FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 27, 1910. MINERALS IN NORTH ONTARIO. All over the country the sentiment against wildcatting is very general. The practical men recognize that the development required. And they know Prof. McCurdy's great book on the histhat all bogus or ill-digested schemes tory of the monuments establishes him are a hindrance to steady progress. The testimony given by nearly evervone who is in a position to speak with the authority of experience is to the effect that the mines of the north

There should be no misunderstanding about this. It does not mean that poor men are unable to go into the veries, and that they may not sudden wealth in this way; but to take up the smelting and export or eral use before very long. manufacture of these products.

In the Porcupine district this appears to be undoubtedly the case. It proposition." There is fabulous wealth, but it must be sifted out from the tons of rock that surround the diviing than anything else in Ontario.

At the present time there are thousands of acres staked out under affidavits swearing to the discovery of minvered with farm soil many feet deep. Until such claims are inspected and the government thru its inspector at least testifies to the presence of mineral of value, the public should be careful of investing.

The testimony of experienced mining men from other mining communities is altogether favorable as to the potentialities of the whole north country, and those who are trying to traduce the importance of the gold and silver belt can only be influenced by motives of self interest if they know anything at all about the situation.

TWO PRELIMINARIES.

It will be time to talk reciprocity with the United States when they've lowered their tariff to something like Canada's.

And the only reciprocity talk of theirs that we can listen to is tariff legislation in the shape of reductions. If Uncle Sam scales his tariff down on certain things, we will do the like with certain things of ours. And the negotiations to this end can be most informal.' But if the United States thinks that Canada will send delegates to negotiate a treaty that their senate can refuse to ratify they are greatly

PRUSSIAN CITY COUNCILS. In his valuable book on The Government of European Cities, Professor Munro of Harvard University remarks that as to the general character and standing of the men elected to the Prussian municipal councils, there is and can be but one opinion. Among the local elective organs of the various countries of Europe and America, he continues, none have been more successful than the Prussian city councils in securing as members men of ability, integrity and general prestige. It is, he adds, well within the truth to say that in a city like Berlin, the councillors are chosen from among the very best citizens of the capital; that they form, for the most part, a well selected elite drawn from the professional, mercantile and academic circles of the population; that, in short, they represent not the hasty and transitory judgments of the masses, but the best business sense of the community. In considering the question why men whose private interests are so important, should be willing to give to the German municipality so much of their time and thought without any direct remuneration and without the slightest indirect possibility of financial reoupment, Prof. Munro, attributes it efly to the fact that in Prussia the ocial prestige which attaches to public ervice of any sort is greater than it is in any other country. The Prussian national authorities have for many years assiduously fostered the doctrine that those who serve the state in either military or civil offices. should take rank in the social scale above the ordinary layman, no matter of the latter may be. This policy has secured both for the army and national civil service, the most promising ele-

Our commercial advertising is held up to ridicule as compared with the American advertising. As manufacturers we are rtising. As manufacturers we are told that all are small potatoes, and that our advertising is ineffectual and inefficient.

We are further informed that the premier of Canada will array the west-ern farmer against the Canadian manu-facturer whilst the minister of finance is in Washington arranging a recipro-cal treaty which will amicably assass inate the manufacturers who save because we do not "support" the Can-adian publishers—and in this instance the cloven hoof of this particular pub-The article is ill-natured and illogical.

England is being rediscovered. It has been pictured for some considerable time on this side the herring pond as either gone or going quickly to the profitable publicity. "Support" is an antediluvian expression when real advertising is talked about. No same newspaper uses it. No respectable advertising man ever asks for support or vertising man ever asks for support or patronage. The profitable advertising medium seeks for business—and gets it. The best advertising in the world is done in Canada. The Canadian general advertiser is handicapped. The World asked D. D. Mann of the Canadian Northern as to the story in yesterday's despatches that fifty millions had been offered to William Mackenzie and himself for the control of that system in its entirety.

Mr. Mann said: "We were never offered any definite sum for the stock of the road. We never offered it for sale, tho we have been asked to do so a great many times. Our ambition now is not to make money out of the road, but to complete it. We may be human enough to have the idea of ultimately making some money out of the propomaking some money out of the propo-sition, but we are not considering it at

Wounds Evidently Inflicted by Blunt Instrument Before Body Was Immersed.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 26 .-(Special.)-A supposed brutal murder was brought to light by the finding of the body of a man at the Canadian landing of the Maid of the Mist early this evening. The head was badly crushed, the injury apparently being inflicted before the body was in the water. Coroner Birdsall has been calldered above the falls and the body throw into the river. The face is so badly crushed as to be unrecogniz-able. There is a wound at the back of the head, evidently inflicted by a heavy blunt instrument before the body was immersed. The face might have been crushed by rocks, but not likely. It is believed rather that it was

Arnold v. Strothers.—R. S. Robertson (Stratford), for defendants. C. Millar, for plaintiff, contra. An appeal by defendants from the judgment of the chancellor of 10th March, 1910. An action by a workman against his employer, and the owner of a sand pit, for injury caused by fall of a frozen lump of sand. At the trial judgment was given for plaintiff for $400 against the owner, and $400 against the contractor.

Judgment: The danger of going close under a bank of the kind in question particularly on a wet thawing day is obvious and must have been quite as apparent to the plaintiff as to the defendants, and apart from the question of contributory negligence suggested by the plaintiff, a dray man, having chosen to go int oa situation of such obvious danger in the dusk of a winter evening (for he chose his own time), we think the plaintiff must fall. The whole situation was as well-known to the plaintiff as to the defendants. The master was uncer no obligation to his servant to guard him against the suggested negligence on the part of Gaby. Gaby's obligation was only to warn of a danger not obvious or known to plaintiff. Here the plaintiff knew and assumed the risk. Appeal allowed and action dismissed. The
