified in the Red Triangle Club rooms and Y. M. C. A. huts.

The primary purpose of such centres will be to decrease as far as possible the constant exodus of young men from the small communities to the larger cities. Until the erection of other buildings is warranted, existing churches and halls will be used.

This plan has already been adopted in Charlottetown under the direction of Mr. Sidons, and it is expected that New Brunswick will be represented by many such communities in the very near future.

A feature of the session was a most interesting address by John Sumner of the Toronto delegation, who spoke on Industrial Y. M. C. A. work. In particular he cited one case in West Charlotte Islands, B. C., of an aeroplane lumber-working camp in which the social work was carried on by two "Y" secretaries. The work which originally was under government control was taken over by private interests and with the change of ownership the demand for social service in connection with their work. Employers and handlers of large bodies of men find the men more contented, happier and more tractable when they are provided relaxation and recreation, which the Y. M. C. A. provides in a helpful and religious spirit.

The address was given by Major Fred J. Smith, in charge of "Y" physical work overseas, who talked most interestingly of the Red Triangle Club rooms and Y. M. C. A. huts, which meant to the boys overseas.

In this connection it was stated that the large Red Triangle Club room, which was completed at Halifax and when finished will be almost a replica of the splendid club room at Dominion Square, Montreal.

The regular committee reports the election of representatives to be taken up, resulting in three more members being added to the Y. M. C. A. standing committee: G. L. Warlick, W. K. McLean and A. R. Crilchank.

The members were the guests of the Halifax Rotary Club at a special dinner and were generally delighted with their visit.

SWITZERLAND WANTS ACCESS TO SEA VIA RHINE, RHONE AND PO

The Country Also Desires to Obtain the Right of Traffic Over Important Railroads to the Sea and to the Eastern Countries of Europe—A project of League of Nations.

Paris, Jan. 22.—The views and desires of the Swiss Federal Council, whose president, Gustave Ador, is now in Paris to present to President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George and Clemenceau, an offer of aid.

ST. JOHN MEN AT MEETING

Attend Annual Gathering of Shareholders in Bank of Nova Scotia at Halifax.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 22.—Two St. John men, one of them not a shareholder, but a good customer, and the other a shareholder, were among those who spoke at the annual meeting of the Bank of Nova Scotia today. The non-shareholder was John E. Moore.

President Archibald asked him to speak, and to say something about the bank's business in the year 1918. Mr. Moore replied with an interesting comparison of prices now and before the war, showing the enormous increase. He said that shipping was still impossible to obtain, and that the British Government continued to operate the lumber business on the other side. He hoped, he said, in three or four months, that conditions would be back to normal. Mr. Emmerson congratulated the bank on the statements by the directors and the general manager. He said when the Bank of Nova Scotia was merged with the Nova Scotia bank the people and the bank would be in a financial accommodation, but these fears had proved to be groundless, and they were as well served as ever before in the days of the old bank Mr. Manly was present as a director at the meeting.

EUGENE BROSEAU DEFEATED MCKAY

Former Canadian Amateur Champion Scored First Professional Knockout in Montreal Last Night.

Montreal, Jan. 22.—Eugene Broseau, former Canadian amateur welterweight champion, won his first professional bout tonight, when he defeated Donald McKay of Brooklyn by a knockout in the third round of a ten round bout at Bohmer Park. Broseau showed more science and after the first bout always had the fight well in hand.

Broseau came from his corner with a rush in the third round. He forced McKay to the ropes and as the latter bounced off Broseau landed a left hook that sent McKay to his knees for the count of eight. When McKay resumed he was groggy. Broseau followed him to his corner, landing right and left almost at will. McKay backed to the centre of the ring. Broseau then drew McKay open with a left jab and a right cross that sent McKay to his knees for the count of eight. Broseau scored his first professional knockout.
