

not only to remove a log from gate A., as he had already done, but to remove the gate altogether, as he claimed a right to do. And it is further charged that the defendant, so far from acceding to the request of the officer in charge to open sluice B., affirmed his right to close the same as he should find it necessary for his mill. And the information, having alleged that any interruption of the works for even a few hours, during the passage of timber, would produce a considerable loss of revenue, charges that the defendant persists in his wrongful acts, and avows his determination to repeat them as he should see occasion.

1849.
Attor'y-Gen.
v.
M^cLaughlin.

The prayer is for an "injunction, restraining the said Daniel McLaughlin, his workmen, servants and agents, from placing or causing to be placed, any rubbish heaps or piles whatsoever in the said channel or elsewhere, in any part of the said slides, or any work, matter, or thing connected therewith; and from removing, displacing, or anywise disturbing or intermeddling with any stop-logs or other logs, matters or things, now or at any time hereafter to be let down or placed or fixed in the said entrance-gate; and from in any manner cutting or forcing open or opening the said entrance-gate, when the same shall be closed, at any time or times; and from in any manner hindering, obstructing or delaying any repairs or repair whatsoever to the said slides, or any part thereof, and from closing or in any degree stopping up, obstructing or incumbering the said sluice-gate, in any manner; and from, at any time or times, hindering or preventing any water from, or diminishing the quantity of water, passing through the same; and from doing, committing, or causing, or suffering or permitting to be done, committed or executed, any act, deed, matter, or thing whatsoever, whereby or by reason or in consequence whereof the said slides, or any of them, or any parts or part thereof respectively, or any work, matter, or thing, appertaining thereto or connected therewith, or the operation, use or business thereof, may be injured, damaged, hindered, obstructed, retarded, or prejudicially affected in any manner whatsoever; and also her Majesty's most gracious writ of subpoena to appear and answer, to be directed to the said Daniel McLaughlin."

Judgment.