

14,000 JOURNEY TO IRISH PICNIC

Attendance At Annual I. B. S. Lakeside Outing Breaks All Previous Records.

R. L. Brackin, M.L.A. For West Kent, Lauds Ideals of Organization.

Ireland in all her historic glory was reflected at Port Stanley Thursday, when more than 14,000 people from Western Ontario gathered with members of the Irish Benevolent Society to make merry at their 46th annual picnic.

When the last train had departed from the lakeside and the tired kiddies had been tucked in bed, officers in charge of the outing gave themselves over to much-needed slumber, confident of one fact, namely, that the picnic had been the most successful in the history of the society. With the weather man bribed to behave himself on this memorable occasion, there was nothing to prevent the thousands of merry-makers from enjoying themselves to the limit, and needless to say, the sons of Erin did themselves proud.

Heights Are Crowded.
Invererie Heights resembled a mass meeting Thursday afternoon, while the methods of running off the many events on the sports program placed the picnic in the same category as a three-ringed circus. There was a baby show, dancing and races under way all at the same time, with the result that there was not a dull moment throughout the afternoon.

The big day commenced with a parade through the streets of London Thursday morning by members of the society, and was concluded by a banquet in the cafeteria Thursday night, where good fellowship and harmony were the keynote. Not satisfied with this grand finale the Irish boys gathered in two special coaches of the last train and made the run to London a short one, by providing diversion in the form of Irish music, songs and dances. Knowing no creed or politics, the Irish Benevolent Society provided an ideal atmosphere for a good time, and a good time it was for all who joined in the outing. There were no untoward incidents to mar the day, with the exception of an accident which befell Ethel Aldridge, a 14-year-old High St. girl, who fractured her collarbone when she fell on the hillside.

Treated at Hospital.
Dr. H. A. Stevenson, M. L. A. for London, who was present on the grounds, attended the injured girl, and she was placed on the train following treatment at the L. and P. S. emergency hospital, and removed to London.

Features of the Irish picnic, which perhaps stood out in contrast to the other banner events, were the baby show and costume dancing held on Invererie Heights. In the former contest the outstanding item of notice was the exceptionally fine type of infants placed in the competition, all of which made the duties of Fire Chief John Aitken, chairman of this department, and Harry Merritt, who assisted him to judge, more difficult to decide on winners.

The dancing contests were presided over by Bill Moore, and the unusually large number of contestants added greatly to the interest and entertainment. Thomas Rowan, veteran dancer, was on the job as usual with the Irish picnic, and was given an ovation as he captured first prize for the Irish jig.

Stage Boxing Bout.
A tug-of-war for ladies was one of the original numbers on the program which vied with the boxing in barrels. The latter event was so strenuous that the barrels were wrecked, and the winners staged an amateur boxing bout for the benefit of the crowd before obtaining their prizes.

Led by a band of Irish pipers from Toronto, George H. O'Neill, a London old boy, past president of the Irish Benevolent Society, and now manager of the United Hotels in Canada, put in an appearance at the picnic grounds, and was accorded a hearty reception by his many friends who were present.

Refreshments were served to the members of the society from a tent on the hill, while concessionaires did a land-office business disposing of ice cream cones and soft drinks to the public.

Following the parade of London streets by members of the Irish Benevolent Society, headed by the 1st Battalion, W. O. R. band, Thursday morning, the picnicers embarked at 10:20 a. m. for Port Stanley, and thereafter the London and Port Stanley trains handled record crowds. The initial contingent stopped off a few minutes at St. Thomas and paraded the downtown Refused Quarters in Jail Man Breaks Window To Gain Cell.

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—Peter Walsh, 50, this afternoon walked into the police headquarters and asked to be locked up.

When the desk sergeant pointed out that no charge had been laid against him and that he could not be detained, Walsh went outside the building and smashed in three windows.

He was grabbed by a policeman, hauled at once before the magistrate and given two months, within five minutes of his application for accommodation in the jail.

streets, their numbers being augmented by Irishmen of the Railway City.

Railway Carries 14,000.
J. E. Richards, manager of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, to whom much credit is due, along with his staff, for the excellent manner in which the picnicers were carried to and from the lakeside with maximum convenience, informed The Advertiser Thursday night that approximately 14,000 people had traveled via railway to the lakeside. He estimated several hundred more who reached Port Stanley via auto, the parking spaces available resembling a motor show.

During the banquet in the cafeteria Thursday night, the thousands of people on the beach were entertained by a motion picture show and orchestra which played Irish music, the pleasure being concluded by a grand fireworks display. Daylight fireworks were also shown by the London and Port Stanley Company Thursday afternoon.

Lauds Society's Ideals.
More than 150 members of the Irish Benevolent Society attended the banquet in the cafeteria, at which the principal speaker was R. L. Brackin, M.L.A. for West Kent. In a brilliant address, with convincing words, the guest lauded the ideals of the society and declared that if they were applied nationally in Canada, an era of perpetual prosperity would dawn on the nation.

Introduced by President E. S. Little, who stated that he voted for the London Street Railway Company in the recent farce, "because Dick Ivor told him to," Brackin informed his audience that the event marked the occasion of his first opportunity of addressing the people of his own race, the Irish.

"There are only two people that understand me," began Mr. Brackin, "the Irish and the colored people. This audience is composed of Irishmen. I am a member of the Irish Benevolent Society, having joined ten minutes ago, with all arrears paid up. 'I am Irish on both sides of the fence,' continued Mr. Brackin, who immediately won the hearts of those present by his splendid address. 'My grandfather was a good Catholic, my grandmother was a good Protestant, and I am married to the only daughter of a Presbyterian minister, and defy anyone to tell me what I am.'

