

tution of any sort, can be pleasing to God, which is not useful to Men !

Thus thinking, and thus acting, you will find out the secret*, which is preserved in the hearts of the faithful. You will understand the sign†, which the children of God always discover, by loving the brethren. You will gain the password which shall open to you the door of the celestial Lodge§, where you shall behold God himself, our supreme Grand Master, seated in glory, where though clouds and darkness veil his awful Majesty, yet light and joy encircle his throne; where you shall join hand in hand with the saints; where you shall sing the song of Moses and the Lamb, and shall rejoice for ever in the smiles of his countenance.

* Pf. xxv. 4. † 1 John iii. 14. § Rev. iv. 2.

F I N I S.