Pook-McDoulton Battle Will Be Feature of Evening's Card.

The closer it gets to Friday night the better the matched card being staged at the armories by the Garrison A.A.A. looks. It is by far and away the most pretentious effort the Garrison people have made and they weren't piking when they set out to give the local fans a card full of action, and opened it to the world, west of Toronto and east of Windsor. Cy Pook and McDoulton of Toronto are the wind-up of the show, and this mix should send the spectators out making empty passes at the air if it's anything like the mauling the two did in their last meeting at St. Thomas. The St.

Thomas ring was small, alleged 16 feet, but looked about five when those mastodons took their corners; and once the gong tinkled, there was nothing but the noise of terrific stamping and the dull thud of leather against flesh as the two started each round with a simultaneous rush. McDoulton, rangier and heavier, led and then hugged, but Pook got in some good infighting despite the grizzly stuff. McDoultor will likely adopt this style again, ough he usually stands off

GOOD SPORTSMEN.

The Elgin Regiment A. A. of St. Thomas might have had Cy Pook jure his hand, slip on the icy pavement, or a dozen and one things rather than let him meet McDoulton here Friday night with their own show but a week away. However, they didn't, and were only too eager to have Pook figure in the feature bout here. It argues well for the sportsmanship of the St. Thomas organization and for Pook's confidence in taking on the heavyweight champ and giving away pounds in weight. Cy has an ingrown idea that if he can once land one of his coma-rights on McDoul on, the big fellow will topple. London fans may see the event happen.

INTIMIDATION.

Ingersoll has broken into the ranks of those "hooligan" hockey towns, if reports of the officials of the London junior hockey club are to be believed. The London youngsters started out on the trip under vague warnings that they were in for a warm session, and when they got to the rink the boards were lined with rowdles and everything from hockey sticks to tree-limbs. Referee Legg had to stop the game several times to have the wooden artillery removed from the sides or at least concealed behind the boards. London youngsters under these conditions kept away from the boards, and the Ingersoll youngsters ran wild down the side laneways. To the credit of the Ingersoll players themselves, it must be said they played good clean hockey and, despite the fact that they had free passage down the boards

The general feeling in local hockey circles seems to be that Referee Legg should report the matter to the O. H. A. and not mince words. Inger-the tune of 9 to 1. soll has had too high a reputation as a sporting center to have it marred at this late date by a few rowdies, whose language, let alone their methods utes after play started by C. Harper, of intimidation, was sufficient to warrant action of some kind by the O. H. A. after a fine run down the ice by D. of intimidation, was sufficient to warrant action of some kind by the O. H. HARD TO REMEMBER.

It's hard for youngsters playing hockey to remember that few hockey players have ever been killed by rabid fans. It's even hard for some of the hardened veterans to remember this, for situations which at the time looked dangerous seem sorta funny and ludicrous next day.

WAITING FOR THE BIG MONEY.

Lack of confidence in ringside officials, loudly expressed over a number of decisions recently in Madison Square Garden, is not altogether responsible of the consented to keep the consented to for the few championship bouts put on this winter. Harry Greb and Gene Tunney are the only ones so far gestions made by the Ingersoll club. who have been willing to risk their titles indoors against really formidable opponents. Nothing apparently can be done to insure more competition without the help of a boxing body which will be truly national in its scope. William Muldoon's effort to force champions to accept the first legitimate challenge, within six months after winning a title, was all in vain, as sound as the principle was, because of lack of co-operation by other state boxing commissions. The day is coming, however, when a concerted effort will be made along the same line, and then it will not fail to correct a boxing evil.
