LIVELY SCHOOL FACTION FIGHT. Bellefontaine, Pa., April 9.-The dispute over the location of the school house in Curtain culminated in a free fight between the two factions after the building had been burned and an attempt made upon the lives of those trying to save it, by throwing dynamite bombs on the roof. The school house was demolished, and in the battle many of the villagers were

He says they were driven from her husband's brother, Alexander Blue, the shore by Spanish officers, although they had neither food nor water. While slowly making their way to Manzilla, they were stopped by a Spanish warship, he says, and not only was no help given them, but Adams' revolver was taken from him. GOOD ADVICE ABOUT DYSPEPSIA.

The Divine Sarah.

Brilliant Audience Greets Bern-

Sarah Bernhardt, the divine, the volatile, the only Sarah, appeared for the first, and perhaps the last time in London last night as "La Tosca." The Grand has held larger audiences, but seldom a more brilliant one, and probably none that represented so much cash in the box office. The $3 seats were nearly all taken; the bal-cony, at $2 per ticket, was packed, and the "gods," at $1 per seat, held a fair siastic, too.

The audience saw a tall, willowy figure. poet speaks of; a head crowned with a wealth of red-gold tresses which concealed her classic brow until she brushed them back in her tragic moments; a large, luminous pair of eyes; a flexible mouth sheathing a fine set of eyebrows-arched. Sardou's "La Tosca" has three climaxes which afford Mme. Bernhardt's genius unlimited scope. It is a tale of villainy and blood, told with theatrical effect, as the following synopsis shows: "Floria La Tosca (Mme. Bernhardt) is in love with an artist who is engaged in some church decoration, when a friend who has provoked the enmity of the Government flies to him for protection. First he conceals him in the church. Then he takes him to his nome, and, visited there by La Tosca, confides to her who it is he has concealed. Their conversation is interfields. This will make nine towns and and his followers in search of their rupted by the arrival of Baron Scarpia victim. Both La Tosca and the artist, Mario, claim to know nothing of his whereabouts. Baron Scarpia attempts to extort a confession by removing Mario to an adjoining room, where he is put to the torture, and La Tosca is left within hearing of her lover's agonizing cries, and before the audience Mario refuses to divulge his secret, but La Tosca, unable to longer stand the tortured cries of her lover, points out the hiding place. The prisoner is dragged forth dead, and Mario released. He curses La Tosca for her faithlessness to his friend. He is ordered to be shot for conspiracy, being first confined in prison. In the meantime Baron Scarpia lures La Tosca to his home on protestation of love and a proposal to release Mario. The price is La Tosca's love. She visits him, but only to slay Scarpia after thinking she has a written order for his (Mario's) release. Mario is to be shot, but La Tosca has arranged with the execuioners to leave out the deadly bullet, Tario to fall as if dead. As smoke of musketry clears away and the soldiers have gone away, La Tosca is seen rushing to Mario's side. They have played her false-they have

She commits suicide by jumping from the parapet into the The intensity of anguish in the tor ture scene was so consummately portrayed that her words were scarcely needed to heighten the effect, and the audience twice recalled her, pale and panting from her supreme effort. The B.B. to all poor suffering humanity who mentor and places candles at his head and a crucifix on his breast, was invested with a subdued horror, an indefinable weirdness that revealed the tragedienne in one of her greatest achievements. The audience was thrilled and delighted, and thrice called her back. Her assumed agony over the body of her lover was also a triumph of that art which conceals art, and won her another recall after the final curtain fell. The world's greatest actress was very gracious, and bowed her acknowledgment at every summons. So far as one could judge, Mme. Bernhardt's support was perfect. Her leading man, M. The curtain was rung up sharply at 8:15, but as this was an ultra-fashionable affair, many felt constrained to come much later, to the annoyance of ordinary mortals who were there on time. Mr. Wm. Ollett, probably the oldest male resident of Elgin county, passed away the other afternoon at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Robert Webb, of Middlemarch, at the age of 95 years. The deceased was born in Norfolk, England, and has been in Canada for 60 years. He lived in Caradoc for many years, and also formerly lived in Brantford. He leaves one son, residing in West Lorne, and one daughter, Mrs. Webb, of Middlemarch. His wife died eight years ago in Caradoc. The remains were taken to Mount Brydges for interment.

