To the Editor of the Graphic.

Since the amount asked for, for the 132nd Band has been realized in contributions already received or donations promised, I would suggest that this fund be closed so far as it concerns the public. However, any parties such as schools, having entertainment, and many the proceeds of which were intended for the band fund, may donate the same to the 132nd Battalion towards Regimental funds or Field Commissions. All such contributions will be most thankfully received.

It has been decided that no schools will be overlooked in regards giving of the Panoramic picture, although the amount contributed did not reach the required sum mentioned in my circular letter to the schools.

EARL KITCHENER AND STAFF LOST OFF THE ORKNEYS

Were on Board the Hampshire Which Met With Disaster—Torpedo or Mine Mentioned, But No Information Given

London, June 6.—Earl Kitchener, British Minister of War, and his staff were on board a British cruiser which was sunk by a mine or torpedo, off the Orkneys. It is feared that all were lost.

Four boats were seen to leave the Hampshire, but a heavy sea was running. Only a capsized boat and some bodies have been found.

Earl Kitchener was on his way to Russia. Admiral Jellicoe reports that there is little hope that there were any survivors.

The Orkney Islands, off which the Hampshire went down, are off the north coast of Scotland. The Hampshire was on her way into the Atlantic and around the northern end of the Scandinavian peninsula, into the White Sea. Earl Kitchener probably intended to debark at Archangel.

CANADIANS AGAIN IN HEAVY FIGHTING

Uphold Reputation of Canadian Army.—Casualties Will be Heavy

Ottawa, June 5.—The severest fighting in which the Canadians at the front have yet engaged, with the all too pronounced probability of a casualty list in keeping with the intensity of the battle, occurred on Friday and Saturday in the Ypres salient.

While the Third Canadian Division bore the brunt of it, the mention of other battalions in the casualty list this morning indicates that some troops from another division participated as well.

Ottawa has not yet received the descriptive particulars of the fight, but what has come through is a list of casualties which show losses which, put it as mildly as possible, are heavy indeed.

The officer's names came first, and it is shown that a hundred and three of them have fallen, the greater proportion belonging to the cavalry brigade which General Victor Williams, now wounded and a prisoner in the hands of the enemy, had under his command.

When among the officers the losses are so severe, it is all too easy to surmise the proportionate losses sustained by the men in the ranks. There are some prominent men among the fallen. Col. Harry Baker, M. P. for Bromes, who commanded a Quebec cavalry brigade, is dead of his wounds; Lieut. Col. H. C. Buller, the third commander of the Princess Pats, and former A.D.C. to the Duke of Connaught, is killed outright; and Lieut. Col. A. E. Shaw of Brandon, is also reported killed.

For the third time Major A. Hamilton Gault has been wounded. As stated, Major General Mercer and General Victor Williams are seriously wounded.

There are only two Maritime Province names in the list received by General Sir Sam Hughes this morning, as follows:

On June 2nd, killed, Lieut. P. S. Nisbet, St. John.

On June 3rd, wounded, Lieut. C. R. Mersereau, Chatham, N. B.

The brunt of the battle apparently was borne by General Williams' cavalry brigade, serving as infantry and made up of troops from Toronto, Montreal and the other towns of the St. John, Brandon, Victoria and other points.

GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF NAVAL BATTLE

Pride of German Navy Sent to Bottom by Destroyers.—Torn to Pieces

Edinburgh, June 5.—Survivors arriving here from British destroyers, which made a massed attack on a German battleship in the Jutland battle, are convinced that they sent to the bottom the dreadnought Hindenburg, the pride of the German navy. These sailors say that the Hindenburg was struck successively by four torpedoes, while the destroyers dashed in alongside her hull tearing her to pieces, until the mighty ship reeled and sank.

An officer from one of the destroyers gave the following graphic account of the battle:

"The pride of the Grand Fleet went into action as if they were going into manoeuvres. From every yard arm the white ensign flew, the flag which is to the sailor as the tattered colors were in the days of old to a hard pressed regiment. That it went hard with the little cruisers, is apparent, but one ship cannot fight a dozen. They had fought a great fight, a fight to be proud of, a fight which live longer than many a victory.

"We fought the foe, and if anything is certain, in the uncertainties of naval battle, it is that we gave at least as good as we got. We passed along the line of German ships some miles away and let off broadside after broadside. The air was heavy with masses of smoke, black, yellow, green and every other color, which drifted slowly between the opposing lines, hiding sometimes friend and sometimes foe. The enemy ships were firing very fast, but watching the ships in front one came to the conclusion that the shooting was decidedly erratic.

Again and again salvos of shells fell far short of the mark to be followed immediately by others which screamed past high in the air.

"I watched the Iron Duke swinging through the seas, letting off broadside after broadside, wicked tongues of flame leaped through clouds of smoke. The direction of battle was stunning, stupendous, deafening, as hundreds of the heaviest guns in the world, roared out at once. Great masses of water rose in the air, like waterspouts, reaching as high as the masts, as the salvos of German shells fell short or went over their target. Now and then a shell found its mark, but it left me absolutely cold, as is its effect on each man at a time like this. A dozen men may be knocked out at one's side. It makes no difference. It is war.

"It was impossible to see what was happening among the ships of the foe. (Continued on page 7)
