Boston tied it up in the fifth on singles by Reulbach, Maranville and Collins. The locals put the winning tally over the plate in the seventh on "Heinie" Groh's single. Sporting Comment

Cold weather was instrumental in calling off three of the International League games yesterday, including the one scheduled between Richmond and the Toronto Leafs. The former club is managed by Billy Smith, who handled Buffalo several seasons ago, and owing to being blessed with extra fine weather while at home, are perhaps in the best condition of any team in the League. On the other hand the Leafs need a lot of work before they are fit. By the way, Eddie Wright, who was released to Bridgeport, has balked on going, and he was given his outright release.

The International Western mag-nates are certainly being hard hit by the weather man. Montreal have yet to stage an opening, and they are now four days overdue, and of the eight clubs are the only one who have not played a game this week. Manager Dan Howley, of the Royals, used to say that if his players did not soon get going they would find themselves going in different directions. His remarks about the weather would no doubt be interesting, as would the other pilots. The Western teams suffer the most, as it was during the present stay at home that they counted on having morning practice and therefore getting into the same good condition as the Eastern aggregations. The box office is also being hard hit.

There is no stopping the Cleveland team, and the prophecy of the critics that the Indians would crack when they hit the East has failed to materialize. Yesterday they not only beat Walter Johnson but stopped Washington's winning streak. These teams have engagements for the next four days, as arrangements have been made for the two to play a league game at Cleveland on Sunday. A tremendous crowd is promised for this game, and everything points to all attendance records being shattered in that city. The best evidence is that all the reserve seats have been sold at this early date.

Manager Joe Birmingham, of the Leafs and the former pilot of Cleveland, thinks there is not a better ball town in America than Cleveland. Their amateur games draw between 20,000 and 25,000, which shows the interest. A few years ago the salary list of the so-called amateurs in Cleveland was around $1,200. Last year the salary of the champion team reached the $6,000 mark. These amateurs have been bringing in big league clubs for games this year on Sunday. It is likely that Manager Birmingham will take the Leafs over to Cleveland for an exhibition game with one of the amateur teams before the season is over.

MENTIONED IN DESPATCHES

Major John McBride should have let well enough alone after his experiences in the Boer War. Major McBride fought through the Boer War under General Joubert, escaping after the war to Paris, from which place he later went to the United States, where he carried on an Irish propaganda. McBride took part in the recent Sinn Fein rebellion in Dublin, and paid for his folly with his life, being one of the rebels executed. A few years ago Major McBride married Miss Maude Gonne, known as the Irish Joan of Arc. Later she secured a divorce from her belligerent husband. John T. Ryan, premier and attorney-general of Queensland, Australia, who recently passed through to the United States and Canada en route to England, just got there in time to bring greetings from the Australian Irish to John Redmond after the Sinn Fein rebellion in Dublin, Ryan was born in Ireland in 1870, and as a young man went to Australia and entered journalism. For the past twenty years he has been editor of the Catholic Press of Sydney, and also Australian correspondent of the Westminster Gazette. Ryan and his Irish associates in the antipodes deplore the Sinn Fein rebellion.

Sir Douglas Mawson, who is now on his way to England, where he will offer to take charge of a relief expedition on behalf of Lieut. Sir Ernest Shackleton, is an Australian by birth. Sir Douglas Mawson has done considerable exploring work in the Antarctic, and as a matter of fact is the only survivor of a group who undertook a trip from the base in Adeline-land. On that occasion Mawson fought death alone for thirty-one days in the frozen wilderness. On his return from his exploring trip he was knighted. Mawson is a medical man and practices his profession in Australia.

Rev. Mercer Green Johnston has resigned as rector of the fashionable Trinity Church, of Newark, N.J., because, he says, some aspirants to social leadership and political dictators didn't want to listen to his hard-hitting sermons.
