Al Mamaux, the Brooklyn right hander, wishes it to be known that he not only can tenor with the best of them, but wields a wicked bow on the violin. Mamaux volunteered this information yesterday in referring to the fact that a wag at Ebbets Field last Saturday, while Al was being mauled by the Giants, suggested that the game be stopped to let the pitcher sing.

"Of course, everybody knows that I can warble, but it might help if the public in general knew that I can also punish a bull fiddle," said Mamaux. "You never can tell when an advertisement like that will help." So hereafter Al will be open to invitations not only to sing, but to play the violin as well. But he threatens to surprise them all the next time he mounts the hill.

The first period, which ended 1—1, found the girls checking each other so closely that neither team had chance for anything but hastened shooting on the few times they reached shooting range. The only scores made in this period were the result of fouls, Lottle Garrett tossing the first Shamrock counter with a free three that the side of the state of the period were the result of fouls, Lottic Garrett tossing the first Shamrock counter with a free throw. A few minutes later, Rene Curnoe evened it up.

Thistles combined nicely to start the second period, taking the ball right in under the Shamrock hoop, but Annie Hazelgrove's shot was inches out. Shamrocks tried, but Isobel Duncan had no better luck than her opponent. And after the ball had changed ownership once or twice, Thistles again combined for the first basket of the game, Rene Curnoe making a pretty shot.

Although the checking was close for the remainder of the half, both Sham-rocks and Thistles slipped over some nice combination, resultless, however, in the way of baskets. Just before the half-time whistle, Lottle Garrett and Isobel Duncan took the ball through for a shot, which rolled out of the ring and a shot, which rolled out of the ring, and the score remained 3—1 for the Thistles. Shortly after the opening of the last half, Mary Lindsay tossed a foul shot, bringing the Shamrocks to within one point of tieing the score. Carrie Blackwell, playing for Isobel Duncan, was hurt in a collision under the Shamrock basket, and the immense throng cheered her when she gamely continued.

There was a hush when Mary Lindsay paused, to toss a foul shot, a shot that would have tied the score, but the ball glanced out of the cage. The Thistles outshaded the Shamrocks towards the end of the third session, on combination, but were shooting wide of the mark. Shamrocks had almost as many shots, however, but they, too, were missing them.

The third period started, and the Thistles shortly increased the score to 4 to 2, when Frances Taibot, the sensational little defence player, tossed a free shot. Just previously, Rene Curnoe was taken out, with four personal fouls, not one of which might be classed as "rough play." But Referee Miller was calling them according to the rules, and Rene was out. Billy Southworth, snapped in the opening series of the year with Giants.

The return of Billy Southworth, dapper right fielder and captain of the Boston Braves, may not be enough to lift that team far from the cellar but it has caused great joy in Boston.

Willum was forced from the game for the rest of the season last year after breaking into 43 games. Injuries and sickness were the cause.

'His absence made the fans realize what a sparkplug he was in the Hub machine.

Billy's return recalls his spectacular entrance into the big show. The gent with the starched pantaloons and white washed face never hopped through a paper hoop with more celat than Billy shopped into the grand melee.

This is what happened and how it came about, as the story books say.

Southworth had been tried out by the Cleveland club back in 1915 and shipped to Portland. In 1917 he joined Birmingham.

In midseason 1918 Manager Bezdek of the year with Giants.

Outfielder to put the Pirates in the running. The other big league clubs must have figured he had the dope right for no one offered him anything in the way of a gardener. So the Pirate bosses to Birmingham.

Southworth was recommended and Bezdek took him.

The Pirates didn't cop the flag that year. But it wasn't Southworth's fault. He was in the fight up to his neck right off the bat. When the smoke games. Zack Wheat, crowned king of hitters in the old circuit that season, hit only .335. Zack, however, broke into 105 games, which gave him the edge.

In addition to being a dangerous hit ter Southworth is a versatile man at the plate and a fleet runner on the bases. He has the dash and pep necessary in a team leader.

Bill allows as how he's set for a big year.

Go to it, Mr. Southworth.

In midseason 1918 Manager Bezdek of the Pirates figured he needed a star Go to it, Mr. Southworth.

W. O. McGeehan writes: "Mr. Jess Willard is now located at Yonkers. According to the most reliable information, Mr. Willard is about as svelt as a gentleman who is past forty can be. Having been one of those who saw Mr. Willard knocked down seven times in one round by Jack Dempsey, I still think that he might have something of a chance on May 12.
"I think that Willard's trouble at Toledo was that he underestimated the logical contender. He thought that he had an insignificant fighter in Dempsey of the caliber of Frank Moran. Suddenly he found his jaw dislocated and one of his ribs broken. After that he could not pull himself "In the battle of May 12 I do not think that Willard will make the same sort of mistake. I think that he is quite likely to step out in the first round and carry the fight to the contender. If he does not, then the contender surely will finish Mr. Willard."

The L. and D. J. F. A. have taken into consideration both sides of the question, and are meantime working according to the St. Thomas Junior League's first wish, viz., that Rovers be allowed to enter their league. As the L. and D. J. F. A. has declared before, they do not wish to place any obstacles in the way of developing the grand old game in St. Thomas or elsewhere, only that they expect all clubs and subsidiary leagues operating under their auspices to at least refrain from going back on their word, thereby causing unnecessary dissension, which, in so far as the St. Thomas Junior League is concerned, could very easily have been avoided had they come out "plump and plain" in the first case that Rovers' entry would not be entertained owing to their being too experienced for the other St. Thomas Junior League clubs entered.

Meantime it is a good thing for Rovers that London is willing to adopt them as their own, as a turn-down on the Londoners' part would most assuredly leave Rovers without competition. If the St. Thomas Junior League approach the district governing body through the right channel no doubt about it but that an amicable settlement can be arrived at on the question at stake, and one that should satisfy all parties interested. Co-ordination is what is required, not dissension. When Rovers entered London Junior Association football in 1920 they were more experienced than the interested London teams, but because of that fact the London chaps did not refuse them entry the following two years, knowing full well that whilst pitted against experience they were undoubtedly learning the finer points of the game, and the Londoners present play on the soccer gridiron emphasizes that fact clearly.
