

more turn would bring him again me. I lowered the groun' hog. The snake put his stinger three inches into the carcass give one gasp, an' was dead'n: a snared pheasant. Au' that's the way I found out that groun' hogs was cold pizen to hoope.s. I couldn't tell you why, but them's the facts that I kin make affidavit to."

There was dead silence for three minutes.

"The hooper was the father o' the rest," continued the old settler. "I knowed it by his size. I cut his horn off, an' I've got it yet. The biggest fight I ever had was over that horn. Old Sol Helms said, when I showed it to him, that it was one o' the spurs of a game rooster somebody had stole from him a day or two before. So I had to pitch in and lick him.

"Twenty-four years' experience," says an eminent Physician, convince me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used, Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. THE Manchester, regarding which we have hitherto restrained any positive expression of opinion, is one of the most desirable strawberries we have ever raised, and we have tested not less than 250 different kinds. The only thing that can be said against it is that it is a pistillate, and must be grown near perfect-flowering sorts, which for many farmers is attended with trouble or perhaps inconvenience. Our plants are exceedingly vigorous and productive. We have just examined them and find that each plant, on an average, bears 16 peduncles or flowering stems, and that each flowering stem bears, on an average, 10 berries—giving 160 berries to a plant. We beg to emphasize that we are speaking of average plants. On one plant we counted 23 peduncles and 220 berries in the various stages from ripe to just set. This berry is firm, very uniform as to shape, which is roundish conical;—it ripens in every part and averages above medium as long as it remains in fruit. The quality when ripe is good, though, like the Wilson, it is sour when it first colors—a characteristic, it seems, of all excellent market berries. It ripens with the Sharpless and after the Bidwell. * * * It thrives in a light, dry, sandy soil. With us it thrives in a moist soil inclining to clay. Several years ago, from our own tests, we spoke highly of the Sharpless, and soon after its introduction, of the Canabland Triumph. We have never had occasion to regret this, and we have now little fear that we shall regret commending the Manchester to our readers as the best market berry at present known. OLD EDITIONS OF THE BIBLE.

Queer titles have been given to some editions of the Bible. The "Bugg" Bible was printed in London 1561, and received its nickname from the fact that Psalm xci, 5, was translated "Thou shalt not need to be afraid of any bugges by night," instead of as in our version, "afraid of the terror by night."

The "Breeches" Bible was printed in Geneva in 1460, and is so called from Genesis iii, 7, being translated, "They sewed fig leaves together and made themselves breeches," instead of "aprons," as in our version.

The "Treacle" Bible was printed in 1568, and in Jeremiah viii, 22, reads, "Is there no treacle in Gilead?" instead of "balm." In 1609 this word was changed to "rosin," and so came the name of the "Rosin" Bible; and in 1611 this last word was changed for "balm," as now.

The "He" Bible, printed in 1611, takes its name from Ruth iii, 15, "He measured six measures of barley and laid it on her, and he went into the city," when the word should have been "she went into the city," etc.

The "Wicked" Bible was printed in 1631, and was named from its omitting the word "not" from the seventh commandment, making it read, "Thou shalt commit adultery;" and this extraordinary omission occurred again in a German edition of 1732, so that there was a "Wicked" Bible in each language.

The "Vinegar" Bible was printed in 1707, and is so called from the headline of Luke xx, which in it is made to read, "The parable of the vinegar," instead of "The parable of the vineyard." The printer of this edition was one John Basket, of Oxford, and from its many errors of spelling and punctuation it was sometimes called "A basket full of errors."

The "Bel-pot" Bible was the edition translated by Eliot for the Indians. Describing, by the sign of crossing his fingers, what he thought would represent the "lattice work" through which the mother of Sisera cried (Judges v, 28), he asked the Indians for the proper word for it, and they gave him one, which he inserted in his translation, supposing, of course, it was right. But when he became more fully acquainted with their language he found he had made the passage read, "The mother of Sisera looked out at a window and cried through the cel. at," instead of "lattice."

Our Young Folks.

ED. YOUNG FOLKS.—I began to take your paper last May, and like it very much. I often read the letters in our column, and have often thought I would like to write one. I have a little bird named Dicky, and he is very tame. When I call him he will come to me, and often when I am writing he will fly down and perch on my pen. I leave his cage door open all the time, and he goes out and in when he likes. The other day he was sick, and we thought he was going to die, but he got well again the next day. I have a little baby brother a week and three days old. This is my first letter. G. O. Moon.

A CHERRY TREE LESSON.

A naughty little city boy was taken to a farm. To spend the summer holidays, away from heat and harm; Where he could roll upon the grass, or chase the little chicks. Or tease the piglets in the pen by poking them with sticks.

To pull the peacock's feathers out to him was lots of fun. The geese stretched out their necks and chased, and made him turn and run. He didn't dare to plague the dog, for fear that he would bite; But he was in all sorts of scrapes from morning until night.

One day he climbed a cherry tree that in the garden grew. Because it was the very thing he'd been told not to do; The cherries they were red and ripe, and looked very sweet— That naughty boy he swallowed them as fast as he could eat.

But when he'd eaten all he could, and scratched down again, He sat upon the ground and soon began to scream with pain. And when at last the doctor came he very grimly said, "Give him a dose of castor-oil, and put him right to bed."

"It isn't nice," said his mamma, "to lie in bed all day; I hope 'twill be a lesson, Tom, and teach you to obey." Tom promised solemnly no more that cherry tree to climb; And his mamma was very sure he meant it—at the time.
