Politics and Principles.

The persistence with which the Advocate returns to its defence of the Government's action in creating the new department of Shipping and installing Mr. Crosbie therein is a little suspicious. The counsel must find it a weak case in his own mind which needs such constant buttressing. Nobody is continuing to raise objections in the matter, it only for the reason that nobody imagines for a moment that they would be of the slightest avail. We are quite willing, too, to concede much that is claimed for the necessity of the department itself, the minor aspect of the question upon which the Advocate adroitly concentrates its attention. Our own objections have been made, not to the Ministry of Shipping, but to the Minister.

Here an interesting point presents itself. We quoted on Saturday a few extracts from the Advocate of not so very ancient date testifying to Mr. Crosbie's then opinion of the new minister, not so much to prove Mr. Crosbie's incapacity for the post (which they could not do in any case) as Mr. Crosbie's sincerity. The Advocate being hard put to it for a reply, the Herald generously steps in with a general deprecation of the practice of referring to back files. The plea comes with much force a few days after the Herald has been guilty of the very offence deprecated, its memory in one instance stretching back to the past no less than thirty years. We agree entirely, however, with the criticism, and merely plead in extenuation of our own misconduct the peculiar circumstances of the case. We admit, of course, its close resemblance to the other case the Herald mentions—of Lloyd George and the English nobility—and must confess the justice of the comparison of the two with Mr. Crosbie and Mr. Crosbie respectively, remembering the statesmanlike qualities of the one and the aristocratic tendencies of the other. Notwithstanding, we are still obstinate enough to believe that our Lloyd George's changed opinion of the local representative of nobility has had just the tiniest connection with the late change in their political relations. However, we will say no more about it. Mr. Crosbie, for the present, is the best of good fellows. But we feel we ought to warn him that if at any time sorry misfortune should throw him again into the camp in which Mr. Crosbie is not, he is likely to find himself become overnight villain of the deepest dye.

We think both the Herald and Advocate would strengthen their case and make a better impression on their readers if they would for once have the courage to answer some of the criticism that stirs them so deeply on its own merits. All the objections that we have made to the nature and composition of the present Government and to various of its acts have been made on distinct grounds, which we have distinctly stated. They have been "discredited" in every case as being merely "political"—we are on the other side in politics and no more need be said. That is all very well, but as no suggestion of criticism of any member of the Government or of any of its acts has ever come from the Herald or Advocate, or is ever likely to, it is hard to imagine from what source any criticism that is not "political" can come. Possibly all these things are above criticism of any sort—the Advocate seems to have found it to think so. For our own part, we shall have enough to say about politics when the proper time comes, and it is not far distant. Up to the present the ground of our attacks has been in every case the distinct violation of some important and recognized principle. The most important of all, the un-national character of the Government, its control by the F. P. U., and the identity of the F. P. U. with a large trading company, is too obvious to admit contradiction. The minor, but also important, matters on which we have written so strongly all involve fundamental principles. Thus, the oath taken by the F. P. U. candidates is utterly illegal and unconstitutional; not a single member who has taken it today, so too, in the case of the Tonnage Committee, the bare fact that the two vessels concerned were in Mr. Crosbie's name was enough to compel, in another country, the holding of an inquiry into the whole matter. Incidentally, the register of the vessels yet been corrected? So too, the holding by Mr. Crosbie of a position on the Defence Committee when his own ships were taken over for the patrol service was a scandalous impropriety which should have vitiated the whole transaction. So too, with the case of this Shipping department. We have no objection to Mr. Crosbie personally, and we are ready to believe that he is a capable man to occupy the position, but the fact that he is a large shipowner should, and anywhere else would, absolutely forbid his doing so. It needs no "politics" to object to these things. We challenge the Advocate and the Herald to defend any of them on legal and constitutional grounds. Is it politics, or is it reason and the fulfilment of a public duty, to oppose a Government which consistently disregards and sets at naught principles such as these, which are not merely recognized and respected everywhere else but of which the slightest violation is there invariably and immediately made the subject of Parliamentary or legal proceedings?

Captain The Hon. T. G. Fitzherbert

LANCASHIRE HUSSARS.

On July 10th, 1916, an instructional party was throwing five bombs from separate pits. A volley was ordered. All the bombs were thrown successfully except one, which hit the parapet and stuck in the mud. For three or four seconds the accident was unnoticed, as everyone was watching the bombs in the air, and the man who threw the bomb was too frightened to call out or to move. Suddenly Captain Fitzherbert noticed smoke issuing from the parapet and saw the bomb. He might have placed himself in safety by throwing himself on the bottom of the pit; but seeing that the man would be exposed to the full force of the explosion, he picked the bomb out of the mud and threw it clear just as it exploded. By his courage and presence of mind he undoubtedly saved the man's life, while risking his own.

The Libel Case.

