Leaning too much on one's own understanding and neglecting to feed the soul daily were two more stum-bling blocks. She pointed out that family prayer, or something in the nature of the spiritual, was a splen-did thing to introduce into the home She had gained more, nowever, through honesty with her children, she said. Instead of telling the child what she had done in her days of the guest of Mr. C. J. Bawden, King childhood, she confided in him that she had some of his faults herself. In this way she won confidence and in honor of her assistants, following was so much more able to help the her post-nuptial reception this afchild to do the right thing.

Simplicity and originality were also great forces. One of her regrets was the fact that she had not taught and Mrs. D. J. McKay, Waterloo children from the cradle to love street north, over the week-end, and admire the beautiful in life.

Mackenzie King Government Reduces the Cost of Living

By ISABEL C. ARMSTRONG.

Appreciate it or not, every woman, every growing-up girl in Canada, is just as vitally concerned with the principles, policies and performances of a government as the man who can talk with authority and who has given his attention to the study of politics for years.

The name "party platform" may sound mysterious and awe-inspiring, but it is every girl's and every woman's concern because it affects her personal welfare. The woman who writes herself down as "housewife" when the census man calls has excellent reason to be interested in the subject of the cost of food, clothing, rent, fuel, of how far a dollar will go in buying supplies, what size hole the taxes are going to make in the family income, and whether the laws on the statute books and the administration of these tend to guard the safety of her home. And so has the woman who is making her own way in the world, who pays taxes, income or otherwise, who must provide herself with dresses and coats and rubbers and shoes, living quarters and meals, life and casualty insurance premiums, and the fund for the "rainy day," or the years when earning capacity has ceased. The young girl who holds her first position as cash girl in a ten-cent store or skilfully manipulates an elevator has her own problem, that of "cost of living." And that is why every woman voter and voter-to-be is person ally concerned with the record and achievements of the Mackenzie King government in the past four years, the things for which the Liberal party stands in appealing to the electors of Canada for return to office on Oct. 29th. (Tomorrow Miss Armstrong will tell how the Mackenzie King government has brought about better living conditions in Canada.)

Should Two Engagements Be Broken in Order That One Couple Be Happy?-Weighing a Husband.

Dear Miss Dix-I am a girl of 22 engaged to a wonderful man. I thought I loved him, but recently ! have met another man who has made ferent from love as skim milk is

Strangely enough, this other man was also engaged, and he, too, finds are 21 or 22 than you have what kind that what he thought was love was of a hat you will want, and the sort lan, and Western Ontario's oldest just friendship, and that I am the that you pick out when you are 18 Canadian-born resident, was laid in woman he cares for, his predestined

What shall we do? Shall we have trusted us and who love us, and marry each other? Or shall we sac-WORRIED LOVERS.

Answer:

Break your engagements and marry the one you love. There is no question about that being the right thing and the honorable thing to do under the circumstances. For there is no hell worse than that of an unequal marriage, in which one party loves and the other is cold and indifferent, and you have no right to drag a fellow creature

So I say if you are on the very steps of the altar and realize that your feelings have changed, and that you no longer care for the one that you are about to swear to love as long as life lasts, it is better to turn back than to go on and perjure your soul by taking a vow that it is impossible for you to keep. In olden times it used to be con-

Miss sidered the heroic thing for disillusioned men and women to go on and marry the ones to whom they were betrothed, no matter how distastethem nor how much they had come to care for someone else. This was considered a noble gesture and furnished the theme of innumerable pathetic novels and poems. But nowadays we see this for the sickly sentimentality that it is. We any happines.

For no man or woman can keep up the pretene of being in for a lifetime. No man or woman is so stupid as not to know when a wife or husband is indifferent and when he or she is endured instead of cherished. And of all intolerable positions under the sun, the worst is that of the unwanted wife or husband who has been married for pity.

A broken engagement may not be a pretty thing but it is not the horror that a wrecked marriage is. There is no ruined ne in it, no orphaned little children, no scandal and no shame. The wounds are surface ones that soon heal, but an unhappy marriage with an unloved man or woman scars the very

So don't hesitate about breaking an engagement if you have ceased to love the one you are betrothed to and have come to love somebody else. Let all concerned thank God that you found out about your change DOROTHY DIX. of feeling in time.

Dear Miss Dix-I am a girl of 16, and have a boy friend who begs me to marry him in two years' time. His good points are: Truthfulness, good looks, ambition; has saved some money; has plenty of friends; my parents approve of him. His bad points are: He is three inches shorter than I;

does not want me to go to college; does not want me to act nice to other boys; jealous; quick tempered; always wants to be kissing; seldom

What do you think of him? MAIDEN.

Answer: Not much. From your summary of his qualities, it seems to me that his faults far outweigh his virtues, and that he is selfish, inconsiderate of you, argumentative and dictatorial. He does not want you to study and improve yourself or to go about and enjoy yourself, and he would make the sort of husband who thinks it is enough happiness for any woman just to be married to him and make him comfortable.

But, my dear little girl don't think of tying yourself down at 16, or even 18, to any man. At that age you have no more idea of what kind of a husband you will want when you me follow your own formula and afternoon, having lived to the ripe

The points in favor of an early days.

The idea that it is romantic: the fun and fuss of a wedding; showing off your engagement ring; the gratification of a childish dream.

The points against it are:

Losing all your playtime of life. Having to stay home and keep house, when you want to be running around with the other boys and girls. Cooking. Cleaning. Babies. The certainty that your taste will change, and that you will get tired of the boy you marry. The danger of meeting some man when you are grown with whom you will fall in love. It doesn't pay, my dear. Don't DOROTHY DIX.
