One rarely meets with a more touch- ing romance than is found in the fol- lowing story which comes from Wales: A number of years ago some miners in exploring an old pit that had been closed, found the body of a young man dressed in a fashion long out of date. The peculiar action of the air of the mine was such as to preserve the body so perfectly that the body appeared asleep rather than dead. The miners were puzzled at the circumstance; no one in the district had been missed within their remembrance, and at last it was resolved to bring the oldest in- habitant, an old lady long past her eightieth year, who had lived single in the village the whole of her life. On being brought into the presence of the body a strange scene occurred; the old addressed it in every term of loving endearment, spoken in the language of bygone generations.
