The city of Detroit, General Alexander Macomb's birthplace, is to honor his memory with a monument. Although the general was the most distinguished military commander of the war of 1812 and held the position of general-in-chief of the army from 1835 till 1841, there is no monument to his memory, except that over his grave in the old Congressional burying ground at Washington.

EVERY CHILD born into the world with an inherited or early developed tendency to distressing, disfiguring humours of the skin, scalp, and blood, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering but because of the dreadful fear that the disfiguration is to be likelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity. Hence it becomes the duty of mothers of such afflicted children to acquaint themselves with the best, the purest, and most effective treatment available.