A sad affair occurred in the township of Elderslie recently. An old lady of 88 years of age, wife of David Blue, started to go from the house to visit who recently had all his fingers amputated through being frost-bitten. In passing between the two houses a bull belonging to her husband, which was released for a short time, made a rush for her. The old lady could not get out of its way, and it struck her in the body, knocking her down, and proceeded to gore and trample upon her. A dog came to her assistance, and its barking brought other help. When these arrived she had hold of the furious brute by the horns. A Turkish Artist Who Came to Buffal

Captivated by His "Model." The Buffalo Times of Tuesday says: spicy little romance came to light in this city on Monday that would make a poet or novelist dizzy. While the Harrison-Dimmock nuptials were being celebrated in New York that afternoon a young couple walked into Mayor Jewett's office and asked to be spliced. Whether they thought of the gay ex-President and his bride is not known, but the mayor united them, and their marriage was simultaneous With that of Ben's.

The couple were Gustav de Murangi, a late subject of the Sultan of Turkey, and Edith Stanard, a beautiful type of the American woman of today. They were in the mayor's office early in the day, but as conditions were not conducive to a desire to have the ceremony performed privately, they came late in the afternoon.

They were trying to evade reporters. The young bride, talking to a reporter, and unconsciously of his business, said: "I'm glad none of these horrid reporters are around. I really don't care, but Mr. Murangi prefers not to have the affair made public." Unfortunately reporters were there. They mayor did not ask them to step out.

Murangi is a handsome, finely-built man, 25 years old. He was born in Dlehpole, Turkey, where he lived un-til a few years ago, when he went to Paris to study painting. Completing his studies in the art, he came to this country at the time of the Chicago Exhibition, remaining in Chicago until a year and a half ago. Then he went to New York city, where he opened a studio and did portrait work for some of the best people in the city. Subsequently he came to Rochester, and thence to this city, arriving here about six months ago. Here Murangi opened a studio in the Morgan building. One of the first things he did was to advertise for a clerk. Miss Stanard responded to the advertisement. Her beauty and charming manner attracted Murangi, and he employed her. The young woman had not been in Murangi's studio very long before a mutual affection developed. The young couple were together every day. Miss Stanard posed once for her lover, and he painted a portrait of her that caused her to wonder at her own beauty. The mutual love was not long in bringing about an engagement, and a short time ago the announcement was made to their friends that they Were soon to be married.

OUR MAIL.

Our mail brings us every day dozens of letters about Burdock Blood

Bitters. Some from merchants who want to buy it, some from people who want to know about it, and more from people who do know about it because they have tried it and been cured. One of them was from Mr. J. Gillan, B.A., 39 Gould Street, Toronto. Read how he writes:

GENTLEMEN,-During the winter of 1892 my blood became impure on account of the hearty food I ate in the cold weather. Ambition, energy and success forsook me, and all my efforts were in vain. My skin became yellow, my bowels became inactive, my liver was lumpy and hard, my eyes became inflamed, my appetite was gone, and the days and nights passed in unhappiness and restlessness For some months I tried doctors' and patent medicines of every description, but received no benefit. Being advised by a friend to try B.B.B., I am glad to have the opportunity of testifying to the marvellous result. After using three bottles I felt much better, and when the fifth bottle was finished I enjoyed health in the greatest degree, and have done so from that day up to date. Therefore I have much pleasure in recommending B. suffer from impure blood, which is the beginning and seat of all diseases. € J. GILLAN, B.A., 39 Gould St., Toronto.
