

miss to their deserved obscurity the men who would raise themselves to political power on the ruins of the national edifice! (Great applause.) In fine, I ask you to join with me and say, what I shall say by my voice and vote to Oliver Mowat:—"Well done, good and faithful servant; faithful in few things, I will make thee ruler over many things." (Loud and prolonged applause.)

(13)