The preliminary hearing in connection with the criminal libel action of Hon. W. F. Coaker vs. Sir W. D. Reid will be continued in the Judge's Chamber, Central District Court, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

It has been arranged that the further taking of evidence be held in the afternoons between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

In planning your meals for the day to meet the requirements of the Food Control Board, use Cleveland's Health Cocoa; it is appetizing, economical, nutritious and health giving.

Every man, woman and child can do something to help our country in this crisis by using Cleveland's Health Cocoa.

To help conserve food, insist upon having Cleveland's. Do not take any substitute. Jan 5, w, 81

Inquiry Held.

The inquiry in connection with the death of Mr. Patrick Kelly, who was killed recently while discharging coal from the Dominion Coal Co.'s steamer Hochelaga at Bell Island, was begun yesterday afternoon in the Central District Court before Judge Morris.

The evidence of several witnesses were taken including a number of the ship's crew.

Mission Circle Concert.

There was a small attendance at the variety concert given by the Cochrane Mission Circle last night. The programme which consisted of vocal and instrumental numbers and a recitation was much enjoyed by all. The following took part:—Misses N. Maund, B. Peckford, D. Vincent, Bowden, A. Maund, Young, Stone, G. Peters, M. Parsons, E. Milley, E. Wilson, V. Parsons, G. Knight, P. Snow, M. Maund, F. Reid, G. Young, E. Parsons and M. Grimes. The accompanist for the evening was Miss Peters.

At the Rinks.

Owing to a number of leaks in the floor at the Prince's Rink, the genial Frank has experienced considerable difficulty in getting a good foundation. The number of callers at both rinks are daily increasing.

A couple of inches of ice has been built up at the Curling Rink but not sufficient to guarantee satisfaction.

The Menace to the Country.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir,—Yesterday I dealt briefly with an attempt on the part of Mr. Coaker, through the medium of his "official organ" the Advocate, to blind the eyes of the fishermen of the Country to the real issue that now confronts us. It was alleged, in that paper, that those of us who are criticizing the present Government deny the right of the Fishermen's Union to representation in the Government—Lie No. 1. That we are "challenging the Union Companies right to exist"—Lie No. 2. That we are "attempting to injure organizations that are built up on the savings of fishermen"—Lie No. 3. That we "jeopardize the money that has been invested by comparatively poor men" by criticizing Mr. Coaker's betrayal of the Union—Lie No. 4; and that we are engaged in a "campaign of injuring the F. P. U., Mr. Coaker, and the associate organizations"—Lie No. 5. Truth and falsehood are mingled as they enter the stream of time, but that stream inevitably separates truth from falsehood at the last.

No person, so far as I am aware, has denied the right of any or every Union of workmen, be they fishermen or mechanics, to fair representation in the Councils of the Country. No person, unless it be Mr. Coaker himself, has attempted to injure the "organizations that have been built up on the savings of the fishermen." No criticism of mine, or so far as I am aware of anybody else, was calculated to "jeopardize the money that has been invested by comparative poor men," on the contrary, what has been written should prove a warning to the fishermen, and to Mr. Coaker who they pay to manage their business. What every sensible man is objecting to is that any one Union, or private business concern, shall control the Government of this Country. Those who now deny that to be a right, who charge that such a thing is immoral, and a peril to every other interest in the Country did not raise this issue, Mr. Coaker raised it in 1914.

Dr. Lloyd, then Editor of the Telegram, now Premier of this Colony by the kind permission of Mr. Coaker, put the case very clearly before the public in the Evening Telegram of date January 18th, 1914. He said:—"The President of the F. P. U. lays down unequivocally that the future aim of himself as President of the F. P. U. is that the F. P. U. members of the House, while not aspiring to be the Government, shall eventually control it. Mr. Coaker declares that this is the objective of the F. P. U.; and it must be remembered that he and his fellow F. P. U. members form the majority of the Opposition on the floor of the Assembly. While that objective would not have been aimed at immediately, had Sir Robert Bond obtained the Government at the last Election, MR. COAKER'S DECLARATION EMPHATICALLY THAT THIS IS THE OBJECTIVE OF THE F. P. U. AT THE NEXT GENERAL ELECTION. It will be apparent that this raises a new and grave issue so far as the Liberal members of the Party are concerned, and will have to be settled. If the F. P. U. majority of the House Opposition remains firm and that this shall be the objective of the F. P. U., then either the Liberal minority must accept it, reject it, or agree to postpone it. THE PRESIDENT OF THE F. P. U. RAISED THE ISSUE, SIR ROBERT BOND TOOK IT UP, AND REJECTED IT, and this among other matters led to his resignation. The raising of the issue by Mr. Coaker, the President of the F. P. U., its rejection by Sir Robert Bond, and his resignation has forced it on the consideration of the other members of the party, and forced it on their attention publicly, and the public will have a right to be taken into the confidence of those immediately concerned in order to know how the issue has been disposed of." Here then we have from the pen of Dr. Lloyd, Mr. Coaker's leader and Prime Minister, a complete refutation of the falsehoods which Mr. Coaker's "official organ" has endeavored to hide the great question at issue, and to mislead the fishermen of this Country. At this time, when the bravest of our boys are risking, and many of them losing, their lives in the world wide struggle for freedom and righteousness, it is the duty of the press to insist that the Government perform its duty and pledge to those heroes. But it is equally the office of the press to be on its guard that the war be not made the "camouflage" under cover of which political freebooters may successfully pose as great Imperialists and political charlatans pass current as patriots. In a few short weeks many of our people will have left their homes in pursuit of their ordinary avocations, and it will not then be possible for the press to reach them before a General Election. Troubled times are before us here at home, and the Electors' eyes ought to be opened "to the writing on the wall." No new light which can be thrown upon our public affairs should be neglected, nor should any evidence be ignored, much less suppressed. Every man who does so is a traitor to his Country. There is only a right and a wrong course, consequently there ought to be no compromise.

