FLEES DEATH HOUSE; TRAPPED BY WALLS

Slayer Quits Jersey Prison Bathroom by Skylight in Daylight Liberty Dash.

Trenton, N. Y., Sept. 7—Doomed to die in the electric chair this week for the murder a year ago of Harry Garwood, a Camden jitney driver, Guilford C. Young, 29 years old, of Camden, made a sensational daylight dash from the death house of the New Jersey State Prison here. He was captured a few minutes later in the yard of the State Arsenal, adjoining the prison.

Three deputy keepers who were charged with responsibility for the escape have been suspended for two months without pay. They are George Lowe, towerman, who has been a deputy twenty-five years; James Shea and Thomas Mitchell, death house guards.

Young made his break for liberty while in the bathroom of the death house. While his custodian was momentarily out or the room, it is said, Young grasped the water piper and swung himself through an open skylight. He thus gained the roof of the building, which is a one-story structure. Then he made his way across it, dropping twenty-five feet into the yard of the arsenal. Lowe, whose tower overlooks the roof of the death house, tried to intercept the fugitive, but did not shoot.

The alarm was given at once, and deputies rushed into the arsenal yard. Young had been unable to scale the high wall that surrounds that yard and submitted to capture without a struggle. He was taken back to his cell in the death house and will not be permitted to leave it until the time for him to march to the electric chair.

The murder for which Young was convicted occurred in July of last year. It was alleged that he attacked and killed Garwood, who was a cripple, at a lonely spot five miles from Camden, and then drove off with his machine.

A HALF-CENTURY on the St Lawrence Route

When Canada was in her infancy as a Dominion, White Star-Dominion Line steamers were sailing the St. Lawrence Route and maintaining a regular service from Montreal and Quebec to Liverpool.

To-day the Megantic, Regina, Canada and Canopic maintain this service with sailings every Saturday.

The White Star, Red Star and American Lines also operate a regular service from New York to England and the Continent.
