EXCHANGED MILITARY SALUTES

The Dispute of the British and Russians at Tien-Tsin Will be Amicably Settled.

Tien-Tsin, March 22—Gen. Bailloud (French) and Gen. Lorne Campbell (Bri. tish) are dining together here to-night. The offending French soldiers at Tien Tain have been punished and assurances have been given that the offensive conduct of the French troops will not occur again.

The Russians, besides withdrawing their guards from the railroad property have removed the demarkation flags which fixed the boundaries of the concessions and before which the sentries were stationed.

Berlin, March 21.—The War Office has received the following from Count Von Waldersee:—"The Anglo-Russian dispute at Tien-Tein has been settled from a military standpoint in a manner satisfactory to both parties at a conference between General Wogack and General Barrow. Both guards and posts have been withdrawn and salutes have been exchanged. The British declare that no offence to the Russian flag was intended and that the alleged removal of the Russian boundary marks was neither by the command nor with the knowledge of military authorities. The work on the disputed land will be continued until the Government have reached an agreement as to MILITARY SETTLEMENTS.

possessions or until a special understand-has been attained " DE GIERS HOPEFUL.

Pekin, March 22.—The British head-quarters report the withdrawal of both Russian and British troops from the disput-ed territory at Tien-Tsin. M. De Giers, the Russian Minister to China, believes that every thing will be amicably adjusted at London and St. Petersburg, and doubts the possibility of further trouble in the matter. Gen. Voyron, commander of the French troops, has ordered a new regiment to Tien-Tsin to replace the one now there.

SPEAKS TO THE YOUNG

The Evangelistic Address Last Night Was Specially to Them.

Inspiring Music Preceded the Service -Several Pastors Take Part,

Park St. Church would have to be twice its size in order to seat all that sought admittance to the meeting last night. From the platform the vast

Dr. Battisby led in the opening prayer. "The Pearly Gates and Golden," is perhaps the most popular of all the beautiful songs Mr. Crossley sings, he gave it among several others last evening, Prof. Forsythe acting as accompanist. The solo, "I Shall be Satisfied," by Mrs. Milton Bogart was indeed sweetly sung, and should be repeated more than once. Seeing that the audience was composed for the most part of young people, Mr. Hunter took occasion to give advice regarding the important things of life. Choose first, said he, like Mary, the "better part," then a profession or calling, a training is necessary to making the most of life, while fortune inherited is often dangerous as a millstone around the neck of a young man or woman. Young men don't choose a wife from the ball room, young women' don't choose a husband from the barroom, f If you are wasting yourself after this fashion like the prodigal of the 15th chapter of Luke come to yourself (really the product the like the prodigal of the 15th chapter of Luke, come to yourself (your senses) and seek your father. God is looking for some prodigal here to-night; come. He will meet you, embrace you in arms of mercy; kisses of mercy will welcome you back to son or daughtership. If all the sins of the world past, present, or future were placed on one man; he could come to Jesus and have them blotted out in a moment of time. He came more to save the vile than the virtuous.

them blotted out in a moment of time. He came more to save the vile than the virtuous.

If there is one class of people that Mr. Crossley seems to be interested in more than another, it is those in the morning of sife, with the dew of youth still upon them, and this, perhaps, accounts for their great esteem for him. In addressing the young people last night he said: Young man, never make one of your own sex a companion whom you would not like to associate with your sister. Young women, never mingle with one of the opposite sex that is not pure, do not have many men companions or associates, companion with your parents. This is a grand world in which we live; we all want to be happy, and God has made it possible that we may be so. But pleasure is not to be found in the flatteries of men or the follies of the world.

Harriet Beccher Stowe early in lite took as her motto, "Trust is the Lord and do good," and lived up to it. This high ideal should be yours and no disappointment will follow your efforts to live up to it. A drummer boy in the American War lay dying on the battle field, said he, "Tell mother I never fliched a bit." In the battle field of life meet all its engagements bravely, and realize a joy unattainable by evading its responsibilities.