Your truly, VIGILANCE.

Supreme Court.

(Before the Three Judges.)

W. F. Coaker vs. W. J. Herder; W. F. Coaker vs. Daily News Publishing Co.; W. F. Coaker vs. St. John's Daily Star.

This was an application on the part of the defendants to have the proceedings in each action stayed until the completion of the criminal proceedings against Sir William Reid, Messrs. H. A. Winter and C. E. Hunt were heard on behalf of the defendants; Mr. Howley, K.C., for the plaintiff. Judgment was reserved.

Mistaken Identity.

Two lads named Michael O'Toole, 73 McFarlane Street and Edward O'Toole, 44 Brazil's Square, cousins, appeared before Judge Morris this morning, charged with loose and disorderly conduct (shouting and sham-fighting) on New Gower Street on Friday, the 18th inst. The complainants, Constables Murphy and Peddle, stated that the defendants together with a number of other boys were behaving in an unruly manner, by shouting, throwing snow-balls, and otherwise conducting themselves in such a manner that was not in accordance to law and order. The defendants in giving evidence proved their innocence without doubt to the Court, stating that they were not near the scene of disorder at the time stated but were enjoying a comfortable chat at an up-town billiard parlor. The Judge took the boys story as being correct and stated that it was clearly a case of "mistaken identity." However his Honor in conclusion pointed out that while the defendants were free of blame there were others who were guilty of such acts and should they fall into the arms of the police he will deal with them severely.

Close Successful Engagement.

For eight nights, the W. S. Harkins Players held the boards of the Academy and at each performance the theatre was packed to the doors. This is not to be wondered at when one stops to consider the high class Company which Mr. Harkins carries this season, and the quality of the plays he is producing.

On Saturday night, this exceedingly clever Company closed their engagement by presenting one of the best plays in their entire repertoire entitled "The Man Who Stayed at Home." This play deals with the German Spy System and it was staged in a manner that left nothing to be desired. Miss Marjorie Davis, as Molly Preston was as fine a piece of artistic acting as has been seen here for some time. Miss Dorothy Chesmond as Myrtle Keddington was splendid indeed.

Miss Lillian Worth played the part of Fraulin Schroeder in real good style, while Miss Lois Perkins as Mrs. Sanderson was a realistic piece of acting.

Mr. Joseph Selman the leading man, excelled himself in the role of Christopher Brent.

Mr. Joseph Mann gave a splendid interpretation of the character of Fritz. Miss Eugene du Blois as Miriam Lee was splendid. Mr. Ervill Alderson made a good John Preston, while Mr. Clay Cody as Percival Pennycook played well his part.

Mr. Chas. Newson played Carl Sanderson to perfection.

The role of Corporal Atkins was taken by Mr. W. F. Clarke in capital style.

The play itself is one of the best yet presented here and the audience which completely filled to overflowing the large Academy, were not slow to show their appreciation.

During the past eight days the W. S. Harkins players made such an impression upon theatre goers here as to ensure them more than royal welcome when they return to our city again. The above play will be presented by the W. S. Harkins Players on next Wednesday and Thursday nights. Every subject of the Allies should see it as it teaches a strong lesson and one learned during the present war by the British Secret Service. Seats are now on sale.

Buried at Dozingham.

Mr. Walter Walsh, Goulds, Bay Bulls Road is in receipt of the following letter from the Colonial Secretary:—

Dear Sir,—I beg to inform you that a report has now been received from the Nfld. Pay and Record Office, London, which contains the information that Pte. J. Walsh was buried at Dozingham British cemetery, 2 1/2 miles north of Poperinghe.

Yours faithfully, (Sgd.) R. A. SQUIRES, Col. Secretary. Dec. 31st, 1917.
