

In the view of my delegation, the most important question of the less-developed countries is a cooperative behaviour involving developed and developing alike. However time-worn these words may sound, to me they are worth repeating often so that we may never lose sight of the reality they express. Last year this

.....3

development of others. The most important question facing us in this Committee is that of economic development of the less-developed countries. It is a matter of cooperative behaviour involving developed and developing alike. However time-worn these words may sound, to me they are worth repeating often so that we may never lose sight of the reality they express. Last year this

.....3

development of others. The most important question

facing us in this Committee is that of economic development of the less-developed countries. It is a matter of cooperative behaviour involving developed and developing alike. However time-worn these words may sound, to me they are worth repeating often so that we may never lose sight of the reality they express. Last year this

.....3