

CONTENTS.

ix

PAGE.	PAGE.
False report of Carleton's proceedings 82	Depressed condition affairs of congress 99
Sherwood returns by lake Champlain 82	Général Bailey sent to Vermont 99
Hardships of his journey 82	Hopes to destroy influence of Chittenden 100
Reaches Chimney point 83	Ira Allen and Fay advise issue of proclamation 100
Reaches Saint John's 84	The proclamation drawn up 100
The assembly of Vermont 84	Legislature of Vermont meets 101
Declines to aid continental commissary 84	News of de Grasse's action 101
Beverly Robinson's second letter. Sent by Allen to congress 85	Cornwallis' danger known 102
Germain's letter 85	Cornwallis' surrender 102
Haldimand's reply 85	Cause Vermont remaining in union 103
Indecision of congress 86	New York more self asserting 103
Ira Allen at Ile-aux-Noix 87	Charge against chief justice Smith considered 104 ⁿ .
Found "cautious and intricate" 87	Haldimand instructed to remain on the defensive 105
Allen's declarations 88	Vermont still unsettled 105
Good faith of the negotiations 89	Peace negotiations known 106

CHAPTER V.

[1781-1782.]

Allen declares himself without authority 90	Vermont claims to be admitted 14th state 107
Promises commissioners should be nominated 91	The colonial relation 108
Returns to Vermont 91	Unwise influence of the colonial office 109
Opinions as to these meetings 92
Terms on which Vermont would be received 93
Allen's letter, matters are ripening 93
Chittenden's letter 94
Sherwood and Smith meet major Fay 95
Estimate of population Vermont 95
Advantage gained by Canada in the negotiation 96
New Hampshire grants before congress 96
General Allen in disfavour 97
Vermont commissioners proceed to congress 97
The resolutions of congress 98
Smith and Sherwood at Ticonderoga 98
They ascend lake 99

BOOK XXIV.—CHAPTER I.

[1781-1782.]

Influence of Cornwallis' surrender 113
True causes of failure in the war not considered 114
The interference of Germain, and the incompetence of generals. 114
Continuation of disasters 115
Resignation of Germain rewarded by a peerage 115
Losses in West Indies 115
Appointment of Welbore Ellis 115
Resignation of lord North 116
The Rockingham administration 116
George the third's strong feeling against it 117
Fox, minister of foreign affairs 117
Shelburne, first marquis of Lansdowne 117