Commends Tolerance.
Lauding the ideals of the Irish Benevolent Society, the speaker urged that they be incorporated into Canadian national life.

"We should emphasize not our differences, but the things that we agree on," he declared. "So long as we all think nationally with the one goal in view, Canada will dominate. You don't worry about religion. A man who worries about his religion is going to keep him out of heaven. 'The Irish Benevolent Society is a living example of the beauties of tolerance and absolute absence of all bigotry. That's what we want in this country. You can argue politics until you are black in the face, but it does not make a particle of difference, because it's the men and women who count.'

"We ought to all strive to attain as individuals and as a society to get into the hearts and minds of the people the spirit that is going to pull us through. The only reason that I am in politics is because I like elections, and I like a fight. That's where my Irish ancestry comes in."

Referring to the Irish situation, Mr. Brackin said: "It gives us cable for grief, and it is the most lamentable thing, but Ireland will come out of it. The Irish have governed the city of New York the last 75 years, and are just as capable of governing as anyone else. Like a child they have got to learn to walk, and have never been given a chance. They said Canada could not govern at one time and the same applies to South Africa and Australia."

"I have always been in favor of home rule for Ireland. Give the Irish a chance to govern and show what they can do. Give Ireland fifty years like Canada has had and no man can stand up and say the Irish are not fit to govern themselves."

"The Irish Benevolent Society buries political and religious opinions, and that is a thing we have got to do in Canada. We are all responsible for the kind of government we get, in parliament and out. I do not think, as a general rule, the people who send men to parliament are quite fair to those who rule over them. There is too great a tendency to impute to these men in public life wrong motives the minute they disagree with them."

"They do not say it is a mistake, but done deliberately. Remember the man in public life cannot always be right. Give the man credit for what he does. There is darned little Canadianism preached these days in this country. It is all right to talk of the British Empire, but I would like to hear a little more of Canada."

"Some day we may be called to stand upon our own feet. I say stick to the British Empire as long as we can, but teach our own emigrants about our own country. Let us inculcate in our children what this society stands for, and make Canada what it ought to be."

"The future of the empire is not in London, England," concluded Mr. Brackin, "but lies in the hearts and minds of the people who go to make it up."

Thanking the members for their splendid co-operation, President E. S. Little declared that Thursday's picnic was the best in the history of the Irish Benevolent Society. He mentioned with regret the fact that Premier W. L. Mackenzie King and Hon. W. C. Kennedy, minister of railways, were unable to accept the invitation to be present at the picnic.

Past President George O'Neill addressed the members, and declared that he arrived from Toronto, "met the chief of police of London and had a good time." He informed his audience that he seized every opportunity to boost the Irish Benevolent Society as a great organization.

"I am glad to be back and meet the old gang," he asserted, adding the hope that he would be present at the 56th annual picnic of the wearers of the green.

Past President Ed. Killingsworth and Secretary Neil Coughlin also spoke briefly. During the evening Ed. Webster of London, and John Bridgman of St. Thomas, entertained with Irish songs, and music was provided by Angelo Cortese on the Irish harp, assisted by other musicians.

FOR SERIOUS LIVER, KIDNEY AND RHEUMATIC TROUBLES.

WHY BOXERS NEVER HAVE THEM.

TOLD BY Jimmy Wilde

Some training camp secrets divulged by the all-conquering little Welshman, who won his position at his weight, and winner outright of the Longdale Belt.

I have often been asked to explain the training methods responsible for my maintaining a permanently perfect state of physical fitness.

"Liverishness," languor, acidity, indigestion, and dyspepsia, catarrh, neuralgic pains, backache, headache, rheumatism, gout, lumbago, etc., etc., all arise simply from the accumulation of impurities in the system. Obviously the one and only way to get rid of these complaints quickly and permanently is to clear the impurities out. To do this, thoroughly cleanse the clogged organs of filtration, thus preventing the absorption of further poisons. The self-poisoning absorption process is the direct cause of most serious ailments and diseases. Auto-intoxication, the medical men call it, and all such scientific terms as toxins, bacilli, uric or stomach acids, bacteria, etc., are only fancy names for common impurities or poisons.

To make and keep the whole body absolutely fit, the digestion good, the mind clear and alert, eyes bright, and nerves steady as steel, simply drink occasionally, before breakfast, a tumbler of salt saturated water, prepared by adding a level teaspoonful, or less, of refined Alkali Salts.

This produces a pleasant-tasting drink, and, being a standard compound, can be had at little cost from any good chemist. It exactly reproduces the curative waters of certain natural medicinal springs, and Eugene Corri, the famous referee, when speaking recently of its effects in his own case, said the salt saturated water treatment proved better than a visit to a spa.—Adv.

LOST FOR 6 WEEKS, HORSE COMES BACK

Animal Belonging To James Chantler Displays Homing Instinct.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 17.—That horses, like pigeons and cats, have homing instincts, is demonstrated by the return to Rodney of an animal belonging to James Chantler of Rodney, after an absence of six weeks.

About July 1 Mr. Chantler, who is an aged fish peddler, was found near Port Stanley with a nasty cut in his throat. It is believed that he was overcome by the heat and fell from his wagon. The horse and fish cart were missing and no trace of them was found by county police. The horse returned a few days ago, and appears to have been well fed.
