

need of assistance, is still another reason why you should avail yourself of the observance of this ordinance as a help to your piety.

Once more, Christ has enjoined upon his disciples the duty of confessing him before their fellow-men, in other words, the duty of openly avowing their belief in, and their devotion to him. This may be done in different ways. And it is, in some degree, done by openly uniting in the support of, and in attendance upon Christian worship. Still, at the present day, the observance of the Supper is generally regarded as the most decided and distinct avowal of our faith in, and our devotion to Christ. It is so understood by the community, it is so felt by the individual. And this constitutes still another reason why Christians should unite in the observance of this ordinance.

A CHAPTER FOR CHILDREN.

MY SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS.

AN, I see the laughing blue eyes, which are peeping into this rather grave looking volume, turning over this page, and that, now stopping to glance at the poetry, then spelling out some big word, and at last throwing it aside with an impatient sigh, and a wish that there could be something for you in a snug corner of mamma's book, and this time there shall be if you will listen to me a little while.

Are you a sunday scholar; if so, I know you would like to be introduced to my little class, and to hear some stories about them. I must take you to a large old fashioned church, entirely surrounded with a thick grove of locusts, whose light and feathery foliage, waved with every
